

O'Hare Anti-Noise Unit Has Roaring Start

The O'Hare Noise Abatement and Air Pollution Council is off to a roaring start this week on an area-wide campaign to seek prompt federal action on major airport problems.

Three of the 17 Northwest suburban communities represented by the council have already passed resolutions seeking support and sympathy from Sen. Charles Percy on the problems of noise abatement and air pollution at O'Hare airport.

Mount Prospect, Elmhurst and Itasca are among the first communities to pass resolutions requesting federal assistance and registering major concern over airport problems, while the majority of towns represented by the council are expected to follow suit later this week.

THE RESOLUTIONS charge "that O'Hare airport continues to be operated and expanded with total disregard for the rights of the residents in neighboring communities. Noise abatement procedures implemented to date by the Federal Aviation Administration are but a token response to the problem.

"As we enter the 1970's with super, turbo jets on the way, the problems of jet noise and air pollution are reaching crisis proportions. We need constructive action now — not more studies, debate or buck passing."

The resolution passed unanimously by the Itasca Village Board, Tuesday, added: "We believe that there has been a failure of responsible public officials to propose constructive solutions to the problems of airport noise. We also feel that the federal government has a significant role to play in dealing with the problem of airport noise."

THE RESOLUTION outlined that the jurisdiction of the federal government included aircraft operations control and the appropriation of federal funds for land use development as well as health, welfare and safety for everyone.

The Mount Prospect Village Board passed its resolution unanimously Tuesday following the remarks of one resident who thought trustees should give the resolution further consideration and study before issuing final approval.

William Krampert, 323 George St., told trustees that although the noise from jet aircraft was bad, Mount Prospect's proximity to the airport is one of its assets.

KRAMPERT SAID the airport had its advantages and disadvantages just like the Chicago and North Western Railroad which runs right through the middle of town. "Sure, it's noisy but it's transportation for thousands of Northwest suburban commuters every day," he said.

Trustee Don Furst, delegate to the council, agreed with Krampert in part, but added that trains today aren't "belching black oily smoke" like airplanes.

The resolutions were passed following a request from George Franks of Wood Dale who asked council delegates last week to seek resolutions from their village boards requesting immediate federal action and relief from pressing noise and air pollution problems.

FRANKS, council chairman, met with delegates last week to launch a major campaign to send as many petitions and people to protest against major airport problems at a national seminar on noise abatement and air pollution to be held in Washington, D.C. Oct. 7 through 9.

Other communities expected to pass similar resolutions this week include Bensenville, Wood Dale, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Elk Grove, Addison and Des Plaines.

To Reduce Draft Call

WASHINGTON—U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam, which now will include the entire 3rd Marine Division at the Demilitarized Zone, will result in lower draft calls in the months ahead, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird said yesterday.

He told a news conference he would advise the Selective Service Friday of changes in draft calls as a result of President Nixon's decision to pull an additional 35,000 troops from Vietnam.

Request Benefit Hike

WASHINGTON—President Nixon, in a surprise announcement yesterday said he would ask Congress to increase social security benefits by 10 per cent effective next April 1.

Nixon, who had earlier said he would propose a 7 per cent increase, made the announcement with little elaboration. He said he would spell out his program in a message to Congress next week.

Young Predicts 2,000 Vote Win

by ED MURNANE

One of the most optimistic announcements to date by a 13th Congressional District candidate came yesterday when Samuel H. Young of Glenview announced:

—He is the first candidate to have all 515 13th District precincts manned by his organization.

—He has a 25-member committee of former supporters of Donald Rumsfeld working for him.

—He will win the Oct. 7 primary election by 2,000 votes.

YOUNG SAID surveys by his staff members indicate he will receive "a minimum of 8,000 votes, representing a projected 2,000 vote victory margin over my nearest opponent."

He predicted that approximately 36,000 voters would turn out for the GOP primary, and declined to say who he thought his "nearest opponent" would be.

"I think there are three or four who will be close," Young said. "But a lot of things can happen in the last three weeks and I'd rather not give any names."

There are nine Republicans seeking the seat which was vacated by former Congressman Donald L. Rumsfeld in May. The winner of the primary will compete with Democrat Edward Warman of Skokie on Nov. 25.

YOUNG'S OPTIMISM is based on what he called "snowballing support throughout the district."

He pointed to the fact that he has three township GOP endorsements, more than any of the other candidates, and that two of the endorsements are by township organizations that do not have favorite son candidates in the race. Only three of the seven townships which have made endorsements don't have candidates.

Philip Crane of Winnetka was endorsed by the Palatine Township GOP, defeating Young after several ballots. Townships which have endorsed Young are his own Northfield Township and western townships Elk Grove and Schaumburg.

TOWNSHIP GOP organizations which are supporting "favorite sons" are Wheeling Township, State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights; New Trier Township, State Rep. Alan Johnston of Kenilworth; Niles Township, John Nimrod, and Northfield Township, and Young.

Only Evanston Township has not made a Republican organization endorsement. Young said yesterday he believes he will get most of the Evanston vote, as well as carrying Northfield, Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships.

Two other developments which Young said are "very significant" are his "very well qualified" rating by the Women's Republican Club of New Trier and his recommended endorsement by the board of directors of the Evanston Women's Republican Organization.

HE DID NOT get the Evanston endorsement, he said, because a two-thirds

Young said his township-by-township, precinct-by-precinct organization was completed this week. Last week, he announced that two high-ranking Republican officials in Palatine Township had left the

Ullmann: 'I Resign'

Tom Ullmann, Elk Grove Village trustee resigned from the community services board Tuesday in protest over its refusal to take action against its executive director, Thomas E. Smith.

Ullmann turned in his resignation at the end of a village board meeting which saw new members to the community services board. Trustee Eugene Keith opposed the appointment as well as reappointment.

NEW MEMBERS appointed to serve until April 30, 1973, are Gerald Aleksey, 555 Gateshead North, a former president of the Jaycees; the Rev. Maynard Beal, 587 Laurel St., pastor of Prince of Peace United Methodist Church; and Robert Haskell, 200 Banbury Ave., principal of Elk Grove High School.

Reappointed to the board until April 30, 1973, were Alton Broten, 601 Walnut Lane, chairman; Brother Ferdinand Leyva of St. Alexis Hospital; Mrs. Stanley Quinn, 970 Lonsdale; James Morita, 1221 Aspen; and Irwin Helford, 1086 Elmwood.

Submitting his letter of resignation, Ullmann denounced the community services board for conducting a closed meeting Sept. 3 to discuss with Smith statements made in an article appearing in the Herald Aug. 25.

IN THE ARTICLE, Smith said he favors "revolution and demonstrations as a means to turn the community on."

The article resulted in the closed meeting after which Smith was cleared and the newspaper chastised by the board for presenting "incomplete statements."

Ullmann referred to the closed meeting, in which he took part and was rebuffed, as a "sham."

"I was most dismayed that the truth as related by eye witnesses and presented by myself at the meeting was totally disregarded," Ullmann said.

"THE STATEMENTS I presented were looked upon by the community services board as lacking veracity."

Trustee Charles Zettek, also a member of the community services board, disputed Ullmann's last comment.

He said that at no time in the meeting did anyone say they did not believe Ullmann explained that members may have felt that information presented to Ullmann may have been taken out of context but that no one told him his reports lacked veracity.

The remainder of Ullmann's statement follows.

"IT IS MY opinion, that in the belief that if the director were to be dismissed, community services would fail, the community services board decided to retain the director regardless of what the facts were.

"I can only remind this board and the community services board that government is of laws and not of men and if we transgress on this basic principle we invite disaster.

"In view of my opposition to the director's statements and account of the story at the meeting, two members of the community services board asked that I be dismissed from that board.

"I find it difficult to believe that this closed-mind approach is an atmosphere in which the truth can prevail.

"I FIND THAT I cannot support the present director of community services, even in part, and I cannot abrogate my responsibility to the truth.

"I am therefore tendering my resignation to the community services board and will seek to work toward the removal of community services from the public tax rolls in the interest of the concerned citizens of this community."

Set Complex Zoning Meet

An annexation and rezoning public hearing for an apartment complex on 30 acres east of Fleetwood Lane between Oakton Street and Landmeier Road near Elk Grove Village has been scheduled for 8 p.m. today in the village hall.

The petition for the 594-unit complex is for rezoning to A-2 (apartments). The land is presently farmland.

PERRY SNYDERMAN, Chicago attorney representing developer Michael Gross, announced the apartment development plans in June.

The $10 million project, to serve as a buffer zone between a residential subdivision and industry would consist of 190 one-bedroom apartments renting for $135 a month, 360 two-bedroom apartments at $235, and 54 two-bedroom townhouse units at $265.

THEN AND NOW? The Herald ran this 1965 picture showing Airy Trace homeowners picketing the offices of the Realty Company of America (Realcoa). At that time, residents were protesting what they felt was poor service by Realcoa, developers of the subdivision. Current homeowners in Airy Trace and nearby Kingsbridge are disturbed by the lack of response their complaints are receiving from Realcoa.

Thunder Over A New Home

by MURRAY DUBIN

How would you like to own a $50,000 home that leaks water from the bathtub through the kitchen cabinets?

A home whose cedar siding is already split.

A home where drapes couldn't be put in the bedroom because the windows let in rain.

A home that you bought in March and had to wait three months before your driveway was completed.

Mr. and Mrs. William Zeckzer, 1814 S. Ridge Drive in the Kingsbridge Subdivision, have such a home.

The Zeckzers told the Herald about the problems they and their neighbors are having with the Kingsbridge developers, Realcoa Builders.

"EVER SINCE March, we've tried to get things corrected in our home," Zeckzer said.

"We realized there were many things that weren't completed when we moved in and we weren't too concerned about our complaints.

"But after three months, we became very disturbed."

On Aug. 25, Zeckzer personally went to Realcoa with a list of improvements that hadn't been made and tried to see Harold Palmer, a vice president.

Zeckzer finally got an appointment to see Palmer on Aug. 29 and said the vice president promised to correct everything in four working weeks.

Since that meeting, Realcoa has put a cover on a drain sewer, raised it and fixed a drain in the mud room, Zeckzer said. But Zeckzer is pessimistic about Realcoa correcting the house's defects.

THE ZECKZERS aren't the only people with complaints about Realcoa.

Mrs. Richard Mader who lives in the Airy Trace Subdivision told the Herald, "Our roofing is warped and there are pieces missing.

"The leaking in our basement was fixed after 10 months of complaining. My husband wrote the village manager, the Better Business Bureau and the Department of Fraud.

"Everybody in the whole area is complaining."

Mrs. James Kelley, 1707 S. Ridge Drive, isn't happy either.

"We moved in on Jan. 30 and there are still things that haven't been corrected," she said.

"THE CEDAR SIDING is cracking, the basement is leaking and the plaster is cracking. It also rains through the storm windows into the bedroom and there are paint stains on the woodwork."

L. A. Hansen, Arlington Heights village manager said that his office hadn't had any particular problems with Realcoa, at least "not any more than with any other builder."

Village Pres. Jack Walsh said that he had never received any complaints from Kingsbridge residents but he had in the past received complaints from Airy Trace homeowners and had tried to solve them by getting the village involved.

WALSH ADDED THAT to his knowledge there were no unanswered letters from the residents in Airy Trace.

Marty Munsen, Arlington Heights building commissioner, told the Herald that he has had, at times, problems with Realcoa but no more than with any other builder or developer.

The Herald has tried to contact Palmer at Realcoa for three days with no success.

Giving a Town $450,000

by JAMES VESELY

$450,000.

It sits there like a juicy plum to be plucked and tossed into Arlington Heights' bank accounts.

Arlington Park, $450,000. Money to build and support a community.

And all you have to do is open the door and let it in.

AMONG HIGH VILLAGE officials, there is probably very little doubt that the community should annex Arlington Park. Despite the discordant voices of some 60 residents who went to the village hall Tuesday night to question the joining of the village and the track, the deep feeling prevalent in the council chambers was that a man would have to be a fool to let that kind of money get away from the village.

And despite the murmurs of disapproval from some local residents, the village is simply not mulling the type of strong opposition to night racing that stood the community on its ear a few years ago.

So the hard bargaining for public approval began this week in council chambers. The village government is convinced of the worth of the annexation, the track is convinced, now the town has to be convinced.

THE FIRST STEP in that procedure was the discussion this week which placed the entire question of the track's activities up for public scrutiny.

Although Village Pres. Jack Walsh and Atty. Jack Siegel repeatedly tried to keep the meeting from straying from the immediate question of the annexation agreement, some citizens still managed to get their licks in and voiced their apprehensions over the track.

Erwin Kempton, 113 Wilke Road, said "No one can help me with my taxes, I just couldn't be taxed any more . . . but what about safety? What about the stabbings and the trouble that comes out of the track?"

Another man rose later in the meeting to claim that the track violated the hours imposed by the state racing board and ran horses after midnight.

THIS REMARK BROUGHT the only response of the evening from Mrs. Marje Everett, operator of the track. Mrs. Everett rose, looked the man right in the eye and told him the track has not violated the midnight curfew.

The Gospel: '69 Style

by JUDY COVELLI

"I felt like I was in the midst of a new happening," said the Rev. Schuyler Butler, new pastor of the Elk Grove Baptist Church.

He was referring to his recent attendance at the U.S. Congress on Evangelism in Minneapolis.

Rev. Butler, who arrived at the church Sept. 1, attended the convention from Sept. 8 to 13.

His reaction to the convention bubbled over in enthusiasm about applying some of his new ideas in the Elk Grove church.

"BY THE GRACE of God I would like to do some new things as well as the traditional in Elk Grove. I feel traditionalism is strangling the gospel.

"Wesley took the gospel and put it to modern music and the people heard him. This is what folk singing is doing now. I look forward to different approaches to getting the gospel out these days.

"It's not that people aren't receptive to the gospel; they just don't hear it. It's the job of the church to reach these people."

He saw an original black light presentation of the gospel by folk singers and five groups of well-known folk singers performing at the convention, he explained.

"Pat Boone and two or three others including Suzanne Johnson, Miss Illinois, 1965, were there," he said.

The folk singers sparked his enthusiasm to try the new approach in his own parish.

HE SAID THE congress was "a once-in-a-lifetime thing." Its purpose was to evaluate and propagate evangelism across the country by stimulating Christians and Christian leaders.

Population Is 19,912

According to unofficial figures released Wednesday the population of Elk Grove Village is 19,912.

The figures are subject to change following retabulation by the U.S. Bureau of the Census in Washington.

According to the last census taken in June, 1967, the population was 16,906.

The congress was comprised of about 5,000 delegates representing 97 denominations in the country.

Theme of the congress was "Much is given, much is required."

"I was fascinated with the variety of speakers," he said. "Probably all of the greats of our time in evangelism were there." He included the Rev. Tom Skinner, Harlem-based black evangelist, and Rev. Ralph Abernathy, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, among those who impressed him most.

BOTH URGED black-white cooperation. Abernathy said, "Black is beautiful and it is beautiful to be black. But black and white together is more beautiful.

"It is your responsibility to evangelize the world. For it is only through evangelism that the nations of the world will be saved," he said.

Evangelism is derived from the Greek word meaning "good news" or from the verb meaning "to proclaim the good news." Evangelism deals with a message, an announcement or proclamation, and the publishing of that message.

In relation to this idea, Rev. Butler said evangelism is a two-sided coin, reaching a person with the gospel and reaching the needs of that person. "It is social and evangelistic," he said.

"I HAVE A LOT of faith in the relativity of the gospel and the power of the gospel in a time when people say the world is folding. I have faith that the gospel will hang right on and not fold up.

"The whole experience was very moving," Rev. Butler said. "At the conclusion of the closed sessions, with about 5,000 to 6,000 people present, we knelt in concession that the church had a job we were doing and said we would from that day go out and do it."

GOP organization to work for Young, rather than Crane.

The two, Charles K. Allen of Rolling Meadows and Clayton W. Brown of Palatine are joined by other western township directors Warren McGovney, Elk Grove; L. A. (Roy) Bressler, Wheeling; and Glenn Hoffman, Schaumburg.

The committee of former Rumsfeld supporters is headed by Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher and includes a number of top Republicans from the western end of the district.

STATE REP. DAVID REGNER of Mount Prospect is on the committee, as are Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township Clerk George Busse, Mount Prospect Trustee George Reiter and Elk Grove GOP Pres. Richard Hall.

Schaumburg Township members are Assessor Scott MacEachron, Supervisor Vernon Laubenstein and Collector Ralph Lyster.

Others from this area are W. Richard

Impey of Arlington Heights, Mrs. Earle Miller of Mount Prospect, Mrs. Fred Walter of Rolling Meadows and Mrs. Jeannine Brown of Palatine.

"As active Republicans who were among the early friends and supporters of Donald Rumsfeld, we endorse Young as Don's successor," Atcher's statement said.

"In a fine field of candidates, Young stands out as the best to meet the challenge."

Recommend Food Code Adoption

The adoption of a food code for Elk Grove Village was recommended to the board of health Wednesday by Mrs. Barbara Watson, health inspector.

"There is no food code in Elk Grove. We are operating on the 1962 Food Service Sanitation Manual because all the northwest communities have or are adopting that as their code," she said.

The code was developed by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"I want our village to adopt the code," she said. Her recommendations from the code manual are not legally binding since it has not been officially adopted by the village.

SHE ALSO SUGGESTED that the Natural Sanitation Foundation standards for equipment be required everywhere in the village.

In another area, the board discussed mosquito abatement.

Mrs. Watson, a member of the Northwest Municipal Conference Mosquito Abatement Committee, reported the mosquito problem has not been effectively solved by the district.

The committee was formed to object to the control that has been provided by the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District which is comprised of eight townships in the area, including Elk Grove.

THE REPORT CONCLUDES, "We have been paying taxes toward a mosquito abatement program that has become ineffective and is operated as a temporary control program. It appears the district intends to continue the same type of program even though obvious problems have resulted . . ."

The board of health made three suggestions: That the board's concern be stated; that they recommend a survey evaluating the problem; and that reports on activities and the survey be presented to their board.

Mothers Like Football

by MARIANNE BRETSNYDER

She watched him throw his first pass, and bawled his first injury. The mother of a high school football player knows part of her son's sport life better than anyone else.

"We go to every game," said Mrs. Howard Mock of Rolling Meadows whose son Howard plays on the Forest View team. she thinks it is a wonderful sport, and her son enjoys it.

"IT KEEPS HIM busy; a child should be interested in something, and they need the encouragement of their parents," she said.

Mrs. Mock said her son plays slot back and defensive halfback. He has also been on the track team, and he was a gymnast.

On the team's chances this year, she said, "We lost the first game, but we hope to win most of them."

Mrs. Mock said Howard has received several letters from football coaches at colleges, and a letter from the Air Force Academy.

Academy.

HE HAS TO score scholastically too, she added, boys don't get into college on the strength of athletics anymore. She said her son has a good academic record, and if he should get a senator's recommendation, he could go to the Air Force Academy.

Mrs. Robert Carr said her son, Bob, started playing football in sixth grade. He is a guard and linebacker at Palatine High School.

"I always thought he would play, he's been active since he was very young," she said. Her son has always been "first string," she said.

"We never miss a game," Mrs. Carr said, "and the love of the sport comes from his dad."

BOB ALSO PLAYS basketball and baseball, and was on the track team. Sports is a way of life and she said her son is conscious of keeping himself fit. She thinks he'll continue to play in college.

"I think athletics are the greatest thing for a boy," said Mrs. Robert Creek. Her son Jeff plays for Fremd High School. She thinks all boys should play in some kind of sport, even if they're just water boy, she said.

The lessons they learn there, they learn in life and in business she said. It teaches them to work with people, she said.

"He's played since he had a ball in his hands," she said. His sports interest extends to track, tumbling, swimming and skiing.

She worries about him, and said he played the last game with a broken nose. "But he knows what the risks are," she added.

"WE ARE ALL there at the game, including the six year old," Mrs. Creek said. He plays "defensive center and offensive line backer, number 51," she said.

"We hope they will win and take the conference title, if they don't win, they'll have to try a little harder," she said.

Mrs. Harry Menick's son, Mike, is Fremd's offensive end and defensive safety Mike Menick.

"I think it's very good for them, they learn a lot of things, like teamwork and coordination, and how to get along with people," she said.

"They will have to get along with all kinds of people, and learning to get along with the team helps," she said.

"I watch some of the games but his father goes to every game," she said. She saw the first game and said they have hard work ahead of them.

"I don't know how they'll do, but I hope they come out on top," she said.

First Meeting of PTO

The Parent-Teacher Organization of Forest View Elementary School will hold its first meeting of the school year today at 8 p.m. in the school gymnasium to introduce the board and new principal.

Mrs. Steve Stach, PTO president, will introduce the board and Donald Heitzman, principal. Heitzman will introduce the teaching staff and speak on "Education — give me what I need — or forget it."

An original musical skit will be provided by the board members and Herman Sogatz, music teacher at the school.

Parents will then meet the teachers informally in the classroom.

WHILE SONS BATTLE on the football field, mothers watch from the bleachers, cheering for their sons' teams and hoping they don't get injured.

Flood Control May Be Fact in 6 Years

In the next six years, the Northwest suburbs could have all three scheduled flood control reservoirs along Salt Creek.

Site acquisition and construction of reservoirs in Palatine, Arlington Heights, and Elk Grove Village, are part of the intended use of a $380 million bond issue authorized for the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD).

Vinton Bacon, MSD general superintendent, said Wednesday he also hopes to begin the controversial $1 billion deep tunnel project for Chicago with bond issue revenues.

BACON SPOKE at a meeting of the Cook County Council of Governments (COG) which had supported the nonreferendum bond issue legislation in the Illinois General Assembly. Senate Bill 1065, authorizing the bond issue, is waiting Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie's signature.

The 20-member COG executive committee Wednesday voted to urge the MSD board of trustees to adopt a policy statement that would insure the bond issue revenues go for flood control.

Executive committee members were also asked to encourage the governor to sign the measure. According to Ogilvie aides, the MSD bill will be reviewed in the next two weeks.

COG members also adopted a resolution opposing a clause in the proposed federal income tax reform bill which would eliminate the tax-free status of income on municipal bonds. To be sent Illinois' delegation in Congress, the resolution declares the elimination of the tax-free status of such income would be a hardship on local government in selling bonds.

PROVIDING THE BILL is signed, the MSD would be limited to selling $60 million in bonds per year. Bacon said there is no timetable on fund expenditures, but the bond issue will finance just the flood control-sewer separation component of MSD's 10-year clean-up and flood control program.

He said progress is underway on half of the MSD's scheduled 15 flood control reservoirs. The Palatine reservoir site at Quentin and Palatine roads has been acquired and the district is in the process of acquiring the reservoir site in Arlington Heights, Bacon noted. The Elk Grove Village reservoir will be in Busse Woods of the Cook County Forest Preserve.

"WE CAN'T embark on spending the $380 million until we get a statement of policy now," Bacon said at the COG meeting. Adoption of the proposed two-part policy decision, covering the deep tunnel and ground reservoirs system of flood control, was deferred by the MSD board Aug. 28.

The deep tunnel project is an underground storage system for effluent from combined storm and sanitary sewers during heavy rains. Northwest suburban communities with combined sewer systems, like parts of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect, would be linked to the deep tunnel.

Overflow now from combined sewers goes into streams and rivers. The MSD is charged by the federal government with eliminating the pollution of Cook County waterways.

WINNERS OF A year's subscription to Paddock Publications and a free weekend at Arlington Park Towers were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Radtke, Bensenville, who were the first persons admitted to the Northwest Suburban Fair and Ex-

Doctor Tells Why Schools Teach Sex

by MURRAY DUBIN

Sex was the topic at the North School's first PTA meeting Tuesday night and Dr. Franklin Fitch was doing the talking.

Fitch is the director of professional services for the Illinois Social Hygiene League and was its executive director from 1950 to 1968. He was appointed to the Illinois Sex Education Advisory Board in 1965.

Fitch told the large audience that "sex education should make boys and girls better family people."

The speaker tried to answer the questions that plague most parents with young children.

"Parents often wonder when they should begin to teach their children about sex," he began.

"YOU HAVE ALREADY started," he said, "by the way you bathe your child."

Fitch talked about sex vocabulary too.

"Use correct terms when talking about the sex organs," he advised. Fitch suggested that parents not use baby terms or street language when talking about sex.

In answering the specific questions that parents receive from their children, Fitch told the audience to be simple, short and honest in their replies.

"IF A CHILD ASKS where he came from, you can say 'you grew in mother's body,'" Fitch said.

Fitch stressed the need of impressing to a child the importance of the family unit and their growing up to be fathers and mothers.

Fitch concluded by saying that the three steps to sex education are to establish communication between the parent and child and to make sex decent, to explain to the child experiencing puberty exactly what is happening to their bodies and to help the child develop judgment and responsibility.

"Sex education doesn't happen in five minutes on a rainy afternoon," Fitch said.

Non-partisan Voice of the Illinois Constitutional Convention

How would you describe the role and function of the individual member of the Constitutional Convention?
 "I believe each delegate must be a non-partisan representative of all the people, who should be in a position to discuss all of the issues coming before the convention as objectively as possible."

Blue Flames Leaves Tomorrow

The model of the 37-foot rocket engine car, the Blue Flame, will be at the Northwest suburban Fair and Exposition only today and tomorrow.

The fair, held at the Arlington Park Race Track Exhibit Hall, will close at 6 p.m. Sunday.

Visit Wisconsin

Horseback riding, swimming and hay rides were part of the Ranchero that drew 80 Cadette Scouts to Wisconsin recently.

The program services committee of the Girl Scout Council of Northwest Cook County planned the week-long activities for the girls.

Girls 12 to 14 camped at Happy Hollow, a 280-acre camp site near East Troy, Wis. Each day two of the three groups were bused 12 miles to Kettle Moraine Ranch for riding, instruction in grooming and horsemanship, swimming and a hayride.

UNDER THE supervision of Mrs. Elwood Haines, 21 girls qualified for their swimmers badge, and all either completed or earned portions of other badges.

These included pitching tents, hiking, star-gazing, outdoor cooking, riding and grooming and striking camp.

Coordinator for the event was Mrs. James Freeman, Arlington Heights. Other adults included Mrs. Lawrence Hildebrandt, Palatine; Mrs. V. Wandersee, Rolling Meadows, and Mrs. W. J. Cramer, Rolling Meadows.

One highlight of the week for both girls and adults was the visit of Ingibjorg Olafsdottir, from Iceland. She was a guest of the Northwest Cook Council for three weeks in August.

land vehicle speed records. Its rocket engine will use liquefied natural gas when it goes after the current record of 600.601 miles per hour at the Bonneville Salt Beds in Utah.

DESIGNED AND BUILT by Reaction Dynamics, Inc., Milwaukee, the Blue Flame will be driven by Gary Gabelich, a former test-astronaut in some aspect of the Apollo program for North American Rockwell Co. Under actual conditions, the gas — is cooled to 253 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

Other exhibits and features of the fair are a cooking school, presented by the Northern Illinois Gas Co.; "What's New in Beef," presented by the National Livestock Meat Board; a display of painting with sand; a mini-park for toddlers; an array of unusual hobbies and a display of tropical fish.

Obituaries

Thomas C. Pettersen

Thomas Owen Pettersen, 48, a Palatine resident for the last 20 years, died yesterday in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, after a lingering illness.

Visitation will be today from 2 to 9:30 p.m. in Ahlgren and Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 10:30 a.m. from the funeral home to St. Theresa Catholic Church, 465 N. Benton, Palatine, for 11:30 a.m. mass. Interment will be St. Michael The Archangel Cemetery, Palatine.

Survivors include his widow, Catherine, nee Healy; four daughters, Mrs. Jean Ralph of Park Ridge, Mrs. Joanne Lebreck of Palatine, Linda and Suzanne; four sons, David, Michael, Joseph and Donald, all at home; his father, Otto Pettersen of Palatine; and a sister, Mrs. Rosemary Humphrey of Schenectady, N. Y.

Mr. Pettersen, born March 5, 1921, in Sootland, S.D., had lived at 233 S. Benton in Palatine. He was employed as a carpenter in the construction business. He was a member of the Arlington Heights VFW Post, No. 961, and the Knights of Columbus Holy Ghost Council.

Center Prepares for Sale

The Clearbrook Community Association for the Retarded is making arrangements for showing Christmas cards and novelties in preparation for its annual fund-raising sale.

The Christmas card sale provides funds for expansion of the building program at the center for mentally handicapped children. Proceeds from the sale have yielded about $20,000 for the building program.

CHRISTMAS CARD AND novelty sale chairman is Mrs. Nancy Dodge, 1405 W. Concord, Arlington Heights. Persons interested in making arrangements for a showing of the cards and novelties may contact Mrs. Dodge or one of the area chairmen.

St. Alexius Receives TV from Kiwanis Club

The Elk Grove Kiwanis Club recently gave a color television to St. Alexius Hospital for the main waiting room.

Money for the new set was raised last spring from the Kiwanis "Chicken Day," when Kiwanians took orders, packaged and delivered chicken from the Little Red Hen Restaurant while owner Frank Kari-gan and his cooks prepared the meals.

PROCEEDS from the annual "Chicken Day" and a fall fund raising event are donated to St. Alexius every year by the Kiwanis Club. In 1968 the club donated money for an anesthesia machine for an operating room where children are often treated.

Roland K. Ackerman

Visitation for Roland K. Ackerman, 75, who died yesterday in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, after a short illness, will be today after 7 p.m. in Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, and tomorrow until time of funeral services at 3 p.m. in the chapel of the funeral home. Father Samuel Keyes will preside. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery.

Surviving are his widow, Marie L., nee Gaier; a son, Richard of Arlington Heights; a daughter, Mrs. Rita Walters of Hinsdale; eight grandchildren; two brothers, Garret H. Ackerman of Rolling Meadows, and Earl D. of Arlington Heights.

Mr. Ackerman, born Aug. 26, 1894, in Montvale, N. J., had been a resident of Arlington Heights for the last 31 years and lived at 530 S. Evergreen Ave.

LeRoy R. Cavanaugh

LeRoy R. Cavanaugh, 32, of 1910 W. Lincoln Ave., Mount Prospect, died Monday in an automobile accident southeast of Lake Zurich in Lake County, on Rand Road near Long Grove Road. He was employed as a section supervisor at Charles Bruning Co. in Mount Prospect.

Visitation is today in DeNicolis-Lesniak Funeral Home, 5734-40 W. Diversey, Chicago, and tomorrow until time of funeral services at 1 p.m. in the chapel of the funeral home. The Rev. Herbert H. Steege of the American Lutheran Church, Chicago, will preside. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery, Arlington Heights.

Surviving are his widow, Sally, nee Swanson; three sons, Michael, Thomas and Daniel; a daughter, Sandra, all at home; his parents, Edward and Florence Cavanaugh; and four brothers, Edward, Richard, Gerald and William.

The family requests no flowers.

Ask Con-Con Unity Despite 13th Split

RONALD RIBA

A Wheeling Township Republican citizens group supporting John Woods and Virginia Macdonald for Constitutional Convention (Con-Con) delegate seats has asked that the 13th Congressional District primary race not cloud the Con-Con race.

In a statement to the press, Daniel Congreve, former president of Mount Prospect; Ron Riba, a member of the Arlington Heights plan commission; and Gerry Brask, education and training director for the Wheeling Township Republican Organization, made the first public admission that the Wheeling GOP is not unified on its choice for the GOP nomination for Congress.

STATE REP. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights, former Wheeling GOP committeeman, has the endorsement of the township organization and is considered the front runner.

However, in their statement urging support of Woods and Mrs. Macdonald, the three Republicans admit that they are not necessarily together on the Congressional choice.

"Regardless of who we support for Congress, on one thing we're united — we wholeheartedly support John Woods and Ginny Macdonald for Con-Con," the statement said.

"We've lived under the 1870 Constitution for 100 years; maybe we'll have to live under the 1970 Constitution for another 100 years. It becomes awfully important who is going to draft the new Constitution."

Woods and Mrs. Macdonald both have the endorsement of the Regular Wheeling Township GOP Organization, plus a handful of other endorsements.

Mrs. Macdonald, former Cook County GOP committeewoman, has been endorsed by the County GOP organization, the Better Government Association, local township GOP organizations and the Chicago Tribune.

WOODS, FORMER mayor of Arlington Heights, also has the Better Government Association endorsement and the endorsements of the Chicago Sun-Times and Chicago Daily News.

Woods and Mrs. Macdonald are among 16 candidates seeking the Third Senatorial District's two delegate seats.

The number of candidates will be pared to four in next Tuesday's open primary, and the four winners will run in the Nov. 18 general election.

Con-Con opens in Springfield Dec. 8.

Cannon Adds 3 To Campaign

Three people have been added to the staff of Douglas R. Cannon of Mount Prospect, Con-Con candidate for the delegate seat from the Third Senatorial District.

Cannon announced this week that Janice Turner of Elk Grove Village will head his Elk Grove Township teen volunteers committee; Mrs. Pat Bray of Mount Prospect will head the women's committee and be campaign coffee coordinator; and Gregg Insolia of Mount Prospect will be chairman of his college campaign committee.

Cannon is one of 16 candidates seeking the two seats from this district at the convention. A primary election next Tuesday will reduce the number to four, and the two winners will be elected Nov. 18. The convention opens in Springfield Dec. 8.

MISS TURNER, a senior at Elk Grove

High School, has been a Sunday school teacher and choir member at the United Presbyterian Church of Elk Grove. She also has been a volunteer worker at St. Alexius Hospital and worked in the 1966 campaign for Jim Gibson, Elk Grove Village trustee.

Mrs. Bray is president of the Esther Circle of the Lutheran Woman's Missionary League at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Mount Prospect.

She also is branch secretary of the Aid Association of Lutherans and a member of the St. Paul blood donor's committee.

Insolia is a graduate of Prospect High School and a student at John J. Pershing College in Nebraska. He is a member of the student senate, the Young Republican's Club and is editor of the campus newspaper. He plans to enter law school following graduation next year.

He Won't Sell Campaign

Yale Roe, GOP congressional candidate, has put out a "not for sale" sign for his 13th Congressional District.

Roe placed a classified ad in a suburban newspaper, reading:

"Not for Sale. The 13th District Congressional Seat. Not for $75,000. Not for $80,000. Not even for $100,000. For further information, contact Yale Roe, candidate for Congress, 328-3010."

"When I realized that candidates were spending up to $100,000 each for this campaign, and that some were spending so much money that they would not even reveal their expenditures, I thought it was about time to tell them that this district simply isn't for sale," he said, explaining his advertisement.

"We all know that the turn-over of homes in our area proceeds at quite a remarkable pace. But buying the entire district is going a little too far," Roe said.

"What is even more interesting, is that virtually none of the excessive spending is directed at informing the voters," he declared.

"There are fancy campaign headquarters, matches and bats, and all other paraphernalia. But what is spent to tell the voter where the candidates stand?"

"Even the advertising is essentially campaigning-by-intimidation, a compilation of supporters' names whose presence in a candidate's camp is supposed to encourage other voters to follow suit," he challenged.

"If so much money is to be spent, you would think at least some significant amount would be spent on ads and brochures clearly spelling out candidates' positions. The fact, however, is that we've seen pitifully little of this."

Roe said that he has spent $12,000 to date, half of which was for three editorial-type ads delineating his stands on major issues.

"I predict," Roe continued, "that at least one candidate will end up using television 'spots' on Chicago TV stations. He referred to Joseph Mathewson, a former news broadcaster."

Roe, a 20-year veteran of the broadcasting business, said that such commercials would cost approximately $2,000 each.

Schlickman To Be At Fair and Expo

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights, Republican candidate for the 13th District Congressional seat, will concentrate this week's campaign on the Northwest Suburban Fair and Exposition at Arlington Park.

Schlickman will spend most of his time today through Sunday greeting the public at the fair.

MONDAY, SCHLICKMAN was at the General American Transportation Research Center in Niles in the early morning and he moved on to a blitz of Precinct 2 in Palatine Township. That afternoon he was in Elk Grove Precinct 28 and at the Golf and Glenview commuter stations. Schlickman attended the Mount Prospect Junior Women's Club candidate night Monday night.

Schlickman was at the Mount Prospect train station yesterday and attended a coffee at the home of Mrs. James Mallon, 29 N. Donald, Arlington Heights that morning. That afternoon, Schlickman and the "Schlick Chicks" were in Northbrook for a bumper sticker push and at a coffee at the John Etchingshams, 518 Westover Lane, Schaumburg.

The Way We See It

Woods, Schroeder

Tuesday's primary election will narrow the field of candidates for delegate to the Illinois Constitutional Convention. Sixteen candidates will be on the primary ballot in the Third District covering Northwest Cook County. Four will emerge from the primary, and the two winners will be picked in the final election Nov. 18.

The Con-Con race has been largely overshadowed by the special race for 13th District congressman, which has also attracted a large field of candidates. The result has been a great deal of voter confusion and uncertainty over the qualifications and backgrounds of the candidates.

To help familiarize voters with the candidates, Paddock Publications recently published a series of five full pages of reports. These were based on extensive interviews with each candidate involving several members of our staff.

Our recommendations are based heavily on the conversations we had with candidates during those interviews and the appraisals which emerged. Five areas of comparison were weighed:

- Experience in government, politics or Con-Con preliminaries;
- General approach to the constitution and its function;
- General approach to the convention;
- Response to the issues we raised; and
- Familiarity with the present constitution.

Based on these criteria, we believe five of the 16 candidates are well qualified to serve as delegates to the convention: Mrs. Mary J. Carlson of Prospect Heights, Samuel A. LaSusa of Barrington, Mrs. Virginia B. Macdonald of Arlington Heights, Mrs. Madeline Schroeder of Arlington Heights and John G. Woods of Arlington Heights.

Two of these candidates are outstanding, are potentially among the best candidates in the state, and for that reason we recommend the election of John G. Woods and Mrs. Madeline Schroeder.

Woods is well versed in the needs of local government bodies in the metropolitan area. He served as mayor of the Village of Arlington Heights from 1961 to 1969, providing outstanding community leadership during that time. He has served as president of the Northwest Municipal Conference and on the executive committee of the Cook County Council of Governments. In the political arena, he is a former executive committee member of the Wheeling Township Republican organization and has been active in the campaigns of Sen. Charles H. Percy and Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

Woods is a strong proponent of municipal home rule, permitting more decisions to be made on the local level by local officials. An attorney, he favors revision of the judicial article, preferably along the lines of the Missouri plan, to more effectively isolate the judiciary from politics.

He favors development of a broad, general constitution, although he advocates a constitutional ceiling on the state's new income tax.

Mrs. Schroeder is probably best versed on the structure and workings of state constitutions and the upcoming convention. She has been involved in the League of Women Voters for 15 years, serving as local president, member of the board of directors, local Con-Con chairman, member of the board of directors of the county League unit and chairman of the county League's Inter-governmental Relations and Coordinated Planning Committee. She wrote the chapter on inter-governmental relations in the Illinois Voters Handbook.

She has served as vice chairman of the Third District Citizens Committee for Con-Con, the group which helped promote passage of the Con-Con call last November, and Mrs. Schroeder was subsequently honored by the Union Club as one of the civic leaders responsible for passage of the Con-Con call.

She favors a short, broad constitution with a strong local government article that will clearly define relationships between state and local government. Like Woods, she favors the Missouri plan, annual sessions and minority representation. She favors substantial shortening of the ballot, with a strong governor.

Among the other qualified candidates, Mrs. Carlson is a member of the state commission for a Constitutional Convention and the Third District Citizens for Con-Con and the Illinois Advisory Committee on Education.

She is well versed on the need for constitutional review and the operation of Con-Con.

LaSusa is experienced as village attorney for Wood Dale and Weston and as an assistant state's attorney. He is particularly well acquainted with the problems of local governments in downstate counties like DuPage, where he has served, but is also familiar with Cook County problems.

Mrs. Macdonald is well versed in the issues involved in Con-Con. She has previously made her mark in voluntary political activity, as Cook County GOP committeewoman, Wheeling Township GOP committeewoman, and 1968 chairman of the Illinois women's campaign for Senator Dirksen. Her general responses on issues were similar to those expressed by other candidates; however, she has vowed more strongly than any other candidate to stay uncommitted on issues and open minded. During her years of political work she has developed a tremendous capacity for listening to other people's problems, and would carry this into the Con-Con, which she views as something of a jury hearing testimony on the needs of government. Unfortunately, this leaves voters with a less clear view of how she would represent them on major state issues.

The campaign attracted a number of other candidates, all dedicated to better government in Illinois. We feel each of the 16 individuals who have given much of their personal time to run for this office, whose only purpose is improvement of government, deserves to be congratulated and thanked for his efforts.

We Need Their Talents

Spotlight:

'Visionary' Or Realist?

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Wheeling is giving the village manager form of government a second chance, and the outlook is good.

The cause of all this change of heart is Matthew Golden, the new village manager who has taken the village by storm during his first two weeks on the job.

AMONG THE INNER village family of employees, active volunteers, relatives and elected officials, the talk is about Golden: his approach to running the village and how it seems that Wheeling is going to stop looking like the country cousin of the more developed villages in the Northwest suburban area.

And most of the comments seem to be pats on the back for what Golden has done so far in the village.

Golden came to Wheeling Sept. 1 from a professional consultant firm in Chicago.

His background has been a varied one. He was graduated from a seminary before attending the University of Connecticut where he majored in sociology and psychology. In his job with the professional consultant firm, he spent two years in Jordan evaluating the government there.

Matthew Golden

dan evaluating the government there.

HE AND HIS WIFE Anne and their daughter currently live in Evanston, but they plan to move to Wheeling early in October.

Golden strikes many people as a visionary. He talks often about long range planning and what the village will have to do to avoid pitfalls as it grows.

High on his list of priorities is an evaluation and possible reorganization of the village's personnel system. One thing he has emphasized is that the village's services must "keep up" with Wheeling's expanding population.

Perhaps this approach of preparedness will succeed where the first village manager's philosophy — dealing with problems only after they arose — seemed to fail.

Despite his many long-range and large-scale plans, Golden appears to realize that the little things are important too. He talks about how he would like to see the village prohibit developers from uprooting any of the village's already scarce trees for construction purposes.

CONCLUSIONS ON his effectiveness as a village manager and perhaps on the future of Wheeling will have to wait a while until he gets acquainted with the various aspects of the village and has a chance to get some of his ideas into action.

Meanwhile, however, Golden seems to strike people as a "nice guy," somebody who they could work with in solving village problems.

Which is, after all, what a village manager should be.

Book Study in Rebellion

by MARIANNE BRETSNYDER

People wonder why college students can't just go to school and be quiet about it.

One reason, as James Kunen says in his book "The Strawberry Statement," is that going to college is dangerous, it teaches you to think.

Kunen was a student at Columbia during riots and building takeovers, and writes about this, among other things.

THE SUBTITLE on the book is "Diary of a College Revolutionary." It should be required reading for college presidents.

Kunen tells the story from the students' side, and what he felt and thought and did during the disturbances at Columbia. He seems like a guy you'd like to know.

He doesn't have everything figured out, and he shows that at universities, like everywhere else, nothing is all black or all white.

In writing about himself, he probably speaks for many students. He says he hates what America is, but loves what it could be. This is the opposite pole of the love it or leave it school, for Kunen loves the idea of what America could be, the America a generation of college students has been raised to believe in.

He points out that we've been raised to believe that we should do what we believe is right, and to not fight for our beliefs is wrong.

THIS HE CREDITS to Walt Disney, in a half-funny, half-serious manner. Heroes in Disney movies did what they felt the right thing was, no matter what anyone else thought.

So students who perceive a social injustice think they are right in trying to do something about it. And other people think they are right in trying to preserve law and order.

Some students aren't trying to destroy society, they are trying to realize the idea of what this country can be. Which takes real concern and caring.

Something would be wrong if students weren't dissatisfied with what they see. With all the education and prosperity to day's students have it would be sad if they didn't want to make things better for other people.

BUT ONE OF the most important things about Kunen's book is he shows the human side of a college revolutionary. A student with parents who worry about him, a human being who is sometimes confused, and worried and able to laugh at himself.

It shows a person who expects a great deal from his country and the people who comprise it. He could be dismissed as an idealist, or he could be praised for being able to believe ideals can really work.

Whether people agree with him or not, reading his book may change some people's minds, or make them re-examine what they think.

Who knows, he may truly be the all-American boy.

Who's Pushing?

In regard to Geoffrey Mehl's column, "Liberal Excesses Pushing Pendulum,"

If liberals, democrats, John Kennedy, civil rights, morality, brotherhood, social welfare, the left wing and revolution (change) totals "backlash," then conservatives, Republicans (including the Wheeling Township Democratic Organization), Richard Nixon, law and order, MORALITY, racism, paternalism, the right wing and stability equal "progress?"

Voluntary Citizen Action Is Best

by MARY REIFSCHEIDER

A seven year old Hoffman Estates boy nearly lost his life two weeks ago because his family lives on Apricot Street — a street that lacks storm sewers and other public improvements.

The incident happened during the heavy rains on Sept. 5. The child and his friends were fascinated by a whirlpool at the foot of a culvert. Kids being kids, they weren't thinking about their own safety.

THEY WERE throwing paper and other objects into the swirling water when the young boy lost his footing and fell into the whirlpool. The gushing water sent the boy through the dog-legged culvert, and the fast thinking child grabbed onto a branch. His friends pulled him to safety.

The boy was cut and bruised, but not seriously injured. "I thank God right now that he was able to go through there and survive," the boy's father told the Hoffman Estates Village Board.

The Hoffman Estates board responded to the father's plea to prevent a recurrence. Trustees and Village Pres. Fred Downey and the village engineer inspected the culvert last week. The board is awaiting a recommendation from the public works department.

THE ULTIMATE solution to the problem, though, must come from the residents living on Apricot Street and the other streets in Parcel A.

The subdivision, which includes the first homes built in Hoffman Estates, needs storm sewers, completed streets, curbs and gutters. To get these public improvements, the residents living there must approve special assessments.

The improvements will cost a few thousand dollars per home. A majority of the residents living in Parcel A would have to be in favor of the improvements before the village could proceed with voluntary improvements.

Special assessments generally aren't too popular with property owners. A figure like $4,000 or $5,000 scares them, even though the special assessment is amortized over several years and they don't have to pay it all in one lump sum.

NEARBY HANOVER Park has the same problem with the old section of the village known as Grant's Highway subdivision. Residents living there not only lack improved streets and storm sewers, but municipal water and sanitary sewer lines.

Engineering studies have been made for Hanover Park's old section showing approximate costs for the public improvements and the residents have balked when prices were announced.

Poor drainage plagues both the area in Hoffman Estates and the one in Hanover Park. But so far, the property owners have chosen to complain to village officials after heavy rains and resist the solution offered by special assessments.

A child nearly drowning in a culvert should tell residents that it's time to stop seeing dollar signs and start looking toward the ultimate solution.

Who Leads 13th? Confusion!

by MARTHA MOSER
A News Analysis

"Who is ahead in the 13th District congressional race?" is a frequently asked question.

As everyone realizes, in the nine-man Republican primary contest, it is hard to keep track of what candidates are doing, let alone who is doing it best. Even subtracting perennial candidate Lar "America First" Daly of Chicago, the race is complicated.

But there are certain guidelines people can use to score the candidates in picking a winner. The one who emerges triumphant in the Oct. 7 GOP primary will face the single Democratic candidate Edward Warman in the Nov. 25 general election.

Lets set up a five-category scorecard on the candidates.

FIRST OF ALL, it is logical to assume that the person with the most support from party organizations would be ahead. After all, it's the regulars who get the votes out for the organization's candidate choice.

This would put in the forefront Sam Young of Glenview, who has been endorsed by three township organizations—Northfield, Elk Grove and Schaumburg—carrying a total 140 precincts.

Others who are endorsed are John Nimrod in Niles Township with 119 precincts, Eugene Schlickman in Wheeling Township with 89 precincts, Alan Johnston in New Trier Township with 65 precincts and Philip Crane in Palatine Township with 41 precincts.

BUT THERE IS evidence the organizations do not have the full commitment of their captains for some of the candidates endorsed.

Captains not going along with their committeemen's endorsements are unprecedently working on the sly for other candidates, sitting the election out or halfheartedly sending out letters. Whatever, it appears, to date, not much precinct work is being done.

Young, though, is claiming he has picked up substantial support in Evanston Township, which has not endorsed. Young also has said he will have all district precincts covered before election day.

The only candidate to match that claim is Joseph Mathewson, whose supporters say he will have every precinct worked, hiring people to go door to door to identify the vote.

So, in awarding points for organization support, divide each endorsed candidate's number of precincts in half. Divide a half by eight again, and sprinkle in some half-points for Mathewson's "non-professional" workers.

A SECOND consideration for picking a winner is figuring out who is most qualified to represent one of the wealthiest and best educated districts in the country. If experience is the appeal, who has this?

Considering legislative background for congressman, one would have to go with Johnston and Schlickman, both state representatives. Johnston has been in the Illinois House two years longer than Schlickman but Schlickman has the benefit of serving in local government.

Schlickman was Arlington Heights trustee five years before being elected representative in 1964. Johnston was elected a representative in 1962.

GERALD MARKS also has legislative experience, although in single purpose government. He was a trustee two years on the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD), serving from 1966 to 1968.

Nimrod has government experience at township, county and state levels, but other than being township supervisor, his contribution has been to the executive, not legislative, branch. He was assistant director of the Illinois Department of Revenue until he resigned to run for Congress. He was an administrative assistant to Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie when Ogilvie was Cook County board president.

Young's participation in government is confined to the executive branch and he has been off the active roll for 10 years. He was assistant secretary to state from 1956 to 1958 and was Illinois securities commissioner from 1953 to 1956.

MATHEWSON HAS brief experience in the executive branch of government, having served five months as Gov. Ogilvie's press secretary.

Mathewson, however, has the unique experience of having observed the workings of Congress, covering it for a time as a newspaper reporter.

Of course, in this category, candidates Crane and Yale Roe get minus points for no previous participation.

A THIRD CATEGORY of leadership potential will be more difficult to judge but it can be gauged somewhat, again, by past performance.

Johnston was chairman of the Illinois House's special constitutional convention committee in the last General Assembly. He was chairman of the legislative committee which investigated the Metropolitan Sanitary District in 1967 and 1968.

Schlickman is vice chairman of the House municipalities committee and is chairman of a subcommittee of the House appropriations committee.

NIMROD WAS elected two terms as Niles Township supervisor. He is director and vice president of Township Officials of Illinois and is president and director of Township Officials of Cook County.

Marks was chairman of the MSD engineering committee during his service there.

Of course, the three committeemen in the race, Young, Nimrod and Schlickman, get equal points for election to this post.

Turning to personal appeal, glamour, charisma and aura of excitement, highest points would have to go to the youngest candidates, Crane, Roe and Mathewson.

NO LIST is complete without a category "others." In this area, put position on the ballot and give Nimrod points for being on top and Mathewson points for being on the bottom. Give Johnston points for being on the eastern side of the district and Schlickman points for being on the western side. Give Crane points for being right of Republican center and Roe points for being left of center.

Score one-half point for each of the last-minute influences that candidates will be pulling from their campaign bags-of-tricks.

Following all this, one might figure out the winner. But as the scorecard adds up now, it is a very complicated race.

New Signal Scheduled

Traffic control signals are scheduled to be put up soon by the Cook County Highway Department at the intersection of Arlington Heights and Biesterfeld roads, according to Elk Grove Village officials.

The 45 mile per hour speed limit is also scheduled to be reduced to 35 mph on Biesterfeld.

Sure Palate Pleasers

Green-Gold Casserole, Angel Food Dessert

by LOIS SEILER

"The Green and the Gold" does not designate the colors of Mrs. H. Carl Recknagel's alma mater; rather it is the name of one of her favorite casseroles.

However, more than the name catches the attention of anyone who tastes this dish; it has a combination of flavors that impresses the palate as well.

"I always make this for guests because everyone loves it," ZoeAnn Recknagel said.

Basically a rice casserole, it is golden in color from a roll of Nippy cheese and cheese soup, while the green is supplied by chopped broccoli. Mushrooms, onion and garlic powder give added zest.

TURNUED INTO a large, flat casserole, "The Green and the Gold" is baked for a mere 15 minutes with French fried onions sprinkled over the top.

"There is only a slight undertone of garlic," this Arlington Heights cook explained, "as all the ingredients are well blended to produce a very mellow flavor."

"It can be made well ahead of time — as much as a day in advance," she said, "and it always turns out well."

"You can stretch it by adding more chopped broccoli, or by placing broccoli spears on top," she added.

This rice dish makes an excellent accompaniment for steak, roast beef or her tempting baked pork chops.

SHE ALSO SERVES with it a tossed salad and hot, crusty garlic bread.

ZoeAnn calls her pork chops the "never fail" variety, because they never fail to be a success.

She makes this by a recipe passed on to her by her mother. The chops are breaded first, browned well and baked. ZoeAnn takes care not to disturb the browned crust on the chops when she handles them.

Because they're baked in a roaster with water the chops create a pan liquid that is used to make a marvelous gravy. The chops may even be made a day ahead and reheated in the gravy.

"EVERYONE IS always impressed with the tenderness of these chops," this good cook commented, "and their appealing flavor."

With the hearty pork chops and rice casserole, ZoeAnn suggests something light and frothy to top off the meal, such as her Angel Food Dessert.

"This recipe, too, is foolproof," she said,

"as nothing can possibly go wrong with it."

She uses a store bought angel food cake as the base and cuts it into one-inch cubes.

"It's really not necessary to bake your own for this recipe," she said.

THE CAKE CUBES are blended into a mixture of melted marshmallows, concentrated orange juice, gingerale and whipped cream. Chilled in a large pan, it is cut in squares to serve.

Pretty in appearance, ZoeAnn garnishes each piece with fresh or frozen strawberries. It is light and refreshing, with a tangy flavor from the orange juice and gingerale.

Not only is this a delicious dessert for a heavy meal, but it is elegant for bridge parties as well.

It also makes a big hit with her sons, Tom, 12; Ken, 10, and Jimmy, 8.

In addition to her homemaking duties, ZoeAnn is employed as a part-time teacher in District 59. Participating in a new pilot program, she teaches an all-girl kindergarten.

"BEING THE MOTHER of all boys, this is a novel experience and a very enjoyable one for me," ZoeAnn smilingly remarked.

She also likes to refinish furniture in her spare time and participates in swim nights at the YMCA with her family.

THE GREEN AND THE GOLD CASSEROLE

- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 can (10½ ounces) cheese soup
- 1 roll (6 ounces) Nippy cheese (soft, sharp cheddar)
- ½ teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 can (8 ounces) mushroom stems and pieces
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen chopped broccoli, cooked and drained
- 3 cups hot cooked rice
- 1 can (3 ounces) French fried onions

Cook the onion in butter until soft but not brown. Add soup, cheese and garlic powder. Cook over low heat, stirring until cheese melts. Add mushrooms plus their liquid, broccoli and rice.

Turn into a shallow, greased casserole, 9 by 13 inches, and top with French fried onions. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes or until hot and bubbly. Serves 8.

NEVER FAIL PORK CHOPS

- Pork chops (1 or 2 per person)
- 1 beaten egg
- ¼ cup milk
- Salt and pepper to taste
- Bread crumbs

Combine egg, milk and seasonings. Increase the quantities if more is needed.

Dip chops into egg mixture and then into fine bread crumbs. Brown in hot shortening on both sides until golden brown. Lift them out carefully with spatula and tongs, trying not to disturb crust. Place in roasting pan. Salt and pepper chops.

Add water to the drippings in the frying pan. Scrape up browned bits and pour over chops. Add more water if needed to make it ½-inch deep in roaster. Cover pan.

Place roaster in a pre-heated 325-degree oven. Bake 45 minutes, adding more water during the baking period, if needed. Test with a fork to see if done. Bake longer, if necessary.

Remove pork chops from roaster, cover with foil and place in oven to keep warm while preparing gravy.

Blend a small amount of flour and water together and add to liquid in roaster. Season with salt and pepper. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick and smooth.

If pork chops are prepared in advance, they may be reheated in the gravy.

ANGEL FOOD DESSERT

- 1 package (10½ ounces) miniature marshmallows
- ½ cup thawed, undiluted, frozen concentrated orange juice
- 1 cup ginger ale
- 2 cups heavy cream, whipped
- 1 large, packaged angel food cake
- Fresh or frozen strawberries

Heat marshmallows and orange juice in top of double boiler until marshmallows are melted, stirring constantly. Add ginger ale. Chill until partially thickened. Fold in whipped cream.

Cut angel food cake into one-inch cubes. Fold into cream mixture. Turn into pan 11 by 14 by 2½ inches. Chill for several hours or overnight.

Cut in squares and garnish with fresh or frozen strawberries. Serves 16.

BLONDE TOFFEE BROWNIES

- 1½ cups sifted flour
- 2 tsp. baking powder
- ½ tsp. salt
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- ½ cup (packed) brown sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 1 cup crushed chocolate-covered English Toffee bars

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cream butter or margarine. Add both sugars and cream well. Add eggs and vanilla; beat until fluffy. Blend in dry ingredients. Stir in crushed candy. Spread over bottom of well-greased 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until done, about 30 minutes.

When cool, cut into bars 3 inches long and 1 inch wide. If desired, bars may be frosted when cool with a white or chocolate butter frosting, before cutting. Sprinkle more candy bits on top. Yield: about 3 dozen bars.

together until creamy. Sift together, flour, soda and salt. Add to creamed mixture alternately with milk, beginning and ending with milk. Stir in oats and candy. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto ungreased cookie sheets. Bake in pre-heated oven (350 degrees F.) 12 to 15 minutes.

Raisin-Nut Drops: Omit candy in above recipe. Sift 1 teaspoon cinnamon and 1/8 teaspoon cloves together with dry ingredients. Stir in ½ cup raisins and ½ cup chopped nuts with oats.

Coconut-Almond Drops: Omit candy in above recipe. Substitute ½ teaspoon almond extract for vanilla. Stir in ¼ cup flaked or shredded coconut with dates.

Always a favorite with children — and lots of grown-ups as well — are brownies. This recipe is different. It uses chocolate-covered toffee bars for an unusual flavor.

Blonde Toffee Brownies are rich and moist and need no frosting, but if your family has a real "sweet tooth," the brownies can be frosted with white or chocolate butter frosting and more bits of candy sprinkled on top when they have cooled.

SMILES RING the table as Mrs. H. Carl Recknagel of Arlington Heights serves her sons, Jim, Tom and Ken, a delicious Angel Food Dessert. Made with chunks of angel food cake, it has a tangy flavor from orange juice and gingerale and is very light and refreshing.

Hello Hostess

Treat Your Club To Profits

by MARY KAY MARSH

Thirty days hath September . . . and they all whiz by before you know it! So while we hate to spoil our reputation as charter members of the National Procrastinator's Club, we won't put off until tomorrow what we should tell you today about a Halloween trick or treat card party that's sure to bring good fortune and profits to your club or organization.

Now is the time to line up your committees and make the necessary arrangements. As with any successful benefit bridge, you'll need a place to have your party . . . tables and cards . . . tallies, pencils and score pads . . . decorations . . . refreshments . . . a program . . . prizes . . . good publicity . . . hardworking committees . . . and, above all, members who'll sell tickets and an idea that's easy to sell.

HOROSCOPES 'N HALLOWEEN are your timely ideas here. Use signs of the Zodiac for your decorations. Plan a Zodiac Fashion Show, with members as models. Consult the popular horoscope booklets to write a commentary as new as now. Call your fashion show "Signs of the Times," and relate the characteristics associated with each sign to the clothes shown and the activities for which they're planned.

For your door prizes, line up as many zodiac items as possible. You'll find everything from paper weights and shopping bags to scarves and stationery. There are even zodiac record albums available, zodiac ashtrays and zodiac jewelry, not to mention a zodiac bedspread that, as the ad says, "borders on the occult." Your master of ceremonies can work out a bit of horoscope commentary, as in the fashion show, to go with any donated door prizes that don't exactly fit in with your theme. Have some "trick" items, too, such as "14-Carat Jewelry" (a carrot cottage), a "Bewitching Surprise" (a broom) or "£1,000 In Cash" (play money).

For good "Goblins" serve Devil's Food Cake with coffee or tea. Use orange and black as your color scheme for a Halloween theme in tablecloths, paper napkins, tallies, flowers and candles. Ask your helpers to wear Halloween costumes. Hang masks here and there for effect.

CENTER EACH TABLE with a Trick or Treat Bag that doubles as the table prize. Make these from ordinary paper bags, lunch bag size. Cut pumpkins from orange construction paper. Paste a smiling jack-o'-lantern on the front of each bag; paste a frowning one on the back.

Pack your sacks with advertising specialties and samples donated for your cause, plus other small items that you buy or make. Fill most of your bags with "treats." But some at least should contain jokes, magic puzzles and assorted gag items as "tricks." Fold over the top of each bag and staple it closed.

Any benefit card party takes work and planning, but this one's about as easy as any we know. And while the astrology idea can stand on its own, it pairs up beautifully with the traditional Halloween theme.

In fact, you'll say it's no trick at all to treat your club or cause to a substantial profit in dollars . . . and your members and their guests to a bewitching evening!

SWITCHCRAFT: While we've presented this "Trick or Treat" theme as a "fun-with-funds" benefit event, you'll find that many of these ideas are just as adaptable for your neighborhood bridge group. If it will be your turn to play hostess in October, do at least make up the Trick or Treat Bags as table prizes for just "the girls" or for your own couples club.

For a slightly fancier version, paste a plain orange paper pumpkin on one side of each bag. Draw in black lines for the ribs and label it "Trick or Treat." For the other side, make a coquette of a pumpkin with black construction paper features and fringed paper eyelashes. Staple a wisp of black net across her forehead to add a flirty touch.

Make up two larger bags for your major prizes. Fill one with tricks for "booby" and the other with treats for the player who has the highest score.

Mostly for Men

by CHARLES E. FLYNN

I served a chutney dish to guests whom I thought were knowledgeable about food, only to find that none was familiar with the preparation or its uses.

Most who had heard of chutney thought it to be English. While chutney is widely used in England, having been introduced by traders who brought recipes back from India, it definitely is not English.

Chutney, or chutnee, as it may be spelled, is Hindu in origin and has been anglicized from the Hindustani "catni," meaning a warm or spicy pickle. Its recipes are as many as you'll find for home-made pickles in America since everyone who makes chutney has his own special formula.

Basically, it involves fruit, vegetables, vinegar and ginger. To those who like it hot, frequently added ingredients are chilies and mustard.

CHUTNEY IS BEST made in some quantity, then canned in small jars either half-pint or pint size for convenience in use. To make approximately 4 quarts, pare and core 12 tart apples. Cut 3 red and 3 green mango peppers into halves and remove seeds.

Put the apples and peppers through the food chopper using a medium blade, along with 12 ripe tomatoes peeled, 6 medium sized onions, 1 cup diced celery, 1 pound seedless raisins and 2 ounces of crystallized ginger.

Combine the ground fruits and vegetables with 2 quarts cider vinegar, 3 cups sugar, 2 teaspoons salt. Bring to a boil, then reduce heat and cook slowly for 1 hour until the chutney is thick and clear.

Fill sterile jars and seal as you would any canned fruit.

table as sauce for either beef or ham and combined with cheese makes excellent hors d'oeuvres. For English tea sandwiches prepare 1½-inch bread rounds, thinly sliced and toasted on one side. Spread untoasted side lightly with butter. Combine ½ cup chutney with 1 cup grated parmesan cheese and spread onto buttered rounds. Place under the broiler until cheese melts. Sprinkle with crumbed bits of bacon.

To add some spice to celery stalk appetizers, blend 2 tablespoons soft butter with 1 cup grated aged cheddar cheese, ½ cup chutney and ½ teaspoon dry mustard. Mix thoroughly and fill single celery stalks, then cut into small pieces. Keep refrigerated until served.

You don't have to make your own chutney, since several good varieties can be purchased in super markets. Either way, try some for variety.

Good Sandwich For Any Time

Here's a sandwich you can have almost any time if the convenience shelf holds cans of deviled ham and the refrigerator furnishes English muffins, cream cheese and mayonnaise.

Split English muffins, then toast. Top with cream cheese (three ounces) mixed with one-fourth cup each of finely chopped onion and green stuffed olives, then spread with deviled ham. Top each with a slice of tomato. Spread lightly with mayonnaise and broil for a few minutes until heated through.

For Snacktime: Cookies

Back to school time is cookie time whether you pack your youngster's favorites into his lunchbox or have them ready to eat along with a glass of milk or other beverage after school.

Here is a basic oatmeal cookie batter that can be dressed up in a variety of ways — with chocolate bits, raisins, nuts or almond extract and coconut. Take your choice.

CANDY DOT OATMEAL DROPS (Makes 3 dozen)

- ½ cup shortening, soft
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup milk
- 1 cup rolled oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked)
- 1 cup multicolored candy coated milk chocolate pieces

Heat oven to moderate (350 degrees F.). Beat shortening, sugar, egg and vanilla together until creamy. Sift together, flour, soda and salt. Add to creamed mixture alternately with milk, beginning and ending with milk. Stir in oats and candy. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto ungreased cookie sheets. Bake in pre-heated oven (350 degrees F.) 12 to 15 minutes.

Raisin-Nut Drops: Omit candy in above recipe. Sift 1 teaspoon cinnamon and 1/8 teaspoon cloves together with dry ingredients. Stir in ½ cup raisins and ½ cup chopped nuts with oats.

Coconut-Almond Drops: Omit candy in above recipe. Substitute ½ teaspoon almond extract for vanilla. Stir in ¼ cup flaked or shredded coconut with dates.

Always a favorite with children — and lots of grown-ups as well — are brownies. This recipe is different. It uses chocolate-covered toffee bars for an unusual flavor.

Blonde Toffee Brownies are rich and moist and need no frosting, but if your family has a real "sweet tooth," the brownies can be frosted with white or chocolate butter frosting and more bits of candy sprinkled on top when they have cooled.

Have Sandwich Makings Ready

There are so many occasions when teenagers go for snacks — after school, before the game, when the crowd gets together. If you are a homemaker with a family of insatiable young appetites, you should be sure that your family is eating wholesome between-meal foods.

It's a good idea to set aside one section of the refrigerator for "snacks only." Store delicious, easy-to-prepare treats, such as the fixings for these Chow Hound Heros. Then the hungry ones can just help themselves.

HERE'S ALL YOU have to do. Spread Hero rolls with a combination of mayonnaise and mustard; they'll stay moist in a food wrap size plastic bag. Slice meat, cheese, tomatoes and onion; store each food in individual see-through plastic bags and secure with tie band. Don't forget that leftover meat is a good snack food, too.

Chow Hound Heros are a combination of flavors that hearty appetites enjoy. You can alternate the ingredients to suit your family's tastes. It's easy to form good snack habits when you plan ahead. Plastic bags can help because food stays fresh-tasting and attractive.

CHOW HOUND HEROS (6 individual)

- 6 hero rolls (about 7-inches long)
- 1/3 cup mayonnaise
- 2 teaspoons prepared mustard
- Lettuce leaves
- 2 packages (4 oz.) hard salami (18 slices)
- 1 package (6 oz.) sliced Swiss cheese
- 2 packages (6 oz.) sliced corned beef
- 3 large tomatoes, sliced
- 2 large onions, thinly sliced

To prepare ahead of time: Split rolls lengthwise. Combine mayonnaise and mustard. Spread with mayonnaise-mustard mixture. Place rolls in food wrap size plastic bags. Wash and separate lettuce leaves. Slice salami, cheese, corned beef, tomatoes and onions. Wrap each separately in food wrap plastic bag and secure with tie band. Refrigerate.

To make Heros: On the bottom halves assemble layers as follows: lettuce leaf, 3 overlapping slices of salami, slice of cheese cut to fit, corned beef, tomato and onion slices. Cover with top bread half. Makes 6 servings.

Joan Coward Is Summer Bride

An Arlington Heights girl, Joan Coward, daughter of Mrs. John Coward, 1142 N. Dryden, became Mrs. Kenneth Newgren in a candlelight, double-ring ceremony the evening of Aug. 9 in the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights. A reception for 150 guests followed at the Des Plaines Elks Club.

Mr. Newgren, son of the Leslie Newgrens of Oak Lawn, is a graduate student in business administration at Northern Illinois University.

THE BRIDE was given away by her uncle, Robert Coward of Franklin, Ind. She wore a floor-length white organza gown embellished with venise lace at the bodice and the cuffs of the full Juliet sleeves. Her headpiece, a bow trimmed in venise lace, held an elbow-length illusion veil. She wore pearl earrings, a gift from the groom on their wedding day.

The bridal bouquet was of white roses, lilies of the valley and baby's breath.

Marilyn Born, an Arlington Heights friend, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Mrs. Gary Upp of Danville, Mrs. William Lynk of San Francisco, Stephanie Art of Urbana and Eleanor McCaw of Hillsboro, Ill., all sorority sisters of the bride.

THE BRIDE'S attendants wore floor-length light green gowns, empire-waisted with full skirts and short bell-shaped sleeves. They carried bouquets of carnations, daisies and bachelor buttons.

The mother of the bride wore a white orchid corsage on the beaded yoke of her blue dress and had matching accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Newgren

The groom's mother wore a pink dress with beaded collar and chiffon drape and had matching accessories. She also wore a white orchid corsage.

Best man was Donald Newgren, brother of the groom, from Syracuse, N.Y. Steve Newman of Decatur; Roy Moats of Bedford, Ind., and Robert Crafton, Country Club Hills, Ill., served as ushers, as did a cousin of the groom, John Bergstrom of Chicago.

THE NEW Mrs. Newgren is a graduate of Arlington High School and the University of Illinois. She is currently an assistant editor on the staff of Northern Illinois University.

Mr. Newgren was graduated from Fenger High School and Blackburn College. He is working on his master's and has a management assistantship at Northern.

The couple is living in DeKalb following a honeymoon in the Lake of the Ozarks.

They Chose a Florida Honeymoon

A college couple spent their honeymoon in Florida following festivities that began in Our Lady, Mother of Church, Norridge. Louisiana-born Randolph Wayne Haydel, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Wayne Haydel, 963 S. Waverly, Mount Prospect took Judith Christine Fischer of Norridge for his bride on Aug. 23 during a double-ring ceremony.

Judith, the daughter of Mrs. Christian Fischer and the late Mr. Fischer, wore a bridal gown of silk organza appliqued with flowers, top and bottom. A flowing train was featured on the full length, long sleeved gown. The outfit was enhanced by a finger-tip veil which fell from a jeweled-covered pill box head piece. Her bouquet was of white butterfly orchids, lily of the valley, studded with hot pink roses at the center. Her grandfather, Edwin Flor of Chicago escorted the bride to the altar.

MAID OF HONOR was Carla Gubitz, a college roommate from Chicago. Her hot pink faille gown featuring a cape-effect bodice was accented by live flowers in her hair and matching bouquet of yellow and white daisies.

Pam Laube of Cary, Debbie James of Park Ridge and Mrs. Robert Regan of Arlington, Va., all friends, served as bridesmaids. Their dresses were identical to the maid of honor. Four-year-old Christine McCoy, a Mount Prospect cousin of the bride, wore a mini-version of the hot pink formal when she served as flower girl. A nephew of the groom, J. Scott Kroy, age 3½, from Farmington, Mich., was ring bearer.

Mother of the bride received at the reception in the Elmwood House, Elmwood Park, in a floor-length chartreuse chiffon dress with gardenia corsage. At church she wore a short aqua silk dress with matching pill box. The groom's mother was dressed in a blue organza dress appliqued with white and matching coat and hat. She changed for the evening to a pink lace and chiffon formal gown.

Best man was Steve Williamson, a friend from Nashville, Ind. Walter L. Haydel, a brother and James Springer, a friend, both from Mount Prospect, and Bob Badger, a Chicago cousin of the bride, all served as ushers.

MR. HAYDEL WAS a 1965 Forest View High School graduate. He is now a senior majoring in biology at the University of Illinois, where he met his bride, an elementary education major. She was graduated from Ridgewood High School in Norridge. He is employed by Chevrolet Motor Company, parts division.

After two weeks in Miami and Fort Myers, the couple will live on the college campus in Champaign.

An Antique Class At Pioneer Park

A 10-week antique course will begin Monday, Oct. 6, from 1:30 to 3 p.m. at Pioneer Park Fieldhouse, 500 S. Fernandez, Arlington Heights.

The lessons will be conducted by Leonard Weinzimmer, an antique appraiser who is known to many collectors and "scourgers" as "Antie-Q," the name of the house sale organization which he operates with two partners.

This fall, Len is teaching adult classes on general antique subjects at New Trier High School in Winnetka, at Arlington High School and in Chicago. He is also conducting an advanced research class covering specific categories at Central School in Glenview, in addition to the new class at Pioneer Park.

MR. WEINZIMMER will bring antiques and collectibles from his own and other midwest collections. Students may do the same.

"The real fun," he said, "is the research and detective work involved in getting all of the background and history of great-grandma's vassissit."

Further information regarding the course and registration is available from Mrs. John Hartley, 392-7721.

Sorority Activities

BETA SIGMA PHI

Xi Eta Eta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi held a "Back To School Nite" rushing party last night (Wednesday) at the home of Mrs. Peter Jones, 500 S. Cedar, Palatine. Pocket books, reading material and other items were collected at the meeting to be sent to G.I.'s in Vietnam. Mrs. Thomas Pulford is in charge of this service project.

Chapter members are also knitting for Hope School in Springfield. Mrs. Wayne Bristow, service chairman, will collect these articles at each meeting between now and Christmas.

LAMBDA DELTA chapter of Beta Sigma Phi toured Little City in Palatine last Saturday. The home, for mentally retarded children, is the chapter's major service project this year.

Last night's (Wednesday) meeting was held in the Rolling Meadows home of Mrs. Bob Krause with Mrs. Dave Dumm of Buffalo Grove as co-hostess. On the agenda was a Ritual of Jewels of Mrs. Pete Moga and Mrs. Jim Ransom, both of Palatine.

The program, "Painting the Person," featuring body painting, was given by Mrs. Tom La Cour and Mrs. Krause.

FRENCH STREET SCENES in an art display will decorate the "Fashion Fantasia" show Wednesday, Sept. 24, for Our Lady of the Wayside Woman's Club, Arlington Heights. Mrs. Andrew Turner, left, is in charge of decorations; Mrs. Bernard Moore heads ways and means; Mrs. James Sweeney is show chairman. The 8 p.m. fashion parade of ensembles from Marge's Apparel Shop takes place in Wayside's Junior High Auditorium. Tickets can be purchased from Mrs. Sweeney, 392-5452.

Dramatist Is YMCA Speaker

Sadie Stern Merel

Sadie Stern Merel, dramatic actress, will interpret Alan King's humorous book, "Anyone Who Owns His Own Home Deserves It," at the fall luncheon on Wednesday, Sept. 24, for Northwest Suburban YMCA Women's Auxiliary. The afternoon event begins at 12:30.

Mrs. Merel is known in the Chicago area as the "woman of a hundred voices." She has appeared before Chicago and suburban clubs and also in radio and television productions.

ALL 'Y' AUXILIARY members, their guests and women interested in the organization are welcome to the luncheon. Reservations can be made by calling the 'Y' office, 236-3376.

Members of the Auxiliary give regular hours of volunteer service at the YMCA and sponsor one fund-raising event each year, a winter Pancake Day. Mrs. Walter Barnett is president; Mrs. James Gallagher is chairman of the luncheon program.

50th Anniversary Pair Feted

The William Birrs, 20-year residents of Arlington Heights, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Aug. 16 at an anniversary party in the home of their only child, a daughter, and son-in-law, the Robert Hornbostels, 1231 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights.

Elisabeth and William were both born in Chicago and met while attending the same church. Married Aug. 16, 1919, they built their first home in the Belmont and Central area where they resided until moving to Arlington Heights. Mr. Birr is a retired foreman of the Chicago Screw Co.

Among the 50 relatives and friends who joined in the supper celebration were Mrs. Birr's sister, Mrs. Arthur Lincoln and Mr. Lincoln from Hayward, Wis., and Mr. Birr's brother, Arthur Birr and Mrs. Birr of Chicago.

The Birrs also have two grandchildren.

Theater Party

The Mount Prospect Woman's Club will find out if success spoils Rock Hunter when the group attends a theater party to see the George Axelrod comedy by that name Friday, Sept. 26.

Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. at Old Orchard Country Club for those who hold combination dinner-theater reservations.

Woman's club members may bring guests, and reservations will be accepted until Monday, Sept. 22. Mrs. K. Silgen, 392-1249, and Mrs. Harold Beck, CL 5-6066, are reservations chairmen.

Church Fashion Show

A fashion showing of women's children's and men's wear will be presented Sunday afternoon at St. Philip's Episcopal Church, Schubert and Wood Streets, Palatine. The show, along with a musical program and refreshments, will be featured from 3 to 5 p.m. in the church undercroft.

The public is welcome. Admission is free.

CELEBRATING THEIR 25th anniversary with a trip to Honolulu, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Heilig, 703 S. Dunton, Arlington Heights, board the SS Lurline.

It's 'Back to the Ranch' For Nurses' Fund-Raiser

It's "back to the ranch time" for members of the Wheeling Buffalo Grove Nurses' Club as they are busy rounding up antiques and rummage for the club's "Ranchman Rummage Roundup Sale Days" Friday and Saturday, Oct. 3 and 4, at the Community Room of the Ranchman Shopping Center in Buffalo Grove.

Hours are from 1 to 9 p.m. Friday, and from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday.

Highlight of the sale days will be an auction of new used and antique items at 11 a.m. Saturday in the Ranchman Parlour center. Hot dogs and drinks for a quarter will also be on sale both days.

PROCEEDS FROM the sale will be used for nursing scholarships for area young people entering the nursing profession and for the club's hospital equipment lending closet. Nearly 2,000 has been given in nursing scholarships during the past three years.

This is the club's only fund-raising activity for the year and donations from the community are appreciated. Those wishing to donate rummage items may call the sale chairman, Mrs. Dale Stephens, at 537-0102. Mrs. Stanley Russell at 299-2649, or Mrs. Eugene Kuffel at 537-1637 for pickup.

College Romance Leads Judy Bollinger to Altar

It was while they were resident advisors at Bradley University, Peoria, that Judy Lynn Bollinger of Palatine met Edward George Sallows of Port Byron, Ill. Judy was a sophomore and Edward a junior. Their friendship developed into romance and then marriage on Aug. 9 in the First United Methodist Church of Palatine.

The bride is beginning her senior year at Bradley, and the groom is an actuary for Country Mutual Insurance Co., Bloomington, since his June graduation.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George D. Bollinger, 144 S. Ashland Ave., Palatine, is a graduate of Palatine High School. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. George E. Sallows of Port Byron.

THE COUPLE exchanged vows and rings at five in the afternoon by candlelight, with the Rev. C. Albert Chamberlin officiating. Later there was a buffet dinner and dancing for 175 guests at the Palatine Fire Hall.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an empire-styled A-line gown with a high collar, long sleeves and a chapel train. The bodice was fashioned of imported alencon lace, the skirt and train of silk organza trimmed in the lace.

An alencon lace headpiece studded with pearls held the bride's elbow-length triple veil in place, and she carried a cascade arrangement of white roses.

HER TWIN sister, Janet Lea Bollinger, was maid of honor, gowned in an empire-style dress with short puffed sleeves and a floor-length train. The color was corn-flower blue. The bouquet carried by Miss Bollinger was composed of miniature carnations with white centers and edges tinted in cornflower blue. She wore a matching blue bow headpiece and mairne veil.

There were three bridesmaids and a junior bridesmaid, all gowned exactly as the maid of honor and carrying white and blue tinted carnations. Mrs. Roger Lybeck, Naperville, Sharon Bleser, Palatine, and Shirley Gabinski, Bloomington, were the bridesmaids, and Pamela Sallows, sister of the groom, was junior bridesmaid.

JAMES SALLOWS, his brother, served as best man, and guests were seated by William Kaveney, Palatine, David Votaw, Aurora, and Victor Johnson and Alan Struss, both of Port Byron.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Bollinger chose a light pink shantung ensemble with matching accessories and orchid corsage. Mrs. Sallows was attired in aqua with white accessories and an orchid corsage.

The newlyweds honeymooned in Canada and the eastern states before going to Normal, Ill., to live.

Historian To Speak To Palatine Nurses

Mrs. Florence Parkhurst of the Palatine Historical Society will address members of the Palatine Registered Nurses Club Monday at 8 p.m. in the Palatine Savings and Loan, 100 W. Palatine Road.

Objectives of the club are educational, social and philanthropic including the maintenance of a lending closet where sickroom needs from hospital beds to crutches may be found.

This first meeting of the new season is membership night. Registered nurses in the area interested in joining the organization are invited. Information may be obtained from Mrs. Gilbert Madsen 358-4142 or Mrs. Anthony Filosa, 359-3172.

Reservations may be made by calling Pat Jackson at 392-7207. Dessert and coffee will be served.

Beth Tikvah Slates A Hayride-Cookout

An old-fashioned hayride and cookout supper heads the menu of Beth Tikvah Sisterhood activities, when members of the Hoffman Estates group and their husbands meet Saturday, Sept. 27, at 8:30 p.m. at Fleetwood Farms.

Those attending who play guitar are encouraged to bring them. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Larry Graff, 529-4778, or Mrs. Joseph Sklansky, 358-9270, by Sept. 22.

"In this House of Breds," a story of the life in an enclosed house of nuns and of the relevance of the contemplative existence of a changing world, will be reviewed by Martha Hopkins at the fall luncheon of the Grace Lutheran Church Women, Prospect Heights, next Thursday at 12:45 p.m.

Educated at Cornell College in Iowa and at The American Conservatory of Music in Chicago, the reviewer had her own television series in Washington, D.C. and wrote newspaper columns in Virginia.

All women of the church are invited and tickets will be available Sunday at the church. Mrs. Nick Lovdjevich, 259-2581, may be called for reservations. Rebecca Cicle will be in charge of the luncheon.

Orchid Group Studies K C Auxiliary To Learn About Art

The Illinois Orchid Society will meet at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Simpson Theater of the Field Museum in Chicago.

The meeting is open to all interested in learning to grow orchids at home or in an apartment.

The meeting will feature a display of nearly 100 blooming orchid plants in many varieties. Progress reports on the November awards dinner and Illinois Orchid Society-Chicago Park District show will be made.

Next Tuesday's meeting of the auxiliary of Holy Rosary Knights of Columbus will feature a program by Anne and Stephen Sluka, owners of Stephany Arts, on the use of groupings and art in the home. The meeting is set for 8:30 p.m. in the Knights hall, 15 N. Hickory, Arlington Heights. The meeting is open to wives of members of the council exclusively. Hostesses for the evening are Mrs. Ed Ciemerius, Mrs. Archie Loch, and Mrs. Al Klein. Further information is available from Mrs. Klein at 392-4492.

Part 3: How to Watch Football

Follow Flexible Rules in Filling Berths

by PAUL LOGAN

"THE SECOND season will be coming soon."

"The new season is here."

Although the television networks have been blaring out these commercial reminders about their "new" shows, some of those that have made their debut thus far aren't too impressive.

Another "second season" will get underway next week but it will not be on NBC, CBS or ABC. Instead, it will be in the out of doors as Harper Community College begins its "sophomore year" athletic program with cross country and golf.

It is also a "new season" because a hangup that harassed the inaugural season has been permanently hung up in the locker rooms of Forest View and Elk Grove.

John Gelch, Harper's athletic director and basketball coach, explains the former hangup:

"I think that all the way through one of our problems was trying to work around the night schedule. Classes started at 4 p.m. so it made a very rough situation for us to set up ideal practicing times."

"Any time you think of sports, you've got to consider how important practices are. I felt that practice at 9:15 or 9:30 p.m. made it extremely difficult for teams to get in condition."

The reason for these late-night starting times was simple — the gym became available at that time and no earlier. It is easy to see why some fine athletes stayed away from basketball and wrestling last winter. Can you picture holding down a job during the day, going to class from say 4 to 9 p.m., practicing for two hours, and then hitting the books — knowing full well that failure in school might delay finishing your education for a couple of years while you're in Vietnam.

Besides the facility bind and the bedtime workouts, Harper's AD had plenty of other concerns that didn't make his first year too enjoyable.

"Just starting out in an intercollegiate program also presents other problems — where the schools are located and how long to get there, what kind of facilities they have, overall scheduling, hiring officials, etc.," he explained. "And that just compounded the problem because of a lack of facilities."

"In spite of this, I felt that we got off to a pretty good start. More people are aware that Harper has an intercollegiate program."

The Hawks got off to a flying start. Naturally you can expect losing seasons for the first year and possibly the second or third in most or all sports at a new college or high school.

Then you've got to consider the conference in which the Hawks were thrown — the Northern Illinois Junior College League (NIJCL). This 16-team setup has to be one of the toughest this side of California. Defeating the Chicago schools in anything has to be some kind of a moral victory for an infant institution such as Harper was.

Yet, the Hawks didn't look bad. In fact in two sports they reeled off winning records. In three they just missed .500 or better campaigns, and in two others ineligible players put a damper on possibly successful seasons.

The high point of the '68-69 campaign had to be the sterling effort by the tennis squad. After polishing off all dual meet opposition during the regular season for a stunning 9-0 mark, the Hawk netmen finished second in the NIJCL and then captured the regional tournament team title plus the right to represent Illinois in the national finals.

This last exploit by Coach Roy Kearns' crew is something many junior colleges wait years for and, sometimes, never achieve.

Registering the other plus-500 mark was Ron Bessemer's wrestling team. They racked up a 10-6 dual mark and finished a solid fourth in the NIJCL.

Bessemer will be also holding down the golfing head duties this fall. Although last year's linksters had the worst record of the seven sports (2-12-1), they were plagued by eligibility problems. But these gritty golfers rallied in the conference meet and finished in a tie for eighth ahead of seven others.

The other team to be hit even harder by ineligibility was Gelch's hardcourters. After starting out with just 13 players, the new semester took away four including two starters. Two new recruits joined the mini-team but building another starting unit became a big chore.

Heading into the post-season tourney, the Hawks had a 5-20 season mark. Nevertheless, they regrouped and showed that they could finish out a winner by halting their nine-game losing streak with a fine upset victory.

The teams that just missed were Cleve Hinton's baseballers (9-13) and Bob Nolan's track and cross country teams. Nolan's barriers were 4-6 and his tracksters were 4-5 in duals.

This year all the coaches are optimistic, according to Gelch, because the area is beginning to realize that Harper has a sports program. And this has created plenty of enthusiasm.

"I feel that probably in each sport we're going to have considerable turnouts," Gelch exclaimed. "I think we had the interest last year but it was impossible for all those who wanted to come out to do so because they couldn't get free at those practice times."

That won't be a problem this fall for the basketball team for it will take to the Fremd High School court from 5 to 7 p.m., a much more productive time for all concerned.

John Gelch

Also aiding the "sophomore year" season will be a host of returning lettermen — young men who are already acquainted with just what their coaches expect from them. Gelch added that some of the boys have been working during the summer to be in top shape this year.

Still another boost, this one being for future seasons, will be the better rapport between the Harper staff and the athletic departments in the area. The night schedule also affected this most important relationship which is vital to the growth of the Harper sports future.

"I'm confident that this is going to change (for the better) this year," the Harper AD said. "Since we'll be getting back to the normal routine we'll have a chance to get out more to the different meets and games. We're getting to know more and more coaches but we still have a big job to do."

Harper's athletic program is definitely on the move. Its goal is to "set up a quality program at Harper in all aspects," according to Gelch, and he and his coaches are on their way.

Presently the new campus is still in its growing stages. But those who may drive past the southwest corner of the Harper territory, at the intersection of Algonquin and Roselle roads, can see the beginnings of a sports complex in early growth.

"You can see rough grading for the football field, track, baseball and tennis courts," Gelch said with eager anticipation. "By spring all that should be pretty well landscaped and we should have grass out there."

Harper's AD was hopeful that the football fields, which will be used for physical education classes, and the play fields would be ready by spring. He was also keeping his fingers crossed on the possibility of having the ball diamond also in shape for the 1970 season.

The rest of the sports complex, such as a gymnasium, stadium for football, etc., will come as quickly as money becomes available from the state. One thing is certain — it will be built eventually like all the other buildings that have not been constructed yet.

All in all it should be a productive year for the Hawks and their fine group of coaches. But John Gelch might find even more work than he had last year. While commenting on the '68-69 working schedule, he said this about his wife and the upcoming 1969 season:

"After last year getting home at midnight, she won't know what to think." Sure she will, John. It will only take her one night to get used to it and then she'll be planning plenty of odd jobs to make up for last year.

by LARRY MLYNCZAK

The high school football coach has approximately 50 freshmen and sophomores out on the field for the first day of practice and on the coach's clipboard are the cards which carry information on each prospective football player.

On the card is the question: "Which position do you like to play?"

And out of the 50 boys, probably 40 have written in: quarterback, halfback, fullback or end. These positions, as every player and fan knows, are the "glamor" positions.

The team, of course, needs guards, tackles and centers and it is up to the coach to turn some of these prospective "quarterbacks" into linemen. Naturally enough, the coach does need quarterbacks.

So, the coach has a busy time trying to decide which player would fit which position and which position would fit each player.

The coach usually goes by the following flexible rules.

CENTER

A center must be nearly fearless. He has an awesome responsibility to get the ball to the quarterback and at the same time block a defensive middle guard who is trying to intimidate that center.

High school centers usually are between 5-11 and 6-1 and weigh somewhere between 170 and 195 pounds. Coaches try to avoid putting a tall player at center because his feet are rather far apart when centering the ball and the tall player will have problems getting from his stance into a blocking position.

The center must be big and tough enough to handle the defensive middle guard and at the same time he must be quick enough to block a linebacker or drop back for pass protection.

GUARD

A high school football player does not necessarily have to be very big. Some high school guards, good ones, weigh as little as 145-150 pounds. A guard can be successful at playing guard at 145 pounds if he has the speed and quickness.

How to Watch Football — The Offense —

Nearly every team today runs the end sweep with the guards "pulling." By "pulling" we mean the guard leaves his position next to the center and leads the ball carrier around the end. The guard's job on the end sweep is to block the outside linebacker, the cornerback or the defensive ends. Linebackers, cornerbacks, and defensive ends can be in the 180 to 200 pound class, so the 145 pounder had better be rugged.

The guard must have the quickness to cross-block. In this case the guard blocks the defensive man in front of the center and the center blocks the defensive man in front of the guard. At times, the guard will block the defensive player in front of the tackle and the tackle will block the defensive man in front of the guard.

The high school guard will sometimes have a 220 pound tackle stationed right in front of him and will have a distinct disadvantage in strength and weight. But the guard, who generally is quicker, can actually whip the tackle if the guard can make first contact. First contact is much more important than hardest contact.

TACKLE

He is usually the biggest player on the team, weighing over 200 pounds. The tackle, despite his size, must still be quick enough to cross-block.

If a team has extremely quick tackles, it will design plays so that the tackle will pull-out on end sweeps like a guard. The tackle must have good stamina because he will be called on often during a game to make crucial blocks. The "off-tackle" play is run more often than any other play in the game.

END AND FLANKER

The two main requisites for an end or flanker are: good speed and good hands.

There is not too much difference between an end or flanker. An end is stationed close to the tackle or split 10 or 15 yards outside the tackle. Most teams have one split end and one tight end. The tight end is actually an extra tackle and is generally in the 180 pound class or higher and must be as rugged as a tackle while still having the ability to catch passes.

The flanker is an offensive back who is 10 to 15 yards outside the tight end and is one or two yards behind the line of scrimmage.

The end or flanker must elude the defensive safeties and cornerbacks. To do this, they use zig-zag patterns, quick moves with the head, hips and feet and then pure speed.

The end or flanker must have jumping ability in case the ball is thrown high and the end or flanker is surrounded by defensive men. When the end or flanker catches the ball, he must be prepared to face the consequences. When he catches the ball, his back is faced toward the defensive man and the defensive man will tackle the end or flanker as hard as he can so that a fumble or dropped ball may result.

The player who plays end or flanker may be called on to block the defensive end or a linebacker so he must be unafraid to get his nose dirty.

HALFBACK

A halfback must have the most combination of abilities than any offensive player on the field. He must have speed to run to the outside, he must have power to run up the middle, he must have ruggedness for pass protection blocking and power blocking and he must have pass-catching capabilities.

Halfbacks range from 130 pounds to 200 pounds. The halfback should have ways and means in which to avoid tackles or break tackles.

Some use shiftiness and stutter steps much like an end or flanker will use to elude defenders. Others might use brute strength and try to overpower the tackler. There is one halfback in the Mid-Suburban League who has another style while carrying the ball. When the defender makes contact while attempting the tackle, the halfback automatically relaxes his body. The defender, in the meantime, also relaxes since he thinks he has the halfback nailed. As soon as the defender relaxes for an instant, the halfback drives his legs hard and often breaks the grip of the tackler.

FULLBACK

Fullbacks range from 5-8 to 6-3 but almost all are stocky with big powerful legs. On third down and short yardage, the fullback is the one who is called on to get those tough few yards. The fullback must have the speed to run outside and have the will to block defensive linemen on pass protection. The fullback will be called on to lead end sweeps and block the defensive end or linebacker.

LITTLE LION Mike Abinanti (10) made a mighty big impression on the scoreboard Friday night when his St. Viator squad traveled to Hersey for their opening game of the season.

passing for a pair of TDs and scoring two more in a 25-0 romp past the hosts. Here the 5-7, 155-pound senior gets off a completed pass despite the opposition put up by Huskie Don Spry.

QUARTERBACK

A team's quarterback is usually the best athlete on the team. The model quarterback is tall and rangy because today's defensive linemen are getting bigger and the quarterback must be tall to see his receiver downfield over the heads of the linemen.

A quarterback must have a strong arm and know how to throw the football. A high schooler who can throw a baseball hard, does not necessarily have the tools to throw a football well.

He must have reasonably long fingers to grip the ball and he must be coached on how to bring the ball back, cock the wrist and then how to follow through. A quarterback must not wind up to throw the ball and should take only one step before releasing.

Many high school quarterbacks think too much before throwing. They are thinking about their form and thinking through each step in the process of throwing the football. This often leads to a bad pass.

When a quarterback throws the ball he must be relaxed and the throw must come to him like a good golfer's swing. The quarterback should not have to think about throwing it must come naturally and automatically.

Some teams will place a high schooler at quarterback even though he does not have the best arm on the team or the speed to avoid a pass rush. Some teams will use the player that has the best football sense and the quickest mind.

And what is required of the quarterback's brain? We'll cover that in the next part of the series.

Never-Ending War Pits Defense Against Offense

by CHUCK WILLOUR

Back in pro football's days of infancy, when such men as Bronko Nagurski, Jim Thorpe and the Wheaton Iceman, Red Grange, were living legends and not distant memories, the man-in-motion was discovered.

Oh, it wasn't intentional. Some back who wasn't assigned anything to do on a particular play just got tired of standing around and decided to break the monotony by trotting in back of the line before the snap of the ball.

The first time he tried it, the story goes, no one paid him the slightest attention, so when he got back to the huddle he reported this fact to the quarterback. The second time he tried it, no one on the defense again paid him any mind. But the quarterback did, lofting him a long pass good for a touchdown.

Since that day, the number of ways an offense could score has multiplied many times. And the defense, poor defense, trying to keep pace, has had to devise as many ways to stop the offense as the offense has devised to score.

It's been a never-ending battle. In the early days of football the forward pass was non-existent, so when some alert coach started passing the defense had to come up with a way to stop it. Then came the man-in-motion, double reverses, triple reverses, the option and now the triple option.

It's been a headache for the defensive coach the whole time. No one has yet figured out a way to stop the triple option. But they will, just as they stopped the pass, the reverses, the man-in-motion.

They will because no offense is perfect, just as no defense is perfect. There's a weakness to the triple option—just where, nobody knows, but you can be sure somebody will find it.

And when they do, you can also be sure that the offensive coach will try to come up with some kind of quadruple option, thus giving the defenses one more thing to worry about.

And the headaches will start all over again.

Basically the defensive coach knows he has an unlimited number of defensive alignments to work with. He can put three men on the defensive line or all 11. But the coach also knows that when he starts putting all his eggs in one basket, quite a few are going to get broken.

So he ends up with a happy medium. He tries to design his defense so that its strengths meet head-on an offense's strengths. If a team runs with the ball all the time, he'll move more men up on the line; if they pass, he'll drop some back. And all the while he's fudging just a little, just in case the running team passes or the passing team runs.

What the coach does, then, is figure out

Eat your hearts out, Paddock area legion baseball coaches.

Look around at communities which have fine, lighted baseball fields — many in this part of the state and even more elsewhere in the country. Think of all the advantages afforded by night baseball. (Enumerated in the first part of this series).

And, finally, wonder — for maybe the umpteenth time — why large, wealthy communities such as Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine, and others in the area are without baseball lights when much smaller towns have been successful in obtaining them.

How do they do it? Does the moola come off trees? Why can't we have lights? What is the best way to raise the needed money? Different coaches revealed different things.

Talking to Art Kunde, Northbrook's legion coach, is enough to make anyone envious. Kunde's legion team, as well as Little League and Pony League teams in Northbrook, started playing on a newly lighted field this year and according to the coach, the lights have brightened up not just the field, but the program.

Admittedly, Northbrook was luckier than most communities because their lights were donated by Arthur Appleton of Appleton Electric Co. in Chicago. Appleton is a civic-minded, sports enthusiast of Northbrook.

"The lights were all paid for," reports Kunde. "All we had to do was get someone to put the poles up and have the park district put wiring in."

"The only trouble was union problems in installation. That's why we only got the lights this summer though the bond issue was passed three or four years ago."

A concession stand is run at the games by volunteer mothers. It pulls in $2000 or more a year. Much of this success can be attributed to night ball which draws more fans.

"We have one of the most enterprising and aggressive park districts I know of," praises Kunde. "I hate to lay it on like this, but we even have an ice rink and a great hockey program. The Black Hawks practiced there many times last season."

Kunde, of course, was speaking of the new sports complex which has made Northbrook the envy of neighboring communities.

So, in Northbrook, we see one possible fund-raising method. Find a millionaire in town and talk him into investing a few grand in lights.

Obviously, not too much can be counted on in this way. So, how else can you drum up money?

One way would be through the park district. Bob Fox, Rockford's legion coach, fields a team under lights provided about five years ago by the local park board. "They aren't our lights, but we pay tax on them," says Fox.

Fox feels that the American legion and other groups are capable of raising the money themselves. "Boys baseball here has several ways of raising their own money," he notes.

"Every year they hold a Tag Day (in which booster tags are sold for a small sum) that raises about $3500. A concession stand brings in $1500 a year and they usually pass the hat at games."

Did the park district in Rockford have any trouble getting funds to light the legion field? "Heavens, No!" exclaims Fox. "The referendum passed with no problem at all. The legion post also helped to raise some of the money."

Because of the success of fund-raising ventures in Rockford, Fox says, "If our legion wanted to raise its own money for lights, we could — no doubt."

He did not say whether or not he felt the Arlington Heights American Legion Post 280 could do the same. Anyway, it's another possibility.

Joe Rivich, legion coach at East Chicago, has a team playing at a field which has been lighted for more than a decade. This town was also fortunate enough to have the lights donated, by Inland Steel. They were installed by the city.

"There was no problem getting the city to provide the money for installation (once the lights themselves were donated)," reports Rivich. "The bond issue went over easily."

Block Stadium, East Chicago's field, is occupied on summer nights by legion, men's amateur, and high school nines. The Little League also has its own lighted field, obtained the same way, adjacent to Block Stadium.

Before any longer, let it be reported that the Arlington Heights park district did make a move last year to install lights at Recreation Park. If you've been there lately, you realize that it never quite came off.

Lights for all four baseball diamonds at Recreation, which could also have been used for football, were included in a park district bond issue of 1968. But, according to park director Tom Thornton, "The bids for them came too high and they had to be cut."

When might the park district try again? "Lights won't even be discussed until the existing problems are dealt with," asserts Thornton.

Like what? "We're working on several other things at the moment," says Thornton. "The indoor swimming pool at Arlington (High School); three new neighborhood parks, two existing neighborhood parks, and a new skating shelter."

Are these things more important than lights? Each person must judge for himself, but perhaps a few observations are in order.

There are numerous parks and fields already in existence in Arlington Heights which are adequate for baseball and softball programs and are actually unoccupied much of the time. It's true that the pools are overcrowded, but an indoor pool presumably would be for use primarily during the winter. How many kids are interested in swimming during the winter? Those who are use the YMCA pool.

There's already a skating shelter at Pioneer Park which is overcrowded too. But does a second one make sense before getting any baseball lights at all? You be the judge.

Arlington Heights legion coach Lloyd Meyer, speaking of the park district cut of lights from the budget, says, "I don't know how they could do that. People were not informed of that cut. I'm sure a lot of people voted 'yes' on that bond issue because they thought lights were included in it."

Meyer himself was one of them. "When I vote 'yes' on something, I like to at least know what I'm voting for," he says. "I'm not saying the vote would necessarily have been different if everyone had known of the light cut but it might have been."

Now for the big question: What is the best way to raise light money in the Arlington Heights area at this time?

"I'd like to get after the park district and find out what happened," says Meyer. "I'd say they've got some answering to do."

Meyer does not favor the idea of trying to get the city to provide money. "If they gave money for baseball, they'd have everyone on their backs," he remarks.

Kunde feels the money could be raised by combined groups. "Sure, it isn't easy," he concedes, "but it can be done if a community will get with it."

Rivich had still a third idea — in direct contrast to Meyer's. "I'd talk to the city administration," he said. "I think that is without doubt the only place to start. It's the only way to get them."

"If you try to raise the money yourself," Rivich went on, "you'll never get half enough because the expense is too great (the Recreation Park lights were budgeted at $60,000 for the four fields)."

"Maybe the boys baseball program could raise their own money because the lights would be shorter and cost less. But if you can talk the city into it, you'll have the problem solved. It will come out of taxes then."

This, of course, is a mighty big "if."

Larry Nomellini, coach of the Logan Square legion Lions in Arlington Heights, feels there must be some way to come up with the money. "We know that there's money in the suburbs, so that isn't why we can't seem to get it," he says.

"Of course, I don't know for sure what the problem is," Nomellini admits, "but my opinion is that maybe there's a little too much apathy. Maybe there isn't enough 'push' politically for lights. People just don't seem to have a great enough desire for them to do something."

It should be evident that it is not out of the question to raise money for lights. Five schools have done so for football fields in a little over two years' time in District 214. However, these schools had the advantage of tightly-knit, determined, and enthusiastic booster clubs which raised most of the money through the schools.

So, while the spotlight shines brightly on football in the area, baseball remains in the dark.

And the prospects for changing that situation — pardon the expression — don't appear too bright.

Two Cubs in Area Visit

Don Kessinger

Ted Abernathy

JOHN J. WOODS, president of the Bank of Rolling Meadows, announced this week that Donnie Kessinger and Ted Abernathy of the Chicago Cubs will meet the public and sign autographs at the Bank in the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Friday from 7 to 9 p.m. These two Cubs are residents of Rolling Meadows and also Bank customers. Free photographs of the two Cubs will be given to the early arrivals.

How to Watch Football

just how he can arrange his linemen, linebackers and defensive backs to give him the best possible defense against the expected and unexpected.

What are the most frequently used defenses? The most common high school defenses are the 5-3, and 5-4 (five men on the line, three linebackers, and five men on the line, four linebackers).

But there are others: the 4-3 and 4-4, the 5-2, 6-1, and gap-8 are all used in high school play. Also to be considered by the coach independently of his formations is whether to use a zone or man-for-man defense against the pass.

Let's look at the various formations one by one to see what they are supposed to accomplish and what are their weaknesses.

There's only one reason why the 5-3 is a high school favorite: It's the safest. It provides a good defense against both the pass and the run, with five linemen and three linebackers forming a wall against the run and the three linebackers joining with the three halfbacks to stop the pass.

One of the real advantages of the five man line is that a coach can space his linemen to plug up any weak spots. The linebackers can also be juggled to fill in the gaps, particularly outside the ends.

Since most prep quarterbacks are not yet of the Joe Namath passing caliber, three defensive halfbacks seem to be able to handle the pass effectively.

There are a few drawbacks to the 5-3, though. Off-tackle and end runs can be used alternately with devastating results against it, unless the defensive ends are particularly outstanding. The option play also works well against it, and when a back is sent out as a delayed receiver the halfbacks may be caught out of position. Also, a quick pass to the sidelines usually works well.

Teams running up against a "three yards and a cloud of dust" opponent may want to switch from a 5-3 to a 5-4. The extra linebacker gives added strength against line plunges, particularly up the middle, and also against end runs since the outside linebackers can then help out the defensive ends.

An extra man up front, though, means that there is one less man to cover against the pass. A good quarterback may be able to pick the 5-4 to shreds on medium length passes, particularly if he sends a back out as a receiver. To overcome this, some coaches will have one linebacker be a floater, but this makes the 5-4 into a 5-3 for all intents and purposes.

For the 5-4 to work well, a coach must have excellent linebackers, strong and quick. If they're strong but not quick, a fair passer can move the ball. If they're just quick but not strong enough to really belt a runner, he might as well go back to the 5-3.

4-3-4 and 4-4-3

Anyone who has spent a Sunday afternoon in front of his TV set knows that the pros use the 4-4 and 4-3 extensively. The reason is simple: the pass has become the most important offensive weapon in pro football, thus coaches place only four men on the line and drop the rest back.

The four halfbacks in the 4-3 give strong pass protection while the three linebackers coupled with the four linemen offer a good defense against the run.

The key to both the 4-4 and 4-3 is the four linemen. If they are not tremendously powerful and talented men two things will happen, both disastrous. First, it's difficult to put on much of a pass rush with four defensive players facing five or six blockers, thus giving the quarterback more time to throw. And second, a lot of yardage can be given up on runs — too many holes for too few men.

One weak man in these defenses, and they can be picked apart all day by the offense running over that weak spot. Likewise, good, crisp blocking can strip the defensive line down. End runs and off-tackle plays both work well against these two formations.

It's no surprise, then, that the 4-3 or 4-4 are not used much in prep football. The only exception comes when a team is trying to protect a lead against a strong passing team. With time running out, the defense can expect the offense to pass so there are no worries about runs. And with seven men back patrolling against the pass, the chances for completions are few.

The main difference between the 4-3 and the 4-4 is that the 4-3 is a more of a basic defense like the 5-3, while the 4-4 is more of a blitzing defense, where one or more linebackers leave their positions to shoot in at the quarterback. The quarterback, though, can stop this quickly by sending receivers into the vacated areas on short pass patterns.

In high school ball when one team is frantically passing to get back into a ball game, fans might see a 5-2-4 alignment. Five linemen give a strong pass rush and also protect well against a strong running game, and four defensive halfbacks are usually adequate to protect against the bomb.

The 5-2, however, is wide-open to short passes, particularly passes up the middle where there is no linebacker.

If the linebackers move into the middle to protect against the pass, the 5-2 is then vulnerable to the end run.

6-1 AND GAP-8

These two are favorites for goal line stands and other short yardage situations. A 6-1 is particularly effective on a third and one or two situation, where an off-tackle or straight ahead dive could be expected. The Gap-8 is most often used at the goal line where almost any kind of run could be anticipated.

Both are strong against the end run, and both are well-suited to the situation. In the case of the goal line stand, a receiver can only run 10-yards back, so there is little need for linebackers. On a short yardage situation mid-field, virtually every team will go for the running play.

But if a team elects instead to try a short pass on the short yardage situation, the field is wide open. It all depends whether or not the offense wants to gamble.

ZONE vs. MAN-FOR-MAN PASS DEFENSE

After a coach decides which defense he will be using against a particular team — and often he will use many — he then has to turn to his backs. How can he best use them to cover the pass?

Most area high school coaches use the zone pass defense. The man-for-man requires great knowledge of a particular receiver plus a near-match of speed and size. If a hot-footed receiver is covered by a slower defender, you just know where every pass is going to go. Injuries or mistakes can also make man-for-man worthless.

The zone is used by area coaches specifically to overcome the shortcomings of the man-for-man. With each defender, including the linebackers, assigned a certain part of the field to cover, one man slipping up does not necessarily mean disaster. Usually in a zone, the deep safety is designated as a "free safety" and can help out any of the other backs.

The biggest disadvantage is that a zone cannot cover a receiver as closely as a man-for-man. Another problem occurs when a receiver moves out of one zone to another. And, of course, when the offense sends more than one man into a zone, "flooding it," more problems crop up.

But these kind of problems seem more remote to coaches than the problems that might arise with a man-for-man. Thus they use the zone.

Now the coach has his players all picked out and knows just what kind of defensive alignments he will use. Next on the agenda is coaching for specific situations and trying to come up with a few tricks on defense to take some of the surprise out of the offense's attack. These subjects and a short lexicon of defensive terminology will be covered in the next and final part of this series.

Backs Troop Pull-out

John J. Nimrod, one of nine Republican candidates in the 13th Congressional District primary, has predicted that the South Vietnamese soon will be able to take over the brunt of the fighting.

More than 500 persons heard Nimrod recently in Wilmette advocate the eventual leaving of a troop commitment as military advisers in Vietnam while transferring the bulk of the contact with the enemy with the South Vietnamese.

"We do not have the right to impose a coalition government on the South Vietnamese. We should support them in whatever their decision may be," Nimrod said.

"OUR REASON for being in Vietnam is no longer the issue. We are there. We have lost more than 37,000 American lives. We have supported and seen a free election take place. Now after this time, the Vietnamese must assume the burden of the fighting.

"This is the third time we have been tested in any major way by the Communists," he said, listing Germany, Korea and Vietnam as the "three areas where our obligations and involvement were different from all other countries.

"In each case our objectives have been one of self-determination for both the individual and the country. Our foreign policy has changed over the years. With Germany, we were ready to fight, but only required the airlift. In Korea, we drew the line at the 38-degree parallel, and said 'Go no further.'

"There was a further change when we went to Vietnam. We came in after the French left, and we were faced with indecision and vacillation in the early years. We did not destroy the North Vietnamese ability to wage war as was the policy in Korea."

Nimrod said one of the reasons Vietnam is so frustrating is because of "the failure of the Kennedy-Johnson administration to have a plan for the area."

"ONCE YOU'RE in and committed, then you must make the whole decision, rather than piecemeal day-to-day decisions," he said.

In other foreign policy areas, Nimrod said, "We must call upon the United States and major powers to create the necessary climate in the Middle East whereby Arab states and Israel can sit down and recognize each other. We should do all we can to lay the framework for them, but ultimately they do have to solve their own problems."

Nimrod said there can be no new rules or special rules for admitting Red China to the United Nations. "They must accept the rules of the organization as they now stand, and I see no indication in Red China's activities for accepting established rules that the rest of the world abides by."

Nimrod said this country must "reappraise and reevaluate our foreign policy to fit the 1970's in the light of new technological advancements, weapon improvements and the space age. Just sending in troops is not the way to win wars. Instead of having years to fight major wars, today we have only days and minutes."

Nimrod, former assistant director, Department of Revenue, is Republican committeeman of Niles Township and Niles Township supervisor.

Johnston Attacks Finances

Further increases in taxes, extreme credit restraint and mandatory controls on prices and wages have been criticized by State Rep. Alan Johnston of Kenilworth, Republican candidate for 13th District congressman.

In a position paper on combating inflation, Johnston said, "Checking inflationary forces that are deeply embedded in the structure of costs and prices is an extremely difficult process, stability."

Attempts to reach this goal by "an overdose of fiscal and monetary policy" could bring on a recession, he said. "A drastic across-the-board reduction in federal expenditures or a further increase in taxes reinforced by extreme credit restraint would cause unemployment rates to rise substantially. The unemployment rates for the disadvantaged — including nonwhites and teenagers would rise even more rapidly. With this would also rise the danger of serious social unrest."

JOHNSTON URGED a sensitive fiscal-monetary program to include discretionary authority to the President to initiate limited changes in tax rates, subject to congressional veto.

"Inflation has been a complex, prolonged process. Measures aimed at producing price stability will not become effective over night. We must realize that achieving price stability will take time if it is to be genuine price stability," he said.

"Fiscal and monetary policies alone cannot ensure the simultaneous achievement of low rates of unemployment and reasonable price stability. The relationship between inflation and unemployment depends upon the working of the nation's institutions and markets."

HE SAID THE GOVERNMENT can also strive for improvements in the nation's economic productivity. "Government plans can help match labor skills to job requirements, develop the working potential of the disadvantaged and support and encourage research on improved manufacturing technology."

He also said that "the task of reconciling price stability with high employment cannot be accomplished by government alone, or by business alone or by labor alone. The responsibility in this effort is shared. Both in their own interest and in the public interest, business and labor should exercise the utmost restraint in price and wage decisions. Unofficial wage and price guidelines may prove again to be the best reflection of the consumers' interest."

"A more sensitive fiscal-monetary policy is needed," Johnston said.

OUR MAN OF THE WEEK

As announced over WEXI 92.3 FM Arlington Heights last week (listen Each Friday night at 7:15) the Mount Prospect Savings and Loan Association salutes Dick Schuld, president of the Old Town Sanitary District in his area, as "Man of the Week."

Dick Schuld merits this recognition for securing a go-ahead in connection with a $900,000 project to tie in with a $3.7 million sanitary sewer project of the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

This has been accomplished in just three years and Mr. Schuld deserves the commendation of the community for his diligent work to solve a pressing problem in an unincorporated area.

To Reduce Draft Call

WASHINGTON—U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam, which now will include the entire 3rd Marine Division at the Demilitarized Zone, will result in lower draft calls in the months ahead, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird said yesterday.

He told a news conference he would advise the Selective Service Friday of changes in draft calls as a result of President Nixon's decision to pull an additional 35,000 troops from Vietnam.

Request Benefit Hike

WASHINGTON—President Nixon, in a surprise announcement yesterday said he would ask Congress to increase social security benefits by 10 per cent effective next April 1.

Nixon, who had earlier said he would propose a 7 per cent increase, made the announcement with little elaboration. He said he would spell out his program in a message to Congress next week.

Agnew Aims for Mars

WASHINGTON—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, chairman of the special task force on post-Apollo programs, has recommended that President Nixon call for a manned space flight to Mars about 1980, the White House said yesterday.

Recommendations in the task force report, would push space expenditures to about $8 billion annually in the early 1980s, compared to about $3 billion a year now.

Judge Wants Action

WASHINGTON—Judge Clement Haynsworth Jr. urged the Senate yesterday to kill his nomination to the Supreme Court if it doubts "the propriety of what I did" in a controversial 1963 court case.

Haynsworth, chief judge of the fourth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., said the Senate should make up its own mind about the allegations.

UP GO THE STEEL beams which will support the second and third floors of Palatine-Schaumburg High School Dist. 211's fourth school on Schaumburg Road. The $5 million building is scheduled to be completed by Jan. 1, 1971. Heavy rains and a lack of construction workers on the site delayed construction progress during the summer. School administrators are hopeful construction of the building will be back on schedule soon.

Teen Center Needs Five-Acre Donation

Plans for a proposed teen center in Hoffman Estates are now up in the air, according to Frank Alexa, chairman of the Village Youth Commission.

Although building plans for a teen center have been drawn by an architect, there is now no site available on which to build the teen center, Alexa said. It had been planned to construct the teen center on the village swimming pool property on Grand Canyon Avenue, but this site is now being used as a flood retention basin by the village.

A five-acre site is needed for the teen center, according to Alexa. The teen center is intended to serve Conant High School pupils, regardless of where they live.

ALEXA WAS AT Tuesday night's meeting of the Schaumburg Township Committee on Youth to request their assistance in obtaining a building site. COY members agreed to seek the mutual cooperation of village boards in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg, and the township board of auditors, in obtaining a voluntary contribution of five acres for the teen center.

A contribution of $15,000 for the teen center has been pledged by Vavrus and Associates, builder of the Town and Country apartments adjacent to the village swimming pool. This money will be placed in escrow to be used to construct a building. The teen center is expected to cost between $30,000 and $100,000.

HOFFMAN ESTATES Jaycees have also contributed $1,200 for the teen center for proceeds of the 1968 Jaycee carnival. However, this money is in an escrow account and can only be used for construction.

The proposed teen center is to be a 4,500 square foot structure which can house 400 to 500 persons. It will be adaptable for use both as an auditorium and a place for teen dances. Charles Cedarholm, architect, designed the building plans.

Teen efforts toward obtaining a community center began at a "Youth in Government" day in Hoffman Estates in 1967. Since that time, the Hoffman Estates Youth Commission has been working with area teens on the project.

'Good Progress' By Contractor

A change in weather conditions has apparently brought a favorable change in the construction progress on Schaumburg High School, scheduled to be completed by January, 1971.

"The contractor is making good progress," G. A. McElroy, Palatine-Schaumburg High School Dist. 211 superintendent says. "We have hopes of being on schedule soon."

In a progress report to the school board last week, McElroy said the concrete substructure is well on its way to being completed.

The front of the building, which faces south, has one floor imbedded in the side of a hill. From the front, the school will look like a two-story structure.

"THE MOUND OF EARTH" piled in front of the building was put there to enable cement trucks to dump their loads for the first floor wall," McElroy said. "This will be removed when the cement structure is finished. People will then be able to watch construction from the road."

McElroy also reported the underground plumbing is being put in and that final grading on the fields around the site should be completed this fall.

According to Tonyan Construction Co.'s progress schedule, the concrete substructure should be completed by the end of October.

THE STRUCTURAL steel and metal floor decks are also being put up. Structural supports should be completed by the end of November.

Exterior masonry, the brick outer wall of the school, should appear on the building about Oct. 1.

Club's Homecoming Is This Weekend

The Hoffman Estates Boys Club will hold its homecoming weekend Saturday and Sunday.

A parade starts at 3 p.m. Saturday from the club's barn behind the village hall, 161 Illinois Blvd.

Homecoming queen Carole Onack and her court will ride in the parade along with players from the club's two football teams, the Titans and the Lancers.

THE HOFFMAN Estates fire and police departments will also participate in the parade. The procession will follow Illinois Boulevard to Flagstaff, turn east to Arizona and go through the village on Ash, Golf, Highland Boulevard, Jones, Higgins and Roselle roads. It will end at 4 p.m. at the club.

Conant High School will be the location of two games to be played Sunday against teams from Schiller Park. The Titans will play at 1 p.m. and the Lancers will play at 3 p.m.

Heart Test Cost Is Paid

Contributions for the testing of hearts of seventh graders in Schaumburg Township will not be needed from local civic organizations this year, according to Mrs. Katherine Gleason of the Hoffman-Schaumburg Registered Nurses Club, sponsor of the annual program.

Cost of this year's heart testing will be shared by the Chicago Heart Association and the Illinois Public Health Department, Mrs. Gleason said.

The heart test this year will be expanded to include blood pressure, height, weight, and a finger blood sample to measure cholesterol level, Mrs. Gleason indicated. Testing will begin Oct. 6 and will take five weeks.

THE PUPIL testing program in Dist. 54 in 1969-70 will be used as a pilot study on the relationship of heart defects and obesity in youth.

Cost of the heart testing program last year was about $2 per pupil, and more than 1,000 pupils were tested. Half of the program's cost was raised locally, and half was shared by the Heart Association. Four heart defects were discovered in the testing of seventh grade pupils.

The testing of hearts is done electronically with a device known as the Phono-Cardio Scan (PCS).

MRS. GLEASON IS 1969-70 chairman for the heart testing project of the Registered Nurses Club. All Dist. 54 seventh grade pupils will be tested, as well as seventh graders at St. Hubert and St. Peter parochial schools.

Schaumburg Township Committee on Youth had earlier budgeted $400 for a contribution to the heart testing program, but now it will not be needed.

Board Accepts Appointments

The appointment of five new officials in Hoffman Estates was confirmed Monday by the village board.

Fred C. Waterbury has been placed on the judiciary committee. Waterbury attended Northwestern University where he majored in business administration. He works at A. C. Nielson Co. as administrative assistant to the production manager and he manages the production staff.

The police pension board will now be served by Elmer W. Redker, who is retired. Until 1967 he was employed by Ampex Corp. as engineering office manager of services.

HE ATTENDED Wright Junior College and Northwestern University where he studied business management and accounting.

Board Pres. Frederick Downey said Redker's services will be valuable to the police pension board because of his background and his free time.

Norbert Wojcik has been appointed to the zoning board of appeals. He studied business administration at Wright Junior College and works at Wilson Sporting Goods as a product manager.

WOJCICK BELONGS to L.O.O. Moose and the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township. He is also a Webel den leader for the Boy Scouts of America.

Newly appointed to the police commission is Glenn Hoffman.

He attended Valparaiso University where he majored in history and English. He also attended Northwestern University's graduate school for history and the University of Illinois for political science.

Hoffman is chairman of the social science department at Maine West High School.

The Police and Fire Commission will now be served by William H. Catlin. He is a manufacturers' representative for Westhoff-Stout. Catlin attended Kent State University and majored in economics.

Young Predicts 2,000 Vote Victory

by ED MURNANE

One of the most optimistic announcements to date by a 13th Congressional District candidate came yesterday when Samuel H. Young of Glenview announced:

—He is the first candidate to have all 515 13th District precincts manned by his organization.

—He has a 25-member committee of former supporters of Donald Rumsfeld working for him.

—He will win the Oct. 7 primary election by 2,000 votes.

YOUNG SAID surveys by his staff members indicate he will receive "a minimum of 8,000 votes, representing a projected 2,000 vote victory margin over my nearest opponent."

He predicted that approximately 36,000 voters would turn out for the GOP primary, and declined to say who he thought his "nearest opponent" would be.

"I think there are three or four who will be close," Young said. "But a lot of things can happen in the last three weeks and I'd rather not give any names."

There are nine Republicans seeking the seat which was vacated by former Congressman Donald L. Rumsfeld in May. The winner of the primary will compete with Democrat Edward Warman of Skokie on Nov. 25.

YOUNG'S OPTIMISM is based on what he called "snowballing support throughout the district."

He pointed to the fact that he has three township GOP endorsements, more than any of the other candidates, and that two of the endorsements are by township organizations that do not have favorite son candidates in the race. Only three of the seven townships which have made endorsements don't have candidates.

Philip Crane of Winnetka was endorsed by the Palatine Township GOP, defeating Young after several ballots. Townships which have endorsed Young are his own Northfield Township and western townships Elk Grove and Schaumburg.

TOWNSHIP GOP organizations which are supporting "favorite sons" are Wheeling Township, State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights; New Trier Township, State Rep. Alan Johnston of Kenilworth; Niles Township, John Nimrod, and Northfield Township, and Young.

Only Evanston Township has not made a Republican organization endorsement. Young said yesterday he believes he will get most of the Evanston vote, as well as carrying Northfield, Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships.

Two other developments which Young said are "very significant" are his "very well qualified" rating by the Women's Republican Club of New Trier and his recommended endorsement by the board of directors of the Evanston Women's Republican Organization.

HE DID NOT get the Evanston endorsement, he said, because a two-thirds

Samuel

Young said his township-by-township, precinct-by-precinct organization was completed this week. Last week, he announced that two high-ranking Republican officials in Palatine Township had left the GOP organization to work for Young, rather than Crane.

The two, Charles K. Allen of Rolling Meadows and Clayton W. Brown of Palatine are joined by other western township directors Warren McGovey, Elk Grove; L. A. (Roy) Bressler, Wheeling; and Glenn Hoffman, Schaumburg.

The committee of former Rumsfeld supporters is headed by Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher and includes a number of top Republicans from the western end of the district.

STATE REP. DAVID REGNER of Mount Prospect is on the committee, as are Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township Clerk George Busse, Mount Prospect Trustee George Reiter and Elk Grove GOP Pres. Richard Hall.

Schaumburg Township members are Assessor Scott MacEachron, Supervisor Vernon Laubenstein and Collector Ralph Lyerla.

Others from this area are W. Richard Impey of Arlington Heights, Mrs. Earle Miller of Mount Prospect, Mrs. Fred Walter of Rolling Meadows and Mrs. Jeannette Brown of Palatine.

"As active Republicans who were among the early friends and supporters of Donald Rumsfeld, we endorse Young as Don's successor," Atcher's statement said.

"In a fine field of candidates, Young stands out as the best to meet the challenge."

Work to Lessen Noise

The O'Hare Noise Abatement and Air Pollution Council is off to a roaring start this week on an area-wide campaign to seek prompt federal action on major airport problems.

Three of the 17 Northwest suburban communities represented by the council have already passed resolutions seeking support and sympathy from Sen. Charles Percy on the problems of noise abatement and air pollution at O'Hare airport.

Mount Prospect, Elmhurst and Itasca are among the first communities to pass resolutions requesting federal assistance and registering major concern over airport problems, while the majority of towns represented by the council are expected to follow suit later this week.

THE RESOLUTIONS charge "that O'Hare airport continues to be operated and expanded with total disregard for the rights of the residents in neighboring communities. Noise abatement procedures implemented to date by the Federal Aviation Administration are but a token response to the problem.

"As we enter the 1970's with super, jumbo jets on the way, the problems of jet noise and air pollution are reaching crisis proportions. We need constructive action now — not more studies, debate or buck passing."

The resolution passed unanimously by the Itasca Village Board, Tuesday, added: "We believe that there has been a failure of responsible public officials to propose constructive solutions to the problems of airport noise. We also feel that the federal government has a significant role to play in dealing with the problem of airport noise."

THE RESOLUTION outlined that the jurisdiction of the federal government included aircraft operations control and the appropriation of federal funds for land use development as well as health, welfare and safety for everyone.

The Mount Prospect Village Board passed its resolution unanimously Tuesday following the remarks of one resident who thought trustees should give the resolution further consideration and study before issuing final approval.

William Krampert, 323 George St., told trustees that although the noise from jet aircraft was bad, Mount Prospect's proximity to the airport is one of its assets.

KRAMPERT SAID the airport had its advantages and disadvantages just like the Chicago and North Western Railroad which runs right through the middle of town. "Sure, it's noisy but it's transportation for thousands of Northwest suburban commuters every day," he said.

Trustee Don Furst, delegate to the council, agreed with Krampert in part, but added that trains today aren't "belching black oily smoke" like airplanes.

The resolutions were passed following a request from George Franks of Wood Dale who asked council delegates last week to seek resolutions from their village boards requesting immediate federal action and relief from pressing noise and air pollution problems.

FRANKS, council chairman, met with delegates last week to launch a major campaign to send as many petitions and people to protest against major airport problems at a national seminar on noise abatement and air pollution to be held in Washington, D.C. Oct. 7 through 9.

Other communities expected to pass similar resolutions this week include Bensenville, Wood Dale, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Elk Grove, Addison and Des Plaines.

Propose Computer System

The Hoffman Estates Village Board heard a proposal Monday to purchase an IBM Systems III computer.

The system occupies an 11-by-14-foot space and was designed especially for small businesses and municipalities. It can be used for all facets of accounting in different departments and can be used for registrations, said Jerome Murray, IBM sales representative.

Since its announcement July 30, more than 1040 System III computers have been ordered. Schaumburg has recently ordered one, Murray added.

Cost on a lease basis is $1,075 per month. Other costs include personnel training and service rates of $22 per hour.

MURRAY SHOWED how the computer can spot water bills that are unusually large and lead to the tracing of leaky mains.

It can produce water bills at a rate of 250 per minute, indicating great time saving over the ledger method now used in Hoffman Estates.

"The Systems III computer does more, costs less and makes life a lot happier," Murray said.

The board will consider obtaining a Systems III and will also look into time sharing through a computer service.

FREDERICK DOWNEY, board president, said he is affiliated with a computer service, and indicated that he will avoid any conflict of interest regarding the board's decision.

Limited space at village hall presents a problem for housing a Systems III. The board committee investigating a new village hall will also consider the matter.

The possibility of sharing Schaumburg's computer was also mentioned by Mrs. Virginia Hayter, Trustee.

There Is Thunder Over New House

by MURRAY DUBIN

How would you like to own a $50,000 home that leaks water from the bathtub through to the kitchen cabinets?

A home whose cedar siding is already split.

A home where drapes couldn't be put in the bedroom because the windows let in rain.

A home that you bought in March and had to wait three months before your driveway was completed.

Mr. and Mrs. William Zeckzer, 1814 S. Ridge Drive in the Kingsbridge Subdivision, have such a home.

The Zeckzers told the Herald about the problems they and their neighbors are having with the Kingsbridge developers, Realco Builders.

"EVER SINCE March, we've tried to get things corrected in our home," Zeckzer said.

"We realized there were many things that weren't completed when we moved in and we weren't too concerned about our complaints.

"But after three months, we became very disturbed."

On Aug. 25, Zeckzer personally went to Realco with a list of improvements that hadn't been made and tried to see Harold Palmer, a vice president.

Zeckzer finally got an appointment to see Palmer on Aug. 29 and said the vice president promised to correct everything in four working weeks.

Since that meeting, Realco has put a cover on a drain sewer, raised it and fixed a drain in the mud room, Zeckzer said. But Zeckzer is pessimistic about Realco correcting the house's defects.

THE ZECKZERS aren't the only people with complaints about Realco.

Mrs. Richard Mader who lives in the Airy Trace Subdivision told the Herald, "Our roofing is warped and there are pieces missing.

"The leaking in our basement was fixed after 10 months of complaining. My husband wrote the village manager, the Better Business Bureau and the Department of Fraud.

"Everybody in the whole area is complaining."

Mrs. James Kelley, 1707 S. Ridge Drive, isn't happy either.

"We moved in on Jan. 30 and there are still things that haven't been corrected," she said.

"THE CEDAR SIDING is cracking, the basement is leaking and the plaster is cracking. It also rains through the storm windows into the bedroom and there are paint stains on the woodwork."

L. A. Hansen, Arlington Heights village manager said that his office hadn't had any particular problems with Realco, at least "not any more than with any other builder."

Village Pres. Jack Walsh said that he had never received any complaints from Kingsbridge residents but he had in the past received complaints from Airy Trace homeowners and had tried to solve them by getting the village involved.

WALSH ADDED THAT to his knowledge there were no unanswered letters from the residents in Airy Trace.

Marty Munson, Arlington Heights building commissioner, told the Herald that he has had, at times, problems with Realco but no more than with any other builder or developer.

The Herald has tried to contact Palmer at Realco for three days with no success.

To Warm Skaters

Hoffman Estates residents who go ice skating at Highpoint Park this winter will have a warm shelter.

Village park commissioners voted Tuesday to construct a warming house at Highpoint Park at a cost of not more than $2,450. The warming house is to be ready for use this winter.

Electric lights will also be installed at Highpoint Park for night skating. The park board approved a contract with Cowan Electric for installation of lighting in the amount of $2,400. Four poles and lights will be installed.

ELECTRIC POWER will have to be brought to the park since there are no existing lines.

The Hoffman Estates park board also approved plans for a contest among village residents to design a park district flag. First prize will be a family pool pass for one year, plus the right to participate in any park district programs by any family member. Deadline for entries is 1 p.m. Nov. 29.

PARK BOARD MEMBERS decided to seek a permit to install water and sewer lines to Vogelei Park. Following an engineering study, a report will be given at a special meeting of park commissioners 9 a.m. Saturday at the village hall.

All park commissioners are authorized to act as official delegates at the annual meeting of the Illinois Association of Park Districts in Springfield Oct. 29-31.

Details of the park district's 1969 fall program will be finalized today at a park board committee meeting. Plans for the park district's fall program have been delayed due to the lack of school facilities available in Dist. 54.

COULD Will Meet Tonight

The first meeting of the school year for the Council On Understanding Learning Disabilities (COULD) will be at 8:15 tonight in the Little Theater at Prospect High School, 801 W. Kensington, Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Dolly Hailstrom, chairman of the State Advisory Council on Education of Handicapped Children, will speak on what has been done and what is proposed in the field of special education legislation.

A pre-session will be at 7:30 p.m. with Mrs. John Maloney giving an evaluation of her summer camp experiences with learning disabled children. An informal coffee in the school cafeteria will follow Mrs. Hailstrom's speech.

Space Remains For Adult School

Area residents may still register for recreation and academic courses in the Palatine-Schaumburg High School Dist. 211 adult continuing education program, Charles Mueller, program director, has announced.

Persons interested in joining the classes can register at 7 p.m. the first day classes meet, Monday, Sept. 22, in the main office at the school where the class is being held.

BROCHURES DESCRIBING courses offered this fall were mailed to residences in Dist. 211. Extra copies are available at the Administration Building, 1750 S. Roselle Road, Palatine.

"The only danger in waiting to register is that some courses close when their maximum enrollment is reached," Mueller said.

O'Hare Anti-Noise Unit Has Roaring Start

The O'Hare Noise Abatement and Air Pollution Council is off to a roaring start this week on an area-wide campaign to seek prompt federal action on major airport problems.

Three of the 17 Northwest suburban communities represented by the council have already passed resolutions seeking support and sympathy from Sen. Charles Percy on the problems of noise abatement and air pollution at O'Hare airport.

Mount Prospect, Elmhurst and Itasca are among the first communities to pass resolutions requesting federal assistance and registering major concern over airport problems, while the majority of towns represented by the council are expected to follow suit later this week.

THE RESOLUTIONS charge "that O'Hare airport continues to be operated and expanded with total disregard for the rights of the residents in neighboring communities. Noise abatement procedures implemented to date by the Federal Aviation Administration are but a token response to the problem.

"As we enter the 1970's with super, jump-jets on the way, the problems of jet noise and air pollution are reaching crisis proportions. We need constructive action now — not more studies, debate or buck passing."

The resolution passed unanimously by the Itasca Village Board, Tuesday, added: "We believe that there has been a failure of responsible public officials to propose constructive solutions to the problems of airport noise. We also feel that the federal government has a significant role to play in dealing with the problem of airport noise."

THE RESOLUTION outlined that the jurisdiction of the federal government included aircraft operations control and the appropriation of federal funds for land use development as well as health, welfare and safety for everyone.

The Mount Prospect Village Board passed its resolution unanimously Tuesday following the remarks of one resident who thought trustees should give the resolution further consideration and study before issuing final approval.

William Krampert, 323 George St., told trustees that although the noise from jet aircraft was bad, Mount Prospect's proximity to the airport is one of its assets. KRAMPERT SAID the airport had its advantages and disadvantages just like the Chicago and North Western Railroad which runs right through the middle of town. "Sure, it's noisy but it's transportation for thousands of Northwest suburban commuters every day," he said.

Trustee Don Furst, delegate to the council, agreed with Krampert in part, but added that trains today aren't "belching black oily smoke" like airplanes.

The resolutions were passed following a request from George Franks of Wood Dale who asked council delegates last week to seek resolutions from their village boards requesting immediate federal action and relief from pressing noise and air pollution problems.

FRANKS, council chairman, met with delegates last week to launch a major campaign to send as many petitions and people to protest against major airport problems at a national seminar on noise abatement and air pollution to be held in Washington, D.C. Oct. 7 through 9.

Other communities expected to pass similar resolutions this week include Bensenville, Wood Dale, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Elk Grove, Addison and Des Plaines.

To Reduce Draft Call

WASHINGTON—U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam, which now will include the entire 3rd Marine Division at the Demilitarized Zone, will result in lower draft calls in the months ahead, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird said yesterday.

He told a news conference he would advise the Selective Service Friday of changes in draft calls as a result of President Nixon's decision to pull an additional 35,000 troops from Vietnam.

Request Benefit Hike

WASHINGTON—President Nixon, in a surprise announcement yesterday said he would ask Congress to increase social security benefits by 10 per cent effective next April 1.

Nixon, who had earlier said he would propose a 7 per cent increase, made the announcement with little elaboration. He said he would spell out his program in a message to Congress next week.

Library Vote To Add Tax?

A referendum for an 8-cent hike in the Wheeling Public Library District tax rate may accompany the referendum for a new library site and building, district trustees said Tuesday night.

Although the tax increase and building referendum may be held at different times, "the hike will be necessary to maintain the new building" and to purchase books for the growing district, according to Charlotte Dolgopol, board president.

The board estimated that at the current tax rate of 12 cents on every $100 of assessed valuation in the district, income would total almost $78,000. By raising the tax rate to 20 cents, the board said, it could expect approximately $115,000.

THE 20-CENT tax-rate would mean a 66 per cent hike in library taxes now paid in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove.

For an average homeowner whose house is assessed at $10,000 taxes would increase from $12 a year to $20 a year. Homes in Cook County are assessed at between 40 and 50 per cent of their market value.

Several board members agreed Tuesday that it would be useless to approve the building referendum only to find the district would not have enough money to operate a larger building.

Trustee Charles J. DuBois Jr. said he thinks both referenda should be presented at the same time to voters, but as separate questions.

THE BOARD HAD PLANNED to consider purchase of St. Marks United Church of Christ at Tuesday's meeting but was unable to vote on an option to purchase the building because Roger Bjorvik, board attorney, was not at the meeting.

Negotiations on the church purchase are pending appraisal of the building. The board decided before adjourning Tuesday that each board member would be sent the option proposal. Board members would be polled by phone so that negotiations could begin before the next board meeting, Oct. 7.

DuBois said the church originally cost approximately $120,000, it would probably be accepted.

The final figure will be determined largely by the assessment figures of both the library board and the church owners, however.

TRUSTEES SAID the church would be ideal for a library. It would give the district three times as much space as it now has in its rented quarters in the Dundee Road-Milwaukee Avenue shopping center.

DuBois said the cost of remodeling the church building would be "considerably lower than the cost of a new building."

Using the church building, the board might have to ask for $250,000 but otherwise, the board would have to present a referendum for $2 million, he said.

Mrs. Dolgopol said the district is trying to get a building as cheaply as possible.

Board members also noted that the building would probably be adequate for the next eight to 10 years. They said expansion would be less expensive because the board already owns property adjacent to the church.

TENTATIVE PLANS, discussed Tuesday, would place the adult reading section in the church's sanctuary and the children's section in a part now split into offices.

DuBois said, "Hopefully the board would be able to hold an option for $1,000 on the church" until after a referendum.

If the referendum fails the money would be refunded, but if it passes and the board is for some reason unable to buy the building, then, the option money would be forfeited.

School Addition Approved

A proposed $3 million addition to Adlai Stevenson High School in Prairie View, won approval from Lake County School Dist. 125 residents Tuesday.

A total of 564 district residents voted "yes" on the referendum to build the addition, with 361 voting "no."

Voting by precincts was as follows: Precinct One, including Dist. 103 residents living east of the Des Plaines River, 294 "yes" votes and 91 "no" votes, with three spoiled ballots.

In Precinct Two, including Dist. 103 residents living west of the Des Plaines River and residents of Dists. 73, 76 and 79, there were 94 "yes" votes and 94 "no" votes with two spoiled ballots.

IN PRECINCT THREE, residents of Dist. 96, there were 118 "yes" votes and 70 "no" votes.

In Precinct Four, residents of Dist. 102, there were 58 "yes" votes and 106 "no" votes, with one spoiled ballot.

Voter turn-out on the referendum was termed "very good" by Ed Ellis, Stevenson business manager.

"Considering that the referendum was on a Tuesday, I think the turn-out was quite good," Ellis said. He noted that the highest number of voters participating in any Dist. 125 referendum in the past was 1,200.

"I think that in passing this referendum the taxpayers have saved themselves a lot of money," Ellis said.

"IN A FEW YEARS construction costs might be higher."

The school district plans to build the addition in two stages. The first, scheduled for completion in the fall of 1971, would include 30 classrooms, a library resource center, a pool and other physical education facilities.

The second addition, which would be in the planning stage while the first was

BGRA Endorses 3

Three of the 10 candidates seeking the five Buffalo Grove Park District posts will be endorsed publicly this week by the board of directors of the Buffalo Grove Recreational Association (BGRA).

The three receiving endorsements are Eugene Muryn, Mrs. Darlene Tufano and Ronald Avildsen. Muryn is a member of the association, however, neither Avildsen nor Mrs. Tufano are members of the BGRA.

Richard Rice, president of the BGRA, said the organization's board of directors had agreed two weeks ago to endorse the three. However, they hadn't planned to publicize their endorsements until this week.

RICE SAID the directors made the endorsements because, "We were looking out for our baseball program." He added, "These candidates have spent many years in recreation and on the Buffalo Grove

WHILE SONS BATTLE on the football field, mothers watch from the bleachers, cheering for their sons' teams and hoping they don't get injured.

Mothers Like Football

by MARIANNE BRETSNYDER

She watched him throw his first pass, and bandaged his first injury. The mother of a high school football player knows part of her son's sport life better than anyone else.

"We go to every game," said Mrs. Howard Mock of Rolling Meadows whose son Howard plays on the Forest View team. She thinks it is a wonderful sport, and her son enjoys it.

"IT KEEPS HIM busy; a child should be interested in something, and they need the encouragement of their parents," she said.

Mrs. Mock said her son plays slot back and defensive halfback. He has also been on the track team, and he was a gymnast.

On the team's chances this year, she said, "We lost the first game, but we hope to win most of them."

Mrs. Mock said Howard has received several letters from football coaches at colleges, and a letter from the Air Force Academy.

HE HAS TO score scholastically too, she added, boys don't get into college on the strength of athletics anymore. She said her son has a good academic record, and if he should get a senator's recommendation, he could go to the Air Force Academy.

Mrs. Robert Carr said her son, Bob, started playing football in sixth grade. He is a guard and linebacker at Palatine High School.

"I always thought he would play, he's been active since he was very young," she said. Her son has always been "first string" she said.

"We never miss a game," Mrs. Carr said, "and the love of the sport comes from his dad."

BOB ALSO PLAYS basketball and baseball, and was on the track team. Sports is a way of life and she said her son is conscious of keeping himself fit. She thinks he'll continue to play in college.

"I think athletics are the greatest thing for a boy," said Mrs. Robert Creek. Her son Jeff plays for Fremd High School. She thinks all boys should play in some kind of sport, even if they're just water boy, she said.

The lessons they learn there, they learn in life and in business she said. It teaches them to work with people, she said.

"He's played since he had a ball in his hands," she said. His sports interest extends to track, tumbling, swimming and skiing.

She worries about him, and said he played the last game with a broken nose. "But he knows what the risks are," she added.

"WE ARE ALL there at the game, including the six year old," Mrs. Creek said. He plays "defensive center and offensive line backer, number 51," she said.

"We hope they will win and take the conference title, if they don't win, they'll have to try a little harder," she said.

Mrs. Harry Menick's son, Mike, is Fremd's offensive end and defensive safety Mike Menick.

"I think it's very good for them, they learn a lot of things, like teamwork and coordination, and how to get along with people," she said.

"They will have to get along with all kinds of people, and learning to get along with the team helps," she said.

"I watch some of the games but his father goes to every game," she said. She saw the first game and said they have hard work ahead of them.

"I don't know how they'll do, but I hope they come out on top," she said.

Electors May Meet Over Easement Request

A request for sewer easement through Wheeling Township property may result in a special township electors' meeting being called during October.

The easement, to run south along the driveway beside the township's garage on Hintz Road, would be used for a storm sewer to carry water from several housing developments in the area.

The sewer proposal is part of an overall plan to drain five developments north of Hintz Road including a portion of the Cambridge subdivision.

The plan was brought about as a result of a long-standing and often heated dispute over storm drainage from the Cambridge subdivision.

Fred Hillman, vice president of Chesterfield Builders Inc., and Don Gustafson, an engineer working on the plan, appeared before the Wheeling Township board of auditors Tuesday requesting the easement.

The auditors questioned Hillman and Gustafson on certain aspects of the easement, then told them that only the electors can grant such an easement.

Hillman told the board that an individual whose property is west of the township had turned down a request for the easement. Hillman said a private contractor would install the sewer, turning it over to the village of Wheeling upon completion.

Wheeling would then be responsible for the maintenance of the sewer.

Also included in the request for the storm sewer easement was a proposal to construct a sanitary sewer next to the storm sewer. However, neither Gustafson nor Hillman elaborated on the sanitary sewer proposal.

The proposed sewer is part of a plan to drain part of the Cambridge subdivision; the proposed Tahoe subdivision, lying south of Cambridge; the Mallard Lake planned development and a piece of property owned by Zale Builders.

Under the plan water would be carried south from Cambridge to a series of retention basins on the other properties involved. Eventually the water would be routed through the sewer that is to be built through the township property. The retention basins will be built as permanent lakes.

Tentative agreement on the plan was reached last July among the several parties involved. Litigation resulting from the four-year-old dispute involved Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, the township highway commissioner, as well as developers in the area.

The several pending lawsuits in connection with the controversy were combined into a single lawsuit, by Judge Daniel Covelli.

Through a series of pre-trial meetings among village officials, the township highway commission, and the developers in the area, a solution to the flooding problem was worked out.

Parties involved in the suit predicted after last summer's tentative agreement that construction on the plan would be complete by the end of the summer. However, such was not the case.

Hillman told the auditors that Wheeling would not grant final approval of the plan until all easements have been secured.

Richard Cowen, the township attorney, said he would discuss the proposed sewer with the Wheeling village engineer. Cowen said, "I want to determine Wheeling's willingness to maintain that easement."

Cowen said he also wanted to be sure that Wheeling would agree to restoring the driveway that runs along the easement in the event work was done on the sewer.

Cowen will report to the auditors at a meeting Oct. 8. He said the auditors "could then proceed to call a special electors meeting."

Meanwhile the auditors plan to tour the bridge on the north, and Buffalo Grove Road on the east. It also includes a portion of a Miller Builders development west of Buffalo Grove Road.

The area to be handled by the drainage plan is bounded by Hintz Road on the south, Jackson Drive on the east, Cam-

Young Predicts 2,000 Vote Victory

by ED MURNANE

One of the most optimistic announcements to date by a 13th Congressional District candidate came yesterday when Samuel H. Young of Glenview announced:

—He is the first candidate to have all 515 13th District precincts manned by his organization.

—He has a 25-member committee of former supporters of Donald Rumsfeld working for him.

—He will win the Oct. 7 primary election by 2,000 votes.

YOUNG SAID surveys by his staff members indicate he will receive "a minimum of 8,000 votes, representing a projected 2,000 vote victory margin over my nearest opponent."

He predicted that approximately 36,000

voters would turn out for the GOP primary, and declined to say who he thought his "nearest opponent" would be.

"I think there are three or four who will be close," Young said. "But a lot of things can happen in the last three weeks and I'd rather not give any names."

There are nine Republicans seeking the seat which was vacated by former Congressman Donald L. Rumsfeld in May. The winner of the primary will compete with Democrat Edward Warman of Skokie on Nov. 25.

YOUNG'S OPTIMISM is based on what he called "snowballing support throughout the district."

He pointed to the fact that he has three township GOP endorsements, more than any of the other candidates, and that two of the endorsements are by township organizations that do not have favorite son candidates in the race. Only three of the seven townships which have made endorsements don't have candidates.

Philip Crane of Winnetka was endorsed by the Palatine Township GOP, defeating Young after several ballots. Townships which have endorsed Young are his own Northfield Township and western townships Elk Grove and Schaumburg.

TOWNSHIP GOP organizations which are supporting "favorite sons" are Wheeling Township, State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights; New Trier Township, State Rep. Alan Johnston of Kenilworth; Niles Township, John Nimrod, and Northfield Township, and Young.

Only Evanston Township has not made a Republican organization endorsement. Young said yesterday he believes he will get most of the Evanston vote, as well as carrying Northfield, Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships.

Two other developments which Young said are "very significant" are his "very well qualified" rating by the Women's Republican Club of New Trier and his recommended endorsement by the board of directors of the Evanston Women's Republican Organization.

HE DID NOT get the Evanston endorsement, he said, because a two-thirds vote was required and with eight other candidates also competing, "it's extremely difficult for one candidate to get two-thirds."

Young said his township-by-township, precinct-by-precinct organization was completed this week. Last week, he announced that two high-ranking Republican officials in Palatine Township had left the GOP organization to work for Young, rather than Crane.

The two, Charles K. Allen of Rolling Meadows and Clayton W. Brown of Palatine are joined by other western township directors Warren McGowney, Elk Grove; L. A. (Roy) Bressler, Wheeling; and Glenn Hoffman, Schaumburg.

The committee of former Rumsfeld supporters is headed by Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher and includes a number of top Republicans from the western end of the district.

STATE REP. DAVID REGNER of Mount Prospect is on the committee, as are Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township Clerk George Busse, Mount Prospect Trustee George Reiter and Elk Grove GOP Pres. Richard Hall.

Schaumburg Township members are Assessor Scott MacEachron, Supervisor Vernon Laubenstein and Collector Ralph Lyerla.

Others from this area are W. Richard Impey of Arlington Heights, Mrs. Earle Miller of Mount Prospect, Mrs. Fred Walter of Rolling Meadows and Mrs. Jeannine Brown of Palatine.

"As active Republicans who were among the early friends and supporters of Donald Rumsfeld, we endorse Young as Don's successor," Atcher's statement said.

"In a fine field of candidates, Young stands out as the best to meet the challenge."

Avildsen Outlines Ideal Park Dist.

by ALAN AKERSON

"The park district board must be made up of persons with a single primary interest in parks and recreation. It must not serve selfish political interests or as a stepping stone for those seeking other political ambitions," said Ronald Avildsen. He was outlining his version of the ideal park district board.

Avildsen wants the park district to be approved by the voters, because "as a park district, we'll have more of a free hand than the park commission has had." He said the park district would take control of the park lands away from the village board.

At the same time he said this, Avildsen pointed out, "I recognize the need to cooperate with the village board to make the park district a success."

AVILDSSEN PREDICTED funds for the parks "would be spent differently once we (the park district) have our own accountants, lawyer and everything."

"The money we get from the village now and what we'll get as a park district are almost the same. But with our added bonding power as a park district, we'll be able to improve our facilities greatly," he said.

Included in Avildsen's list of facilities he would like to see in the parks are tennis courts, baseball diamonds, ice skating rinks and playground equipment.

"I'm quite happy the way the park programs are right now," said Avildsen. "I pushed real hard for the part-time director that we have now."

Avildsen referred to Sam Geati, the director of recreation for the Buffalo Grove parks, as a "full-time, part-time" director because Geati has initiated winter programs for the village's parks.

"BEFORE GEATI was hired, we used to have only summer programs in the village. When the summer was over, everything was forgotten and there were no more programs."

"The hiring of Mr. Geati was a big step. We have a good winter program now."

Avildsen said, "I want to see the district create new programs every year. This year for instance, I think Mr. Geati has taken on a very ambitious program."

Avildsen said he would want the district to continue with a part-time director, though, "eventually we will have to have a full-time director." He pointed out maintenance employees would also have to be hired for the new district.

"If I'm elected, I hope we get a professional planner. I have some ideas, and I'd like to see what the planner would think of them."

Avildsen said that one park planner, "has already told us that the village needs two swimming pools." However, Avildsen doesn't expect the village to be able to afford a pool in less than two years. "Pools are losing propositions," he said, "and we have to be able to afford to lose money on one."

AVILDSSEN CALLED for the village and the park district to work out a system of transferring park property to the district in a manner "consistent with the ability of the district to finance new responsibilities."

If the village turned over all the park lands to the district immediately, "we'd have one heck of a problem on our hands," Avildsen said. He said cooperation between the district and the village board would be essential "during this transition period."

While he expects the village to give some money to the fledgling district, he suggested the district could also use volunteers as a way of getting around its "money" problem until it begins receiving taxes.

AVILDSSEN ALSO WANTS the park district to join the Illinois Association of Park Districts. "I feel that organization could help our district a great deal," Avildsen and the other candidates met with Arthur Schultz, vice president of the association, prior to Schultz' talk last week at the Emmerich Park building. At that talk, Schultz offered to return to help the newly formed district, if the voters approve it.

Avildsen noted he has been endorsed by the directors of the Buffalo Grove Recreational Association. Avildsen also said he endorsed Gene Muryn and Mrs. Darlene Tufano, two other park commissioner candidates. The BGRA directors have also endorsed Muryn and Mrs. Tufano.

Avildsen, a long-time member of the Buffalo Grove Jaycees, has managed several little league baseball teams in Buffalo Grove. He is also a member of the village's present park commission.

RONALD AVILDSSEN

Candidates To Review Park Plans

The 10 candidates running for the five park commissioner posts in connection with Buffalo Grove's proposed park district will get a chance today to present their views.

A candidates' night will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Emmerich Park building under the auspices of the Buffalo Grove Jaycees. All 10 of the candidates have been invited to speak.

A spokesman for the Jaycees said each of the candidates will be given five minutes to speak. A question-and-answer period will follow. Moderator for the event will be Dennis Walsh, a Jaycee.

This Saturday Buffalo Grove area voters want to establish a separate park district. Voters will also select five park commissioners to operate the district, if it is formed.

O'Hare Anti-Noise Unit Has Roaring Start

The O'Hare Noise Abatement and Air Pollution Council is off to a roaring start this week on an area-wide campaign to seek prompt federal action on major airport problems.

Three of the 17 Northwest suburban communities represented by the council have already passed resolutions seeking support and sympathy from Sen. Charles Percy on the problems of noise abatement and air pollution at O'Hare airport.

Mount Prospect, Elmhurst and Itasca are among the first communities to pass resolutions requesting federal assistance and registering major concern over air-proportions. We need constructive action now — not more studies, debate or buck passing."

The resolution passed unanimously by the Itasca Village Board, Tuesday, added: "We believe that there has been a failure of responsible public officials to propose constructive solutions to the problems of airport noise. We also feel that the federal government has a significant role to play in dealing with the problem of airport noise."

THE RESOLUTION outlined that the jurisdiction of the federal government included aircraft operations control and the appropriation of federal funds for land use development as well as health, welfare and safety for everyone.

The Mount Prospect Village Board passed its resolution unanimously Tuesday following the remarks of one resident who thought trustees should give the resolution further consideration and study before issuing final approval.

William Krampert, 323 George St., told trustees that although the noise from jet aircraft was bad, Mount Prospect's proximity to the airport is one of its assets.

To Reduce Draft Call

WASHINGTON—U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam, which now will include the entire 3rd Marine Division at the Demilitarized Zone, will result in lower draft calls in the months ahead, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird said yesterday.

He told a news conference he would advise the Selective Service Friday of changes in draft calls as a result of President Nixon's decision to pull an additional 35,000 troops from Vietnam.

Request Benefit Hike

WASHINGTON—President Nixon, in a surprise announcement yesterday said he would ask Congress to increase social security benefits by 10 per cent effective next April 1.

Nixon, who had earlier said he would propose a 7 per cent increase, made the announcement with little elaboration. He said he would spell out his program in a message to Congress next week.

WHILE SONS BATTLE on the football field, mothers watch from the bleachers, cheering for their sons' teams and hoping they don't get injured.

Mothers Like Football

by MARIANNE BRETENSYDER

She watched him throw his first pass, and bandaged his first injury. The mother of a high school football player knows part of her son's sport life better than anyone else.

"We go to every game," said Mrs. Howard Mock of Rolling Meadows whose son Howard plays on the Forest View team. She thinks it is a wonderful sport, and her son enjoys it.

"IT KEEPS HIM busy; a child should be interested in something, and they need the encouragement of their parents," she said.

Mrs. Mock said her son plays slot back and defensive halfback. He has also been on the track team, and he was a gymnast.

On the team's chances this year, she said, "We lost the first game, but we hope to win most of them."

Mrs. Mock said Howard has received several letters from football coaches at colleges, and a letter from the Air Force Academy.

HE HAS to score scholastically too, she added, boys don't get into college on the strength of athletics anymore. She said her son has a good academic record, and if he should get a senator's recommendation, he could go to the Air Force Academy.

Mrs. Robert Carr said her son, Bob, started playing football in sixth grade. He is a guard and linebacker at Palatine High School.

"I always thought he would play, he's been active since he was very young," she said. Her son has always been "first string," she said.

"We never miss a game," Mrs. Carr said, "and the love of the sport comes from his dad."

BOB ALSO PLAYS basketball and baseball, and was on the track team. Sports is a way of life and she said her son is conscious of keeping himself fit. She thinks he'll continue to play in college.

"I think athletics are the greatest thing for a boy," said Mrs. Robert Carr. Her son Jeff plays for Fremd High School. She thinks all boys should play in some kind of sport, even if they're just water boy, she said.

The lessons they learn there, they learn in life and in business she said. It teaches them to work with people, she said.

"He's played since he had a ball in his hands," she said. His sports interest extends to track, tumbling, swimming and skiing.

She worries about him, and said he played the last game with a broken nose. "But he knows what the risks are," she added.

"WE ARE ALL there at the game, including the six year old," Mrs. Creek said. He plays "defensive center and offensive line backer, number 51," she said.

"We hope they will win and take the conference title, if they don't win, they'll have to try a little harder," she said.

Mrs. Harry Menick's son, Mike, is Fremd's offensive end and defensive safety Mike Menick.

"I think it's very good for them, they learn a lot of things, like teamwork and coordination, and how to get along with people," she said.

"They will have to get along with all kinds of people, and learning to get along with the team helps," she said.

"I watch some of the games but his father goes to every game," she said. She saw the first game and said they have hard work ahead of them.

"I don't know how they'll do, but I hope they come out on top," she said.

Spaghetti Dinner Is Set By Boy Scouts

Boy Scout Troop 262 will hold a spaghetti dinner Sunday at the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, Hintz and Elmhurst Rds., in Prospect Heights.

Funds from the dinner, which begins at 12:30 p.m. will pay for troop supplies. Tickets will be available at the door at $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children.

School Addition Approved

A proposed $3 million addition to Adlai Stevenson High School in Prairie View, won approval from Lake County School Dist. 125 residents Tuesday.

A total of 564 district residents voted "yes" on the referendum to build the addition, with 361 voting "no."

Voting by precincts was as follows: Precinct One, including Dist. 103 residents living east of the Des Plaines River, 294 "yes" votes and 91 "no" votes, with three spoiled ballots.

In Precinct Two, including Dist. 103 residents living west of the Des Plaines River and residents of Dist. 73, 76 and 79, there were 94 "yes" votes and 94 "no" votes with two spoiled ballots.

IN PRECINCT THREE, residents of Dist. 96, there were 118 "yes" votes and 70 "no" votes.

In Precinct Four, residents of Dist. 102, there were 58 "yes" votes and 106 "no" votes, with one spoiled ballot.

Voter turnout on the referendum was termed "very good" by Ed Ellis, Stevenson business manager.

"Considering that the referendum was on a Tuesday, I think the turnout was quite good," Ellis said. He noted that the highest number of voters participating in any Dist. 125 referendum in the past was 1,200.

"I think that in passing this referendum the taxpayers have saved themselves a lot of money," Ellis said.

"IN A FEW YEARS construction costs might be higher."

The school district plans to build the addition in two stages. The first, scheduled for completion in the fall of 1971, would include 30 classrooms, a library resource center, a pool and other physical education facilities.

The second addition, which would be in the planning stage while the first was being completed, would include classroom space only.

Ellis said now that the addition has won voter approval, the district will "try to attack the bond market," and direct the architect to draw up final plans for the addition.

He said that bids on the first phase of the addition would probably be let soon after the first of next year.

BGRA Endorses 3

Three of the 10 candidates seeking the five Buffalo Grove Park District posts will be endorsed publicly this week by the board of directors of the Buffalo Grove Recreational Association (BGRA).

The three receiving endorsements are Eugene Muryn, Mrs. Darlene Tufano and Ronald Avidsen. Muryn is a member of the association, however, neither Avidsen nor Mrs. Tufano are members of the BGRA.

Richard Rice, president of the BGRA, said the organization's board of directors had agreed two weeks ago to endorse the three. However, they hadn't planned to publicize their endorsements until this week.

RICE SAID THE directors made the endorsements because, "We were looking out for our baseball program." He added, "These candidates have spent many years in recreation and on the Buffalo Grove park commission." More than 420 boys participate in the BGRA little league baseball program in Buffalo Grove. Approximately 300 belong to the BGRA.

Rice said a handbill would be distributed throughout the village listing the group's endorsements. Members of the association's little league baseball teams would distribute the handbills, he said.

THE DIRECTORS also chose to endorse passage of the referendum on the park district, Rice said.

Members of the board of directors that drew up the endorsements besides Rice are Bob Dinschel, John Mason, and Robert Callahan.

Callahan is also one of the candidates for the park commissioner posts. However, Rice said that during the directors' meeting on endorsements, Callahan was against the directors' endorsing any of the candidates.

Electors May Meet Over Easement Request

A request for sewer easement through Wheeling Township property may result in a special township electors' meeting being called during October.

The easement, to run south along the driveway beside the township's garage on Hintz Road, would be used for a storm sewer to carry water from several housing developments in the area.

The sewer proposal is part of an overall plan to drain five developments north of Hintz Road including a portion of the Cambridge subdivision.

The plan was brought about as a result of a long-standing and often heated dispute over storm drainage from the Cambridge subdivision.

Fred Hillman, vice president of Chesterfield Builders Inc., and Don Gustafson, an engineer working on the plan, appeared before the Wheeling Township board of auditors Tuesday requesting the easement.

The auditors questioned Hillman and Gustafson on certain aspects of the easement, then told them that only the electors can grant such an easement.

Hillman told the board that an individual whose property is west of the township had turned down a request for the easement. Hillman said a private contractor would install the sewer, turning it over to the village of Wheeling upon completion.

Wheeling would then be responsible for the maintenance of the sewer.

Also included in the request for the storm sewer easement was a proposal to construct a sanitary sewer next to the storm sewer. However, neither Gustafson nor Hillman elaborated on the sanitary sewer proposal.

The proposed sewer is part of a plan to drain part of the Cambridge subdivision; the proposed Tahoe subdivision, lying south of Cambridge; the Mallard Lake planned development and a piece of property owned by Zale Builders.

Under the plan water would be carried south from Cambridge to a series of retention basins on the other properties involved. Eventually the water would be routed through the sewer that is to be built through the township property. The retention basins will be built as permanent lakes.

Tentative agreement on the plan was reached last July among the several parties involved. Litigation resulting from the four-year-old dispute involved Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, the township highway commissioner, as well as developers in the area.

The several pending lawsuits in connection with the controversy were combined into a single lawsuit, by Judge Daniel Covelli.

Through a series of pre-trial meetings among village officials, the township highway commission, and the developers in the area, a solution to the flooding problem was worked out.

Parties involved in the suit predicted after last summer's tentative agreement that construction on the plan would be complete by the end of the summer. However, such was not the case.

Hillman told the auditors that Wheeling would not grant final approval of the plan until all easements have been secured.

Richard Cowen, the township attorney, said he would discuss the proposed sewer with the Wheeling village engineer. Cowen said, "I want to determine Wheeling's willingness to maintain that easement."

Cowen said he also wanted to be sure that Wheeling would agree to restoring the driveway that runs along the easement in the event work was done on the sewer.

Cowen will report to the auditors at a meeting Oct. 8. He said the auditors "could then proceed to call a special electors meeting."

Meanwhile the auditors plan to tour the bridge on the north, and Buffalo Grove Road on the east. It also includes a portion of a Miller Builders development west of Buffalo Grove Road.

The area to be handled by the drainage plan is bounded by Hintz Road on the south, Jackson Drive on the east, Cam-

Young Predicts 2,000 Vote Victory

by ED MURNANE

One of the most optimistic announcements to date by a 13th Congressional District candidate came yesterday when Samuel H. Young of Glenview announced:

—He is the first candidate to have all 515 13th District precincts named by his organization.

—He has a 25-member committee of former supporters of Donald Rumsfeld working for him.

—He will win the Oct. 7 primary election by 2,000 votes.

YOUNG SAID surveys by his staff members indicate he will receive "a minimum of 3,000 votes, representing a projected 2,000 vote victory margin over my nearest opponent."

He predicted that approximately 30,000

voters would turn out for the GOP primary, and declined to say who he thought his "nearest opponent" would be.

"I think there are three or four who will be close," Young said. "But a lot of things can happen in the last three weeks and I'd rather not give any names."

There are nine Republicans seeking the seat which was vacated by former Congressman Donald L. Rumsfeld in May. The winner of the primary will compete with Democrat Edward Warman of Skokie on Nov. 25.

YOUNG'S OPTIMISM is based on what he called "snowballing support throughout the district."

He pointed to the fact that he has three township GOP endorsements, more than any of the other candidates, and that two of the endorsements are by township organizations that do not have favorite son candidates in the race. Only three of the seven townships which have made endorsements don't have candidates.

Philip Crane of Winnetka was endorsed by the Palatine Township GOP, defeating Young after several ballots. Townships which have endorsed Young are his own Northfield Township and western townships Elk Grove and Schaumburg.

TOWNSHIP GOP organizations which are supporting "favorite sons" are Wheeling Township, State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights; New Trier Township, State Rep. Alan Johnston of Kenilworth; Niles Township, John Nimrod, and Northfield Township, and Young.

Only Evanston Township has not made a Republican organization endorsement. Young said yesterday he believes he will get most of the Evanston vote, as well as carrying Northfield, Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships.

Two other developments which Young said are "very significant" are his "very well qualified" rating by the Women's Republican Club of New Trier and his recommended endorsement by the board of directors of the Evanston Women's Republican Organization.

HE DID NOT get the Evanston endorsement, he said, because a two-thirds vote was required and with eight other candidates also competing, "it's extremely difficult for one candidate to get two-thirds."

Young said his township-by-township, precinct-by-precinct organization was completed this week. Last week, he announced that two high-ranking Republican officials in Palatine Township had left the GOP organization to work for Young, rather than Crane.

The two, Charles K. Allen of Rolling Meadows and Clayton W. Brown of Palatine are joined by other western township directors Warren McGovney, Elk Grove; L. A. (Roy) Bressler, Wheeling; and Glenn Hoffman, Schaumburg.

STATE REP. DAVID REGNER of Mount Prospect is on the committee, as are Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township Clerk George Busse, Mount Prospect Trustee George Reiter and Elk Grove GOP Pres. Richard Hall.

Schaumburg Township members are Assessor Scott MacEachron, Supervisor Vernon Laubenstein and Collector Ralph Lyerla.

Others from this area are W. Richard Impey of Arlington Heights, Mrs. Earle Miller of Mount Prospect, Mrs. Fred Walter of Rolling Meadows and Mrs. Jeannine Brown of Palatine.

"As active Republicans who were among the early friends and supporters of Donald Rumsfeld, we endorse Young as Don's successor," Atcher's statement said.

"In a fine field of candidates, Young stands out as the best to meet the challenge."

Avildsen Outlines Ideal Park Dist.

by ALAN AKERSON

"The park district board must be made up of persons with a single primary interest in parks and recreation. It must not serve selfish political interests or as a stepping stone for those seeking other political ambitions," said Ronald Avildsen. He was outlining his version of the ideal park district board.

Avildsen wants the park district to be approved by the voters, because "as a park district, we'll have more of a free hand than the park commission has had." He said the park district would take control of the park lands away from the village board.

At the same time he said this, Avildsen pointed out, "I recognize the need to cooperate with the village board to make the park district a success."

AVILDSEN PREDICTED funds for the parks "would be spent differently once we (the park district) have our own accountants, lawyer and everything."

"The money we get from the village now and what we'll get as a park district are almost the same. But with our added bonding power as a park district, we'll be able to improve our facilities greatly," he said.

Included in Avildsen's list of facilities he would like to see in the parks are tennis courts, baseball diamonds, ice skating rinks and playground equipment.

"I'm quite happy the way the park programs are right now," said Avildsen. "I pushed real hard for the part-time director that we have now."

Avildsen referred to Sam Geati, the director of recreation for the Buffalo Grove parks, as a "full-time, part-time" director because Geati has initiated winter programs for the village's parks.

"BEFORE GEATI was hired, we used to have only summer programs in the village. When the summer was over, everything was forgotten and there were no more programs."

"The hiring of Mr. Geati was a big step. We have a good winter program now."

Avildsen said, "I want to see the district create new programs every year. This year for instance, I think Mr. Geati has taken on a very ambitious program."

Avildsen said he would want the district to continue with a part-time director, though, "eventually we will have to have a full-time director." He pointed out maintenance employees would also have to be hired for the new district.

"If I'm elected, I hope we get a professional planner. I have some ideas, and I'd like to see what the planner would think of them."

Avildsen said that one park planner, "has already told us that the village needs two swimming pools." However, Avildsen doesn't expect the village to be able to

AVILDSEN CALLED FOR the village and the park district to work out a system of transferring park property to the district in a manner "consistent with the ability of the district to finance new responsibilities."

If the village turned over all the park lands to the district immediately, "we'd have one heck of a problem on our hands," Avildsen said. He said cooperation between the district and the village board would be essential "during this transition period."

While he expects the village to give some money to the fledgling district, he suggested the district could also use volunteers as a way of getting around its "money" problem until it begins receiving

Candidates To Review Park Plans

The 10 candidates running for the five park commissioner posts in connection with Buffalo Grove's proposed park district will get a chance today to present their views.

A candidates' night will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Emmerich Park building under the auspices of the Buffalo Grove Jaycees. All 10 of the candidates have been invited to speak.

A spokesman for the Jaycees said each of the candidates will be given five minutes to speak. A question-and-answer period will follow. Moderator for the event will be Dennis Walsh, a Jaycee.

This Saturday Buffalo Grove area voters want to establish a separate park district. Voters will also select five park commissioners to operate the district, if it is formed.

O'Hare Anti-Noise Unit Has Roaring Start

The O'Hare Noise Abatement and Air Pollution Council is off to a roaring start this week on an area-wide campaign to seek prompt federal action on major airport problems.

Three of the 17 Northwest suburban communities represented by the council have already passed resolutions seeking support and sympathy from Sen. Charles Percy on the problems of noise abatement and air pollution at O'Hare airport.

Mount Prospect, Elmhurst and Itasca are among the first communities to pass resolutions requesting federal assistance and registering major concern over airport problems, while the majority of towns represented by the council are expected to follow suit later this week.

THE RESOLUTIONS charge "that O'Hare airport continues to be operated and expanded with total disregard for the rights of the residents in neighboring communities. Noise abatement procedures implemented to date by the Federal Aviation Administration are but a token response to the problem.

"As we enter the 1970's with super, jumbo jets on the way, the problems of jet noise and air pollution are reaching crisis proportions. We need constructive action now — not more studies, debate or buck passing."

The resolution passed unanimously by the Itasca Village Board, Tuesday, added: "We believe that there has been a failure of responsible public officials to propose constructive solutions to the problems of airport noise. We also feel that the federal government has a significant role to play in dealing with the problem of airport noise."

THE RESOLUTION outlined that the jurisdiction of the federal government included aircraft operations control and the appropriation of federal funds for land use development as well as health, welfare and safety for everyone.

The Mount Prospect Village Board passed its resolution unanimously Tuesday following the remarks of one resident who thought trustees should give the resolution further consideration and study before issuing final approval.

William Krampert, 323 George St., told trustees that although the noise from jet aircraft was bad, Mount Prospect's proximity to the airport is one of its assets.

KRAMPERT SAID the airport had its advantages and disadvantages just like the Chicago and North Western Railroad which runs right through the middle of town. "Sure, it's noisy but it's transportation for thousands of Northwest suburban commuters every day," he said.

Trustee Don Furst, delegate to the council, agreed with Krampert in part, but added that trains today aren't "belching black oily smoke" like airplanes.

The resolutions were passed following a request from George Franks of Wood Dale who asked council delegates last week to seek resolutions from their village boards requesting immediate federal action and relief from pressing noise and air pollution problems.

FRANKS, council chairman, met with delegates last week to launch a major campaign to send as many petitions and people to protest against major airport problems at a national seminar on noise abatement and air pollution to be held in Washington, D.C. Oct. 7 through 9.

Other communities expected to pass similar resolutions this week include Bensenville, Wood Dale, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Elk Grove, Addison and Des Plaines.

Library Vote To Add Tax?

A referendum for an 8-cent hike in the Wheeling Public Library District tax rate may accompany the referendum for a new library site and building, district trustees said Tuesday night.

Although the tax increase and building referenda may be held at different times, "the hike will be necessary to maintain the new building" and to purchase books for the growing district, according to Charlotte Dolgopel, board president.

The board estimated that at the current tax rate of 12 cents on every $100 of assessed valuation in the district, income would total almost $76,000. By raising the tax rate to 20 cents, the board said, it could expect approximately $115,000.

THE 20-CENT tax-rate would mean a 66 per cent hike in library taxes now paid in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove.

For an average homeowner whose house is assessed at $10,000 taxes would increase from $12 a year to $20 a year. Homes in Cook County are assessed at between 40 and 50 per cent of their market value.

Several board members agreed Tuesday that it would be useless to approve the building referendum only to find the district would not have enough money to operate a larger building.

Trustee Charles J. DuBois Jr. said he thinks both referenda should be presented at the same time to voters, but as separate questions.

THE BOARD HAD PLANNED to consider purchase of St. Marks United Church of Christ at Tuesday's meeting but was unable to vote on an option to purchase the building because Roger Bjorvik, board attorney, was not at the meeting.

Negotiations on the church purchase are pending appraisal of the building. The board decided before adjourning Tuesday that each board member would be sent the option proposal. Board members would be polled by phone so that negotiations could begin before the next board meeting, Oct. 7.

DuBois said the church originally cost approximately $120,000, it would probably be accepted.

The final figure will be determined largely by the assessment figures of both the library board and the church owners, however.

TRUSTEES SAID the church would be ideal for a library. It would give the district three times as much space as it now has in its rented quarters in the Dundee Road-Milwaukee Avenue shopping center.

DuBois said the cost of remodeling the church building would be "considerably lower than the cost of a new building."

Using the church building, the board might have to ask for $250,000 but otherwise, the board would have to present a referendum for $2 million, he said.

Mrs. Dolgopel said the district is trying to get a building as cheaply as possible.

Board members also noted that the building would probably be adequate for the next eight to 10 years. They said expansion would be less expensive because the board already owns property adjacent to the church.

TENTATIVE PLANS, discussed Tuesday, would place the adult reading section in the church's sanctuary and the children's section in a part now split into offices.

DuBois said, "Hopefully the board would be able to hold an option for $1,000 on the church" until after a referendum.

If the referendum fails the money would be refunded, but if it passes and the board is for some reason unable to buy the building, then, the option money would be forfeited.

School Addition Approved

A proposed $3 million addition to Adlai Stevenson High School in Prairie View, won approval from Lake County School Dist. 125 residents Tuesday.

A total of 564 district residents voted "yes" on the referendum to build the addition, with 381 voting "no."

Voting by precincts was as follows: Precinct One, including Dist. 103 residents living east of the Des Plaines River, 294 "yes" votes and 91 "no" votes, with three spoiled ballots.

In Precinct Two, including Dist. 103 residents living west of the Des Plaines River and residents of Dist. 73, 76 and 79, there were 94 "yes" votes and 94 "no" votes with two spoiled ballots.

IN PRECINCT THREE, residents of Dist. 96, there were 118 "yes" votes and 70 "no" votes.

In Precinct Four, residents of Dist. 102, there were 58 "yes" votes and 106 "no" votes, with one spoiled ballot.

Voter turn-out on the referendum was termed "very good" by Ed Ellis, Stevenson business manager.

"Considering that the referendum was on a Tuesday, I think the turn-out was quite good," Ellis said. He noted that the highest number of voters participating in any Dist. 125 referendum in the past was 1,200.

Mrs. Mock said her son plays slot back and defensive halfback. He has also been on the track team, and he was a gymnast.

On the team's chances this year, she said, "We lost the first game, but we hope to win most of them."

Mrs. Mock said Howard has received several letters from football coaches at colleges, and a letter from the Air Force Academy.

HE HAS TO score scholastically too, she added, boys don't get into college on the strength of athletics anymore. She said her son has a good academic record, and if he should get a senator's recommendation, he could go to the Air Force Academy.

Mrs. Robert Carr said her son, Bob, started playing football in sixth grade. He is a guard and linebacker at Palatine High School.

"I always thought he would play, he's been active since he was very young," she said. Her son has always been "first string," she said.

"We never miss a game," Mrs. Carr said, "and the love of the sport comes from his dad."

BOB ALSO PLAYS basketball and baseball, and was on the track team. Sports is a way of life and she said her son is conscious of keeping himself fit. She thinks he'll continue to play in college.

"I think athletics are the greatest thing for a boy," said Mrs. Robert Creek. Her son Jeff plays for Fremd High School. She thinks all boys should play in some kind of sport, even if they're just water boy, she said.

The lessons they learn there, they learn in life and in business she said. It teaches them to work with people, she said.

"He's played since he had a ball in his hands," she said. His sports interest extends to track, tumbling, swimming and skiing.

She worries about him, and said he played the last game with a broken nose. "But he knows what the risks are," she added.

"WE ARE ALL there at the game, including the six year old," Mrs. Creek said. He plays "defensive center and offensive line backer, number 51," she said.

"We hope they will win and take the conference title, if they don't win, they'll have to try a little harder," she said.

Mrs. Harry Menick's son, Mike, is Fremd's offensive end and defensive safety Mike Menick.

"I think it's very good for them, they learn a lot of things, like teamwork and coordination, and how to get along with people," she said.

"They will have to get along with all kinds of people, and learning to get along with the team helps," she said.

"I watch some of the games but his father goes to every game," she said. She saw the first game and said they have hard work ahead of them.

"I don't know how they'll do, but I hope they come out on top," she said.

Spaghetti Dinner Is Set By Boy Scouts

Boy Scout Troop 262 will hold a spaghetti dinner Sunday at the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, Hintz and Elmhurst Rds., in Prospect Heights.

Funds from the dinner, which begins at 12:30 p.m., will pay for troop supplies. Tickets will be available at the door at $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children.

Electors May Meet Over Easement Request

A request for sewer easement through Wheeling Township property may result in a special township electors' meeting being called during October.

The easement, to run south along the driveway beside the township's garage on Hintz Road, would be used for a storm sewer to carry water from several housing developments in the area.

The sewer proposal is part of an overall plan to drain five developments north of Hintz Road including a portion of the Cambridge subdivision.

The plan was brought about as a result of a long-standing and often heated dispute over storm drainage from the Cambridge subdivision.

Fred Hillman, vice president of Chesterfield Builders Inc., and Don Gustafson, an engineer working on the plan, appeared before the Wheeling Township board of auditors Tuesday requesting the easement.

The auditors questioned Hillman and Gustafson on certain aspects of the easement, then told them that only the electors can grant such an easement.

Hillman told the board that an individual whose property is west of the township had turned down a request for the easement. Hillman said a private contractor would install the sewer, turning it over to the village of Wheeling upon completion.

Wheeling would then be responsible for the maintenance of the sewer.

Also included in the request for the storm sewer easement was a proposal to construct a sanitary sewer next to the storm sewer. However, neither Gustafson nor Hillman elaborated on the sanitary sewer proposal.

The proposed sewer is part of a plan to drain part of the Cambridge subdivision; the proposed Tahoe subdivision, lying south of Cambridge; the Mallard Lake planned development and a piece of property owned by Zale Builders.

Under the plan water would be carried south from Cambridge to a series of retention basins on the other properties involved. Eventually the water would be routed through the sewer, that is to be built through the township property. The retention basins will be built as permanent lakes.

Tentative agreement on the plan was reached last July among the several parties involved. Litigation resulting from the four-year-old dispute involved Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, the township highway commissioner, as well as developers in the area.

The several pending lawsuits in connection with the controversy were combined into a single lawsuit, by Judge Daniel Covelli.

Through a series of pre-trial meetings among village officials, the township highway commission, and the developers in the area, a solution to the flooding problem was worked out.

Parties involved in the suit predicted after last summer's tentative agreement that construction on the plan would be complete by the end of the summer. However, such was not the case.

Hillman told the auditors that Wheeling would not grant final approval of the plan until all easements have been secured.

Richard Cowen, the township attorney, said he would discuss the proposed sewer with the Wheeling village engineer. Cowen said, "I want to determine Wheeling's willingness to maintain that easement."

Cowen said he also wanted to be sure that Wheeling would agree to restoring the driveway that runs along the easement in the event work was done on the sewer.

Cowen will report to the auditors at a meeting Oct. 8. He said the auditors "could then proceed to call a special electors meeting."

Meanwhile the auditors plan to tour the bridge on the north, and Buffalo Grove Road on the east. It also includes a portion of a Miller Builders development west of Buffalo Grove Road.

The area to be handled by the drainage plan is bounded by Hintz Road on the south, Jackson Drive on the east, Cam-

Young Predicts 2,000 Vote Victory

by ED MURNANE

One of the most optimistic announcements to date by a 13th Congressional District candidate came yesterday when Samuel H. Young of Glenview announced:

—He is the first candidate to have all 515 13th District precincts manned by his organization.

—He has a 25-member committee of former supporters of Donald Rumsfeld working for him.

—He will win the Oct. 7 primary election by 2,000 votes.

YOUNG SAID surveys by his staff members indicate he will receive "a minimum of 8,000 votes, representing a projected 2,000 vote victory margin over my nearest opponent."

He predicted that approximately 36,000

voters would turn out for the GOP primary, and declined to say who he thought his "nearest opponent" would be.

"I think there are three or four who will be close," Young said. "But a lot of things can happen in the last three weeks and I'd rather not give any names."

There are nine Republicans seeking the seat which was vacated by former Congressman Donald L. Rumsfeld in May. The winner of the primary will compete with Democrat Edward Warman of Skokie on Nov. 25.

YOUNG'S OPTIMISM is based on what he called "snowballing support throughout the district."

He pointed to the fact that he has three township GOP endorsements, more than any of the other candidates, and that two of the endorsements are by township organizations that do not have favorite son candidates in the race. Only three of the seven townships which have made endorsements don't have candidates.

Philip Crane of Winnetka was endorsed by the Palatine Township GOP, defeating Young after several ballots. Townships which have endorsed Young are his own Northfield Township and western townships Elk Grove and Schaumburg.

TOWNSHIP GOP organizations which are supporting "favorite sons" are Wheeling Township, State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights; New Trier Township, State Rep. Alan Johnston of Kenilworth; Niles Township, John Nimrod, and Northfield Township, and Young.

Only Evanston Township has not made a Republican organization endorsement. Young said yesterday he believes he will get most of the Evanston vote, as well as carrying Northfield, Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships.

Two other developments which Young said are "very significant" are his "very well qualified" rating by the Women's Republican Club of New Trier and his recommended endorsement by the board of directors of the Evanston Women's Republican Organization.

HE DID NOT get the Evanston endorsement, he said, because a two-thirds vote was required and with eight other candidates also competing, "it's extremely difficult for one candidate to get two-thirds."

Young said his township-by-township, precinct-by-precinct organization was completed this week. Last week, he announced that two high-ranking Republican officials in Palatine Township had left the GOP organization to work for Young, rather than Crane.

The two, Charles K. Allen of Rolling Meadows and Clayton W. Brown of Palatine are joined by other western township directors Warren McGowney, Elk Grove; L. A. (Roy) Bressler, Wheeling; and Glenn Hoffman, Schaumburg.

The committee of former Rumsfeld supporters is headed by Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher and includes a number of top Republicans from the western end of the district.

STATE REP. DAVID REGNER of Mount Prospect is on the committee, as are Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township Clerk George Busse, Mount Prospect Trustee George Reiter and Elk Grove GOP Pres. Richard Hall.

Schaumburg Township members are Assessor Scott MacEachron, Supervisor Vernon Laubenstein and Collector Ralph Lyerla.

Others from this area are W. Richard Impey of Arlington Heights, Mrs. Earle Miller of Mount Prospect, Mrs. Fred Walter of Rolling Meadows and Mrs. Jeannine Brown of Palatine.

"As active Republicans who were among the early friends and supporters of Donald Rumsfeld, we endorse Young as Don's successor," Atcher's statement said.

"In a fine field of candidates, Young stands out as the best to meet the challenge."

Avildsen Outlines Ideal Park Dist.

by ALAN AKERSON

"The park district board must be made up of persons with a single primary interest in parks and recreation. It must not serve selfish political interests or as a stepping stone for those seeking other political ambitions," said Ronald Avildsen. He was outlining his version of the ideal park district board.

Avildsen wants the park district to be approved by the voters, because "as a park district, we'll have more of a free hand than the park commission has had." He said the park district would take control of the park lands away from the village board.

At the same time he said this, Avildsen pointed out, "I recognize the need to cooperate with the village board to make the park district a success."

AVILDSSEN PREDICTED funds for the parks "would be spent differently once we (the park district) have our own accountant, lawyer and everything."

"The money we get from the village now and what we'll get as a park district are almost the same. But with our added bonding power as a park district, we'll be able to improve our facilities greatly," he said.

Included in Avildsen's list of facilities he would like to see in the parks are tennis courts, baseball diamonds, ice skating, rinks and playground equipment.

"I'm quite happy the way the park programs are right now," said Avildsen. "I pushed real hard for the part-time director that we have now."

Avildsen referred to Sam Geati, the director of recreation for the Buffalo Grove parks, as a "full-time, part-time" director because Geati has initiated winter programs for the village's parks.

"BEFORE GEATI was hired, we used to have only summer programs in the village. When the summer was over, everything was forgotten and there were no more programs."

"The hiring of Mr. Geati was a big step. We have a good winter program now."

Avildsen said, "I want to see the district create new programs every year. This year for instance, I think Mr. Geati has taken on a very ambitious program."

Avildsen said he would want the district to continue with a part-time director, though, "eventually we will have to have a full-time director." He pointed out maintenance employees would also have to be hired for the new district.

"If I'm elected, I hope we get a professional planner. I have some ideas, and I'd like to see what the planner would think of them."

Avildsen said that one park planner, "has already told us that the village needs two swimming pools." However, Avildsen doesn't expect the village to be able to

AVILDSSEN CALLED FOR the village and the park district to work out a system of transferring park property to the district in a manner "consistent with the ability of the district to finance new responsibilities."

If the village turned over all the park lands to the district immediately, "we'd have one heck of a problem on our hands," Avildsen said. He said cooperation between the district and the village board would be essential "during this transition period."

While he expects the village to give some money to the fledgling district, he suggested the district could also use volunteers as a way of getting around its "money" problem until it begins receiving

Candidates To Review Park Plans

The 10 candidates running for the five park commissioner posts in connection with Buffalo Grove's proposed park district will get a chance today to present their views.

A candidates' night, will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Eisenhower Park building under the auspices of the Buffalo Grove Jaycees. All 10 of the candidates have been invited to speak.

A spokesman for the Jaycees said each of the candidates will be given five minutes to speak. A question-and-answer period will follow. Moderator for the event will be Dennis Walsh, a Jaycee.

This Saturday Buffalo Grove area voters want to establish a separate park district. Voters will also select five park commissioners to operate the district, if it is formed.

To Reduce Draft Call

WASHINGTON—U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam, which now will include the entire 3rd Marine Division at the Demilitarized Zone, will result in lower draft calls in the months ahead, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird said yesterday.

He told a news conference he would advise the Selective Service Friday of changes in draft calls as a result of President Nixon's decision to pull an additional 35,000 troops from Vietnam.

Request Benefit Hike

WASHINGTON—President Nixon, in a surprise announcement yesterday said he would ask Congress to increase social security benefits by 10 per cent effective next April 1.

Nixon, who had earlier said he would propose a 7 per cent increase, made the announcement with little elaboration. He said he would spell out his program in a message to Congress next week.

Agnew Aims for Mars

WASHINGTON—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, chairman of the special task force on post-Apollo programs, has recommended that President Nixon call for a manned space flight to Mars about 1986, the White House said yesterday.

Recommendations in the task force report, would push space expenditures to about $8 billion annually in the early 1980s, compared to about $3 billion a year now.

Judge Wants Action

WASHINGTON—Judge Clement Haynsworth Jr. urged the Senate yesterday to kill his nomination to the Supreme Court if it doubts "the propriety of what I did" in a controversial 1963 court case.

Haynsworth, chief judge of the fourth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va. said the Senate should make up its own mind about the allegations.

Draper Unveils Complex

Plans for the 110-acre Countryside development in Palatine Township estimated to cost between $15 and $18 million were discussed this week with village trustees.

Located near the intersection of Baldwin and Colfax streets between Northwest Highway and Dundee Road, the land will be developed by Lou Draper, local builder, who told the board construction of the first apartment building could begin this fall so models will be ready by spring.

In addition to more than 1,000 apartments, the project includes almost 14 acres of commercial land. Proposed for the area is a shopping center and theater.

"WE HAD HOPED TO get a legitimate theater group interested in the location, but present indications are the theater will be used primarily for movie showing," Draper said.

An estimated four-year project, the first phase of construction will include seven apartment buildings and some commercial spots.

Draper also said it's likely he will donate a 10-acre site to Countryside YMCA which plans to build a recreational facility in the area.

Previously an agreement between the local developer and the "Y" was reached for purchase of the land.

"BUT THE 'Y' HAS been so helpful in getting plans underway for the area, it's possible we'll donate the land," Draper said.

He said the "Y" plans to begin construction in spring of 1971 so the facility will be in operation by 1972.

Present plans indicate each apartment building will be two-stories high and include 40 apartment units.

As Palatine officials recommended, there will be no three bedroom units, according to Draper.

"THE APARTMENTS are bigger than the average size," he said.

One-bedroom units will cover about 800 square feet and two-bedroom apartments will be about 1,100 square feet.

Design includes balconies for each apartment and an exposed brick wall in each living room.

Before construction can begin, plans must be approved by the county board since none of the land lies within Palatine's boundaries.

"But I want Palatine's approval of the basic concept since you undoubtedly will be the governing body before the project is completed," Draper told the board.

IN JULY, A pre-annexation agreement between the board and the local developer was approved so village water and sewer lines could be extended to the tract.

As soon as Draper's land becomes contiguous to the village, the entire tract will be annexed. Until then, public utilities will be extended to the land at the developer's cost.

Lar Daly Fires-Up Campaign for 13th

Lar "America First" Daly came out of the shadows last night and launched his campaign for the Republican nomination for Congressman from the 13th District.

Daly, the perennial loser who has run from offices ranging from President and United States Senator to county superintendent of schools, told Elk Grove businessmen and Centex Industrial Park members that his only campaign platform is to end the war in Vietnam by militarily destroying North Vietnam.

He said the United States must not restrict itself to conventional weapons but should use atomic bombs to accomplish the destruction of the enemy.

DALY'S PRESENCE at the forum and the attendance of Democratic Candidate Edward Warman of Skokie made the Centex sponsored event the first in which all 10 Congressional candidates appeared. Only Warman and four of the Republicans were around for Daly's presentation.

The nine Republicans are competing for their party's nomination in an Oct. 7 primary. The winner will face Warman in a general election Nov. 25 to fill the Congressional seat vacated by OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld.

Warman introduced two relatively new issues into the campaign.

He said one of the major needs of the 13th District is a coordinated transportation plan.

"If this district is to continue to grow and prosper we must get out of the giant traffic snarls," Warman said.

He said he opposed the proposed highway construction cutbacks of President Nixon.

Warman said another major need is for increased water control, both in eliminating pollution and insuring that the growing district continues to have an adequate water supply.

The Republican candidates stuck to the issues they have held to throughout the campaign.

JOSEPH MATHEWSON proposed that a federal pollution control department be established with cabinet rank to pull "all anti-pollution agencies together and tackle the problem that has become a major issue in the campaign."

Liberal candidate Yale Roe took a few potshots at conservative candidate Philip Crane who he had debated two weeks ago but didn't stay around to give Crane an opportunity to respond.

Other candidates are State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, State Rep. Alan Johnston, John Nimrod, Gerald Marks, and Samuel Young.

Spaghetti Dinner Is Set By Boy Scouts

Boy Scout Troop 262 will hold a spaghetti dinner Sunday at the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, Hintz and Elmhurst Rds., in Prospect Heights.

Funds from the dinner, which begins at 12:30 p.m. will pay for troop supplies. Tickets will be available at the door at $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children.

Lions Welcome Ladies

The Palatine Lion's Club will have its first ladies night of the fall season tomorrow evening at Uncle Andy's Cow Palace.

Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. followed by a discussion by Pres. Marvin Schramm telling about his recent trip to the Orient. Joining him in the discussion will be his wife, and Mr. and Mrs. Don Walker who also took the trip.

Mothers Like Football

Bauman, Choir Are on Agenda

Beginning Sunday, Rolling Meadows Baptist Church will host a guest lecturer and the "Chinese for Christ Hong Kong Blind Choir."

Paul R. Bauman, vice president of LeTourneau College, Longview, Texas, will speak twice Sunday, and Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at 7:30 p.m.

Meetings on Sunday will be held at 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. Bauman will speak about prophecy and the Middle East.

TALKS SUNDAY INCLUDE "why doesn't God do something about world conditions," and "Israel lives again and the desert blooms."

Studying Biblical history, he has made 12 trips to the Middle East. For his interest in Israel's development and promotion of friendship and understanding for the people of the Middle East, he was presented the Pilgrim's medal by Israel. Bauman, during the week.

Traveling around the world, Bauman once spent four and a half months visiting 30 countries in a survey of Christian missions.

The Hong Kong choir will appear with Bauman, during the week.

"SPEAKING WITH the ensemble will be the Rev. Calvin Chao and Mrs. Faith Chao, founders of Chinese for Christ, Inc., a ministry among Chinese students and professional people in the United States.

Roaring Start on Anti-Noise

The O'Hare Noise Abatement and Air Pollution Council is off to a roaring start this week on an area-wide campaign to seek prompt federal action on major airport problems.

Three of the 17 Northwest suburban communities represented by the council have already passed resolutions seeking support and sympathy from Sen. Charles Percy on the problems of noise abatement and air pollution at O'Hare airport.

Mount Prospect, Elmhurst and Itasca are among the first communities to pass resolutions requesting federal assistance and registering major concern over airport problems, while the majority of towns represented by the council are expected to follow suit later this week.

THE RESOLUTIONS charge "that O'Hare airport continues to be operated and expanded with total disregard for the rights of the residents in neighboring communities. Noise abatement procedures implemented to date by the Federal Aviation Administration are but a token response to the problem.

"As we enter the 1970's with super, jumbo jets on the way, the problems of jet noise and air pollution are reaching crisis proportions. We need constructive action now — not more studies, debate or buck passing."

The resolution passed unanimously by the Itasca Village Board, Tuesday, added: "We believe that there has been a failure of responsible public officials to propose constructive solutions to the problems of airport noise. We also feel that the federal government has a significant role to play in dealing with the problem of airport noise."

THE RESOLUTION outlined that the jurisdiction of the federal government included aircraft operations control and the appropriation of federal funds for land use development as well as health, welfare and safety for everyone.

The Mount Prospect Village Board passed its resolution unanimously Tuesday following the remarks of one resident who thought trustees should give the resolution further consideration and study before issuing final approval.

William Krampert, 323 George St., told trustees that although the noise from jet aircraft was bad, Mount Prospect's proximity to the airport is one of its assets.

KRAMPERT SAID the airport had its advantages and disadvantages just like the Chicago and North Western Railroad which runs right through the middle of town. "Sure, it's noisy but it's transportation for thousands of Northwest suburban commuters every day," he said.

Trustee Don Furst, delegate to the council, agreed with Krampert in part, but added that trains today aren't "belching black oily smoke" like airplanes.

The resolutions were passed following a request from George Franks of Wood Dale who asked council delegates last week to seek resolutions from their village boards requesting immediate federal action and relief from pressing noise and air pollution problems.

FRANKS, council chairman, met with delegates last week to launch a major campaign to send as many petitions and people to protest against major airport problems at a national seminar on noise abatement and air pollution to be held in Washington, D.C. Oct. 7 through 9.

Other communities expected to pass similar resolutions this week include Bensenville, Wood Dale, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Elk Grove, Addison and Des Plaines.

'Good Progress' By Contractor

A change in weather conditions has apparently brought a favorable change in the construction progress on Schaumburg High School, scheduled to be completed by January, 1971.

"The contractor is making good progress," G. A. McElroy, Palatine-Schaumburg High School Dist. 211 superintendent says. "We have hopes of being on schedule soon."

In a progress report to the school board last week, McElroy said the concrete substructure is well on its way to being completed.

The front of the building, which faces south, has one floor imbedded in the side of a hill. From the front, the school will look like a two-story structure.

"THE MOUND OF EARTH piled in front of the building was put there to enable cement trucks to dump their loads for the first floor wall," McElroy said. "This will be removed when the cement structure is finished. People will then be able to watch construction from the road."

McElroy also reported the underground plumbing is being put in and that final grading on the fields around the site should be completed this fall.

According to Tonyan Construction Co.'s progress schedule, the concrete substructure should be completed by the end of October.

THE STRUCTURAL steel and metal floor decks are also being put up. Structural supports should be completed by the end of November.

Exterior masonry, the brick outer wall of the school, should appear on the building about Oct. 1.

In November concrete floors, gypsum roof decks, rough carpentry, plastering and acoustical work is scheduled to begin.

Young Predicts Victory

L. A. (Roy) Bressler, Wheeling; and Glenn Hoffman, Schaumburg.

The committee of former Rumsfeld supporters is headed by Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher and includes a number of top Republicans from the western end of the district.

STATE REP. DAVID REGNER of Mount Prospect is on the committee, as are Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township Clerk George Busse, Mount Prospect Trustee George Reiter and Elk Grove GOP Pres. Richard Hall.

Schaumburg Township members are Assessor Scott MacEachron, Supervisor Vernon Laubenstein and Collector Ralph Lyster.

Others from this area are W. Richard Impey of Arlington Heights, Mrs. Earle Miller of Mount Prospect, Mrs. Fred Walter of Rolling Meadows and Mrs. Jeannine Brown of Palatine.

"As active Republicans who were among the early friends and supporters of Donald Rumsfeld, we endorse Young as Don's successor," Atcher's statement said.

"In a fine field of candidates, Young stands out as the best to meet the challenge."

What To Do About Garbage

by SANDRA BROWNING

Garbage is every man's problem. If you're alive, you produce garbage and you've got to do something with it — bury it in your backyard, hide it under the bed or have it picked up. The latter is more sanitary, but it costs money.

If you don't want to face garbage pickup bills, move to Mount Prospect, Skokie or Evanston. Those three communities offer free garbage collection.

HOWEVER, RESIDENTS of Arlington Heights and most other towns in the Northwest suburbs are billed for garbage pickup service.

Evanston and Skokie own and operate their own trucks and equipment for garbage disposal. Mount Prospect has a contract with private service but offers collection at no charge to its residents.

On a strictly per-month charge, Arlington Heights is more expensive than rates in neighboring villages. However, Laseke Disposal Co.'s contract says the company is to provide unlimited back-door collection for all household refuse. Few garbage collection arrangements are as all-encompassing as Arlington Heights'.

BARRINGTON TRUCKING Co., the private contractor in Palatine, estimated a $1 monthly charge if Palatine changed over to the Arlington Heights type of pickup. Arlington Heights is one of the few villages in the area that owns its own sanitary landfill in the northern part of the village. It is between Nichols and Dundee roads, west of Arlington Heights Road.

A disposal system operated by the village has been suggested by residents, candidates for the village board and others. According to John Coste, assistant village manager, the village has "considered the possibility (of having its own system) and if the situation develops we are ready to act."

COMPARING COMMUNITIES in which residents are billed for garbage service, Des Plaines has the lowest charge, $1.50 per month. The city operates the service.

Next in line after Des Plaines is the garbage rate offered by a private contractor in Wheeling. For $3 a month, the disposal service offers twice-a-week collection with most of the garbage picked up at the curb.

Although the monthly rates offered by private contractors in Elk Grove, Hoffman Estates and Rolling Meadows are lower, collections are made in these villages on a once-a-week basis.

GARBAGE COLLECTION in Palatine costs the residents $2.40 a month for once-a-week collection and $3.78 for twice-a-week collection. A portion of the garbage bill is paid by the village.

Arlington Heights' rate per month is $3.15 for twice-a-week collections. Residents are billed by the private contractor, Laseke, which has a contract with the village.

Laseke's contract will come up for renewal in November. At Monday's meeting of the village board, Jack Walsh, village president, directed the finance committee to get to work on it.

WALSH SAID the finance committee should "analyze the question of our approach to garbage."

Perhaps a system eliminating direct cost to the homeowners could evolve like it has in Evanston, Skokie and Mount Prospect. However, residents still have to pay to get rid of their garbage, whether they receive a monthly bill or pay for it indirectly through taxes.

Tryouts Being Held

Tryouts for the Fremd High School Nov. 13, 14, and 15 production of "Oliver" are being held this week.

Show directors Carl Chiddister, Jeff Corbin, Holly Lemke and Robin Meyer expect more than 150 students to audition for the musical based on Dickens' "Oliver Twist."

"THE MUSICAL, set in London in 1850, is about a young boy's search for love which leads him into a ring of youthful pickpockets and their crusty old teacher, Fagin.

Lionel Bart has written the screenplay which includes "As Long As He Needs Me," "Who Will Buy" and "Consider, Yourself at Home."

Thunder Over A New Home

by MURRAY DUBIN

How would you like to own a $50,000 home that leaks water from the bathtub through to the kitchen cabinets?

A home whose cedar siding is already split.

A home where drapes couldn't be put in the bedroom because the windows let in rain.

A home that you bought in March and had to wait three months before your driveway was completed.

Mr. and Mrs. William Zeckzer, 1814 S. Ridge Drive in the Kingsbridge Subdivision, have such a home.

The Zeckzers told the Herald about the problems they and their neighbors are having with the Kingsbridge developers, Realco Builders.

"EVER SINCE March, we've tried to get things corrected in our home," Zeckzer said.

"We realized there were many things that weren't completed when we moved in and we weren't too concerned about our complaints.

"But after three months, we became very disturbed."

On Aug. 25, Zeckzer personally went to Realco with a list of improvements that hadn't been made and tried to see Harold Palmer, a vice president.

Zeckzer finally got an appointment to see Palmer on Aug. 29 and said the vice president promised to correct everything in four working weeks.

Since that meeting, Realco has put a cover on a drain sewer, raised it and fixed a drain in the mud room, Zeckzer said. But Zeckzer is pessimistic about Realco correcting the house's defects.

THE ZECKZERS aren't the only people with complaints about Realco.

Mrs. Richard Mader who lives in the Airy Trace Subdivision told the Herald, "Our roofing is warped and there are pieces missing."

"The leaking in our basement was fixed after 10 months of complaining. My husband wrote the village manager, the Better Business Bureau and the Department of Fraud.

"Everybody in the whole area is complaining."

Mrs. James Kelley, 1707 S. Ridge Drive, isn't happy either.

"We moved in on Jan. 30 and there are still things that haven't been corrected," she said.

"THE CEDAR SIDING is cracking, the basement is leaking and the plaster is cracking. It also rains through the storm windows into the bedroom and there are paint stains on the woodwork."

L. A. Hansen, Arlington Heights village manager said that his office hadn't had any particular problems with Realco, at least "not any more than with any other builder."

Village Pres. Jack Walsh said that he had never received any complaints from Kingsbridge residents but he had in the past received complaints from Airy Trace homeowners and had tried to solve them by getting the village involved.

WALSH ADDED THAT to his knowledge there were no unanswered letters from the residents in Airy Trace.

Marty Munsen, Arlington Heights building commissioner, told the Herald that he has had, at times, problems with Realco but no more than with any other builder or developer.

The Herald has tried to contact Palmer at Realco for three days with no success.

COULD Will Meet Tonight

The first meeting of the school year for the Council on Understanding Learning Disabilities (COULD) will be at 8:15 tonight in the Little Theater at Prospect High School, 801 W. Kensington, Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Dolly Hallstrom, chairman of the State Advisory Council on Education of Handicapped Children, will speak on what has been done and what is proposed in the field of special education legislation.

A pre-session will be at 7:30 p.m. with Mrs. John Maloney giving an evaluation of her summer camp experiences with learning disability children. An informal coffee in the school cafeteria will follow Mrs. Hallstrom's speech.

Giving a Town $450,000

by JAMES VESELY

$150,000. It sits there like a juicy plum to be plucked and tossed into Arlington Heights' bank accounts.

Arlington Park, $450,000. Money to build and support a community. And all you have to do is open the door and let it in.

AMONG HIGH VILLAGE officials, there is probably very little doubt that the community should annex Arlington Park. Despite the discordant voices of some 60 residents who went to the village hall Tuesday night to question the joining of the village and the track, the deep feeling prevalent in the council chambers was that a man would have to be a fool to let that kind of money get away from the village.

And despite the murmurs of disapproval from some local residents, the village is simply not mulling the type of strong opposition to night racing that stood the community on its ear a few years ago.

So the hard bargaining for public approval began this week in council chambers. The village government is convinced of the worth of the annexation, the track is convinced, now the town has to be convinced.

THE FIRST STEP in that procedure was the discussion this week which placed the entire question of the track's activities up for public scrutiny.

Although Village Pres. Jack Walsh and Atty. Jack Siegel repeatedly tried to keep the meeting from straying from the immediate question of the annexation agreement, some citizens still managed to get their licks in and voiced their apprehensions over the track.

Erwin Kempton, 113 Wilke Road, said "No one can help me with my taxes, I just couldn't be taxed any more . . . but what about safety? What about the stabbings and the trouble that comes out of the track?"

Another man rose later in the meeting to claim that the track violated the hours imposed by the state racing board and ran horses after midnight.

THIS REMARK BROUGHT the only response of the evening from Mrs. Marje Everett, operator of the track. Mrs. Everett rose, looked the man right in the eye and told him the track has not violated the midnight curfew.

Probably the biggest disclosure of the meeting was the comment made by Gulf and Western real estate executive John Greek, who said the major impetus of expansion of the property will go to high-rise and condominium-type dwellings.

When the meeting got down to the arguments against the annexation, it also got down to a dialogue between lawyers.

Attorney Harold Klingner, a vastly experienced village resident, took the 19-point pre-annexation agreement apart by its seams. And he did it leaving everyone still smiling.

KLINGNER QUESTIONED the board on the agreement to supply water and sewage facilities to the track, probed trustees' willingness to erect police and fire station on the track grounds and pointed out nearly a dozen potential loopholes which would favor the track.

It was a performance that made the audience applaud and Walsh congratulate the man. Siegel, one of the most astute legal minds in the state, made note of several of Klingner's points.

Member of the village board were pleased with the tone of the first meeting. It was done in an orderly fashion, most of

Space Remains For Adult School

Area residents may still register for recreation and academic courses in the Palatine-Schaumburg High School Dist. 211 adult continuing education program, Charles Mueller, program director, has announced.

Persons interested in joining the classes can register at 7 p.m. the first day classes meet, Monday, Sept. 22, in the main office at the school where the class is being held.

BROCHURES DESCRIBING courses of offered this fall were mailed to residences in Dist. 211. Extra copies are available at the Administration Building, 1750 S. Roselle Road, Palatine.

"The only danger in waiting to register is that some courses close when their maximum enrollment is reached," Mueller said.

Rug Burglar Hits Kings Walk Model

A burglar walked away with everything including the living room rug, when he stripped a model home bare at the Kings Walk Apartments, 4692 Euclid Ave. in Rolling Meadows.

The thief entered the apartment, which was under construction, through the hall, allegedly forcing the door open with his shoulder. Then he tore the newly laid carpet from the floor and carted out a dishwasher, refrigerator, and four garbage disposal units.

Before he escaped through the patio door he left $50 in damage as a mark of the crime.

The victim, Albert Riley Builders of 4332 Lincoln Street, lost $906 in property.

UP GO THE STEEL beams which will support the second and third floors of Palatine-Schaumburg High School Dist. 211's fourth school on Schaumburg Road. The $5 million building is scheduled to be completed by Jan. 1, 1971. Heavy rains and a lack of construction workers on the site delayed construction progress during the summer. School administrators are hopeful construction of the building will be back on schedule soon.

Draper Unveils Complex

Plans for the 110-acre Countryside development in Palatine Township estimated to cost between $15 and $18 million were discussed this week with village trustees.

Located near the intersection of Baldwin and Coffey streets between Northwest Highway and Dundee Road, the land will be developed by Lou Draper, local builder, who told the board construction of the first apartment building could begin this fall so models will be ready by spring.

In addition to more than 1,000 apartments, the project includes almost 14 acres of commercial land. Proposed for the area is a shopping center and theater.

"WE HAD HOPED to get a legitimate theater group interested in the location, but present indications are the theater will be used primarily for movie showing," Draper said.

An estimated four-year project, the first phase of construction will include seven apartment buildings and some commercial spots.

Draper also said it's likely he will donate a 10-acre site to Countryside YMCA which plans to build a recreational facility in the area.

Previously an agreement between the local developer and the "Y" was reached for purchase of the land.

"BUT THE 'Y' HAS been so helpful in getting plans underway for the area, it's possible we'll donate the land," Draper said.

He said the "Y" plans to begin construction in spring of 1971 so the facility will be in operation by 1972.

Present plans indicate each apartment building will be two-stories high and include 40 apartment units.

As Palatine officials recommended, there will be no three bedroom units, according to Draper.

"THE APARTMENTS are bigger than the average size," he said.

One-bedroom units will cover about 800 square feet and two-bedroom apartments will be about 1,100 square feet.

Design includes balconies for each apartment and an exposed brick wall in each living room.

Before construction can begin, plans must be approved by the county board since none of the land lies within Palatine's boundaries.

"But I want Palatine's approval of the basic concept since you undoubtedly will be the governing body before the project is completed," Draper told the board.

IN JULY, A pre-annexation agreement between the board and the local developer was approved so village water and sewer lines could be extended to the tract.

As soon as Draper's land becomes contiguous to the village, the entire tract will be annexed. Until then, public utilities will be extended to the land at the developer's cost.

To Reduce Draft Call

WASHINGTON—U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam, which now will include the entire 3rd Marine Division at the Demilitarized Zone, will result in lower draft calls in the months ahead, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird said yesterday.

He told a news conference he would advise the Selective Service Friday of changes in draft calls as a result of President Nixon's decision to pull an additional 35,000 troops from Vietnam.

Request Benefit Hike

WASHINGTON—President Nixon, in a surprise announcement yesterday said he would ask Congress to increase social security benefits by 10 per cent effective next April 1.

Nixon, who had earlier said he would propose a 7 per cent increase, made the announcement with little elaboration. He said he would spell out his program in a message to Congress next week.

Agnew Aims for Mars

WASHINGTON—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, chairman of the special task force on post-Apollo programs, has recommended that President Nixon call for a manned space flight to Mars about 1986, the White House said yesterday.

Recommendations in the task force report, would push space expenditures to about $8 billion annually in the early 1980s, compared to about $3 billion a year now.

Judge Wants Action

WASHINGTON—Judge Clement Haynsworth Jr. urged the Senate yesterday to kill his nomination to the Supreme Court if it doubts "the propriety of what I did" in a controversial 1963 court case.

Haynsworth, chief judge of the fourth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va. said the Senate should make up its own mind about the allegations.

Lar Daly Fires-Up Campaign for 13th

Lar "America First" Daly came out of the shadows last night and launched his campaign for the Republican nomination for Congressman from the 13th District.

Daly, the perennial loser who has run from offices ranging from President and United States Senator to county superintendent of schools, told Elk Grove businessmen and Centex Industrial Park members that his only campaign platform is to end the war in Vietnam by militarily destroying North Vietnam.

He said the United States must not restrict itself to conventional weapons but should use atomic bombs to accomplish the destruction of the enemy.

DALY'S PRESENCE at the forum and the attendance of Democratic Candidate Edward Warman of Skokie made the Centex sponsored event the first in which all 10 Congressional candidates appeared. Only Warman and four of the Republicans were around for Daly's presentation.

The nine Republicans are competing for their party's nomination in an Oct. 7 primary. The winner will face Warman in a general election Nov. 25 to fill the Congressional seat vacated by OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld.

Warman introduced two relatively new issues into the campaign.

He said one of the major needs of the 13th District is a coordinated transportation plan.

"If this district is to continue to grow and prosper we must get out of the giant traffic snarls," Warman said.

He said he opposed the proposed highway construction cutbacks of President Nixon.

Warman said another major need is for increased water control, both in eliminating pollution and insuring that the growing district continues to have an adequate water supply.

The Republican candidates stuck to the issues they have held to throughout the campaign.

JOSEPH MATHEWSON proposed that a federal pollution control department be established with cabinet rank to pull "all anti-pollution agencies together and tackle the problem that has become a major issue in the campaign.

Liberal candidate Yale Roe took a few potshots at conservative candidate Philip Crane who he had debated two weeks ago but didn't stay around to give Crane an opportunity to respond.

Other candidates are State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, State Rep. Alan Johnston, John Nimrod, Gerald Marks, and Samuel Young.

Spaghetti Dinner Is Set By Boy Scouts

Boy Scout Troop 262 will hold a spaghetti dinner Sunday at the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, Hintz and Elmhurst Rds., in Prospect Heights.

Funds from the dinner, which begins at 12:30 p.m. will pay for troop supplies. Tickets will be available at the door at $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children.

Lions Welcome Ladies

The Palatine Lion's Club will have its first ladies night of the fall season tomorrow evening at Uncle Andy's Cow Palace.

Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. followed by a discussion by Pres. Marvin Schramm telling about his recent trip to the Orient. Joining him in the discussion will be his wife, and Mr. and Mrs. Don Walker who also took the trip.

Mothers Like Football

by MARIANNE BRETENSYDER

She watched him throw his first pass, and bandaged his first injury. The mother of a high school football player knows part of her son's sport life better than anyone else.

"We go to every game," said Mrs. Howard Mock of Rolling Meadows whose son Howard plays on the Forest View team. She thinks it is a wonderful sport, and her son enjoys it.

"IT KEEPS HIM busy; a child should be interested in something, and they need the encouragement of their parents," she said.

Mrs. Mock said her son plays slot back and defensive halfback. He has also been on the track team, and he was a gymnast.

On the team's chances this year, she said, "We lost the first game, but we hope to win most of them."

Mrs. Mock said Howard has received several letters from football coaches at colleges, and a letter from the Air Force Academy.

HE HAS TO score scholastically too, she added, boys don't get into college on the strength of athletics anymore. She said her son has a good academic record, and if he should get a senator's recommendation, he could go to the Air Force Academy.

Mrs. Robert Carr said her son, Bob, started playing football in sixth grade. He is a guard and linebacker at Palatine High School.

"I always thought he would play, he's been active since he was very young," she said. Her son has always been "first string," she said.

"We never miss a game," Mrs. Carr said, "and the love of the sport comes from his dad."

BOB ALSO PLAYS basketball and baseball, and was on the track team. Sports is a way of life and she said her son is conscious of keeping himself fit. She thinks he'll continue to play in college.

"I think athletics are the greatest thing for a boy," said Mrs. Robert Creek. Her son Jeff plays for Fremd High School. She thinks all boys should play in some kind of sport, even if they're just water boy, she said.

The lessons they learn there, they learn in life and in business she said. It teaches them to work with people, she said.

"He's played since he had a ball in his hands," she said. His sports interest extends to track, tumbling, swimming and skiing.

She worries about him, and said he played the last game with a broken nose. "But he knows what the risks are," she added.

"WE ARE ALL there at the game, including the six year old," Mrs. Creek said. He plays "defensive center and offensive line backer, number 51," she said.

"We hope they will win and take the conference title, if they don't win, they'll have to try a little harder," she said.

Mrs. Harry Menick's son, Mike, is Fremd's offensive end and defensive safety Mike Menick.

"I think it's very good for them, they learn a lot of things, like teamwork and coordination, and how to get along with people," she said.

"They will have to get along with all kinds of people, and learning to get along with the team helps," she said.

"I watch some of the games but his father goes to every game," she said. She saw the first game and said they have hard work ahead of them.

"I don't know how they'll do, but I hope they come out on top," she said.

Bauman, Choir Are on Agenda

Beginning Sunday, Rolling Meadows Baptist Church will host a guest lecturer and the "Chinese for Christ Hong Kong Blind Choir."

Paul R. Bauman, vice president of LeTourneau College, Longview, Texas, will speak twice Sunday, and Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at 7:30 p.m.

Meetings on Sunday will be held at 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. Bauman will speak about prophecy and the Middle East.

TALKS SUNDAY INCLUDE "why doesn't God do something about world conditions?" and "Israel lives again and the desert blooms."

Studying Biblical history, he has made 12 trips to the Middle East. For his interest in Israel's development and promotion of friendship and understanding for the people of the Middle East, he was presented the Pilgrim's medal by Israel.

Bauman, during the week. Traveling around the world, Bauman once spent four and a half months visiting 30 countries in a survey of Christian missions.

The Hong Kong choir will appear with Bauman, during the week.

"SPEAKING WITH the ensemble will be the Rev. Calvin Chao and Mrs. Faith Chao, founders of Chinese for Christ, Inc., a ministry among Chinese students and professional people in the United States.

Playing both oriental and occidental instruments, the choir has been singing together since 1967.

UP GO THE STEEL beams which will support the second and third floors of Palatine-Schaumburg High School Dist. 211's fourth school on Schaumburg Road. The $5 million building is scheduled to be completed by Jan. 1,

Roaring Start on Anti-Noise

The O'Hare Noise Abatement and Air Pollution Council is off to a roaring start this week on an area-wide campaign to seek prompt federal action on major airport problems.

Three of the 17 Northwest suburban communities represented by the council have already passed resolutions seeking support and sympathy from Sen. Charles Percy on the problems of noise abatement and air pollution at O'Hare airport.

Mount Prospect, Elmhurst and Itasca are among the first communities to pass resolutions requesting federal assistance and registering major concern over airport problems, while the majority of towns represented by the council are expected to follow suit later this week.

THE RESOLUTIONS charge "that O'Hare airport continues to be operated and expanded with total disregard for the rights of the residents in neighboring communities. Noise abatement procedures implemented to date by the Federal Aviation Administration are but a token response to the problem.

"As we enter the 1970's with super, jumbo jets on the way, the problems of jet noise and air pollution are reaching crisis proportions. We need constructive action now — not more studies, debate or buck passing."

The resolution passed unanimously by the Itasca Village Board, Tuesday, added: "We believe that there has been a failure of responsible public officials to propose constructive solutions to the problems of airport noise. We also feel that the federal government has a significant role to play in dealing with the problem of airport noise."

THE RESOLUTION outlined that the jurisdiction of the federal government included aircraft operations control and the appropriation of federal funds for land use development as well as health, welfare and safety for everyone.

The Mount Prospect Village Board passed its resolution unanimously Tuesday following the remarks of one resident who thought trustees should give the resolution further consideration and study before issuing final approval.

William Krampert, 323 George St., told trustees that although the noise from jet aircraft was bad, Mount Prospect's proximity to the airport is one of its assets.

KRAMPERT SAID the airport had its advantages and disadvantages just like the Chicago and North Western Railroad which runs right through the middle of town. "Sure, it's noisy but it's transportation for thousands of Northwest suburban commuters every day," he said.

Trustee Don Furst, delegate to the council, agreed with Krampert in part, but added that trains today aren't "belching black oily smoke" like airplanes.

The resolutions were passed following a request from George Franks of Wood Dale who asked council delegates last week to seek resolutions from their village boards requesting immediate federal action and relief from pressing noise and air pollution problems.

FRANKS, council chairman, met with delegates last week to launch a major campaign to send as many petitions and people to protest against major airport problems at a national seminar on noise abatement and air pollution to be held in Washington, D.C. Oct. 7 through 9.

Other communities expected to pass similar resolutions this week include Bensenville, Wood Dale, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Elk Grove, Addison and Des Plaines.

'Good Progress' By Contractor

A change in weather conditions has apparently brought a favorable change in the construction progress on Schaumburg High School, scheduled to be completed by January, 1971.

"The contractor is making good progress," G. A. McElroy, Palatine-Schaumburg High School Dist. 211 superintendent says. "We have hopes of being on schedule soon."

In a progress report to the school board last week, McElroy said the concrete substructure is well on its way to being completed.

The front of the building, which faces south, has one floor imbedded in the side of a hill. From the front, the school will look like a two-story structure.

"THE MOUND OF EARTH piled in front of the building was put there to enable cement trucks to dump their loads for the first floor wall," McElroy said. "This will be removed when the cement structure is finished. People will then be able to watch construction from the road."

McElroy also reported the underground plumbing is being put in and that final grading on the fields around the site should be completed this fall.

According to Tonyman Construction Co.'s progress schedule, the concrete substructure should be completed by the end of October.

THE STRUCTURAL steel and metal floor decks are also being put up. Structural supports should be completed by the end of November.

Exterior masonry, the brick outer wall of the school, should appear on the building about Oct. 1.

In November concrete floors, gypsum roof decks, rough carpentry, plastering and acoustical work is scheduled to begin.

Mr. and Mrs. William Zeckzer, 1814 S. Ridge Drive in the Kingsbridge Subdivision, have such a home.

The Zeckzers told the Herald about the problems they and their neighbors are having with the Kingsbridge developers, Realco Builders.

"EVER SINCE March, we've tried to get things corrected in our home," Zeckzer said.

"We realized there were many things that weren't completed when we moved in and we weren't too concerned about our complaints.

"But after three months, we became very disturbed."

On Aug. 25, Zeckzer personally went to Realco with a list of improvements that hadn't been made and tried to see Harold Palmer, a vice president.

Zeckzer finally got an appointment to see Palmer on Aug. 29 and said the vice president promised to correct everything in four working weeks.

Since that meeting, Realco has put a cover on a drain sewer, raised it and fixed a drain in the mud room, Zeckzer said. But Zeckzer is pessimistic about Realco correcting the house's defects.

THE ZECKZERS aren't the only people with complaints about Realco.

Mrs. Richard Mader who lives in the Airy Trace Subdivision told the Herald, "Our roofing is warped and there are pieces missing."

"The leaking in our basement was fixed after 10 months of complaining. My husband wrote the village manager, the Better Business Bureau and the Department of Fraud.

"Everybody in the whole area is complaining."

Mrs. James Kelley, 1707 S. Ridge Drive, isn't happy either.

"We moved in on Jan. 30 and there are still things that haven't been corrected," she said.

"THE CEDAR SIDING is cracking, the basement is leaking and the plaster is cracking. It also rains through the storm windows into the bedroom and there are paint stains on the woodwork."

L. A. Hansen, Arlington Heights village manager said that his office hadn't had any particular problems with Realco, at least "not any more than with any other builder."

Village Pres Jack Walsh said that he had never received any complaints from Kingsbridge residents but he had in the past received complaints from Airy Trace homeowners and had tried to solve them by getting the village involved.

WALSH ADDED THAT his knowledge there were no unanswered letters from the residents in Airy Trace.

Marty Munson, Arlington Heights building commissioner, told the Herald that he has had, at times, problems with Realco but no more than with any other builder or developer.

The Herald has tried to contact Palmer at Realco for three days with no success.

COULD Will Meet Tonight

The first meeting of the school year for the Council On Understanding Learning Disabilities (COULD) will be at 8:15 tonight in the Little Theater at Prospect High School, 801 W. Kensington, Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Dolly Hallstrom, chairman of the State Advisory Council on Education of Handicapped Children, will speak on what has been done and what is proposed in the field of special education legislation.

A pre-session will be at 7:30 p.m. with Mrs. John Maloney giving an evaluation of her summer camp experiences with learning disabled children. An informal coffee in the school cafeteria will follow Mrs. Hallstrom's speech.

Tryouts Being Held

Tryouts for the Fremd High School Nov. 13, 14, and 15 production of "Oliver" are being held this week.

Show directors Carl Chiddister, Jeff Corbin, Holly Lemke and Robin Meyer expect more than 150 students to audition for the musical based on Dickens' "Oliver Twist."

"THE MUSICAL, set in London in 1850, is about a young boy's search for love which leads him into a ring of youthful pickpockets and their crusty old teacher, Fagin.

Giving a Town $450,000

by JAMES VESELY

$450,000. It sits there like a juicy plum to be plucked and tossed into Arlington Heights' bank accounts.

Arlington Park. $450,000. Money to build and support a community. And all you have to do is open the door and let it in.

AMONG HIGH VILLAGE officials, there is probably very little doubt that the community should annex Arlington Park. Despite the discordant voices of some 60 residents who went to the village hall Tuesday night to question the joining of the village and the track, the deep feeling prevalent in the council chambers was that a man would have to be a fool to let that kind of money get away from the village.

And despite the murmurs of disapproval from some local residents, the village is simply not mulling the type of strong opposition to night racing that stood the community on its ear a few years ago.

So the hard bargaining for public approval began this week in council chambers. The village government is convinced of the worth of the annexation, the track is convinced, now the town has to be convinced.

THE FIRST STEP in that procedure was the discussion this week which placed the entire question of the track's activities up for public scrutiny.

Although Village Pres. Jack Walsh and Atty. Jack Siegel repeatedly tried to keep the meeting from straying from the immediate question of the annexation agreement, some citizens still managed to get their licks in and voiced their apprehensions over the track.

Erwin Kempton, 113 Wilke Road, said "No one can help me with my taxes, I just couldn't be taxed any more . . . but what about safety? What about the stabbings and the trouble that comes out of the track?"

Another man rose later in the meeting to claim that the track violated the hours imposed by the state racing board and ran horses after midnight.

THIS REMARK BROUGHT the only response of the evening from Mrs. Marje Everett, operator of the track. Mrs. Everett rose, looked the man right in the eye and told him the track has not violated the midnight curfew.

Probably the biggest disclosure of the meeting was the comment made by Gulf and Western real estate executive John Greek, who said the major impetus of expansion of the property will go to high-rise and condominium-type dwellings.

When the meeting got down to the arguments against the annexation, it also got down to a dialogue between lawyers.

Attorney Harold Klingner, a vastly experienced village resident, took the 19-point pre-annexation agreement apart by its seams. And he did it leaving everyone still smiling.

KLINGNER QUESTIONED the board on the agreement to supply water and sewage facilities to the track, probed trustees' willingness to erect police and fire station on the track grounds and pointed out nearly a dozen potential loopholes which would favor the track.

It was a performance that made the audience applaud and Walsh congratulate the man. Siegel, one of the most astute legal minds in the state, made note of several of Klingner's points.

Member of the village board were pleased with the tone of the first meeting. It was done in an orderly fashion, most of

Space Remains For Adult School

Area residents may still register for recreation and academic courses in the Palatine-Schaumburg High School Dist. 211 adult continuing education program. Charles Mueller, program director, has announced.

Persons interested in joining the classes can register at 7 p.m. the first day classes meet, Monday, Sept. 22, in the main office at the school where the class is being held.

BROCHURES DESCRIBING courses offered this fall were mailed to residences in Dist. 211. Extra copies are available at the Administration Building, 1750 S. Roselle Road, Palatine.

"The only danger in waiting to register is that some courses close when their maximum enrollment is reached," Mueller said.

Rug Burglar Hits Kings Walk Model

A burglar walked away with everything including the living room rug, when he stripped a model home bare at the Kings Walk Apartments, 4602 Euclid Ave. in Rolling Meadows.

The thief entered the apartment, which was under construction, through the hall, allegedly forcing the door open with his shoulder. Then he tore the newly laid carpet from the floor and carted out a dishwasher, refrigerator, and four garbage disposal units.

Before he escaped through the patio door he left $50 in damage as a mark of the crime.

The victim, Albert Riley Builders of 4332 Lincoln Street, lost $906 in property.

O'Hare Anti-Noise Unit Has Roaring Start

The O'Hare Noise Abatement and Air Pollution Council is off to a roaring start this week on an area-wide campaign to seek prompt federal action on major airport problems.

Three of the 17 Northwest suburban communities represented by the council have already passed resolutions seeking support and sympathy from Sen. Charles Percy on the problems of noise abatement and air pollution at O'Hare airport.

Mount Prospect, Elmhurst and Itasca are among the first communities to pass resolutions requesting federal assistance and registering major concern over airport problems, while the majority of towns represented by the council are expected to follow suit later this week.

THE RESOLUTIONS charge "that O'Hare airport continues to be operated and expanded with total disregard for the rights of the residents in neighboring communities. Noise abatement procedures implemented to date by the Federal Aviation Administration are but a token response to the problem.

"As we enter the 1970's with super, jumbo jets on the way, the problems of jet noise and air pollution are reaching crisis proportions. We need constructive action now — not more studies, debate or buck passing."

The resolution passed unanimously by the Itasca Village Board, Tuesday, added: "We believe that there has been a failure of responsible public officials to propose constructive solutions to the problems of airport noise. We also feel that the federal government has a significant role to play in dealing with the problem of airport noise."

THE RESOLUTION outlined that the jurisdiction of the federal government included aircraft operations control and the appropriation of federal funds for land use development as well as health, welfare and safety for everyone.

The Mount Prospect Village Board passed its resolution unanimously Tuesday following the remarks of one resident who thought trustees should give the resolution further consideration and study before issuing final approval.

William Krampert, 323 George St., told trustees that although the noise from jet aircraft was bad, Mount Prospect's proximity to the airport is one of its assets.

KRAMPERT SAID the airport had its advantages and disadvantages just like the Chicago and North Western Railroad which runs right through the middle of town. "Sure, it's noisy but it's transportation for thousands of Northwest suburban commuters every day," he said.

Trustee Don Furst, delegate to the council, agreed with Krampert in part, but added that trains today aren't "belching black oily smoke" like airplanes.

The resolutions were passed following a request from George Franks of Wood Dale who asked council delegates last week to seek resolutions from their village boards requesting immediate federal action and relief from pressing noise and air pollution problems.

FRANKS, council chairman, met with delegates last week to launch a major campaign to send as many petitions and people to protest against major airport problems at a national seminar on noise abatement and air pollution to be held in Washington, D.C. Oct. 7 through 9.

Other communities expected to pass similar resolutions this week include Bensenville, Wood Dale, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Elk Grove, Addison and Des Plaines.

To Reduce Draft Call

WASHINGTON—U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam, which now will include the entire 3rd Marine Division at the Demilitarized Zone, will result in lower draft calls in the months ahead, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird said yesterday.

He told a news conference he would advise the Selective Service Friday of changes in draft calls as a result of President Nixon's decision to pull an additional 35,000 troops from Vietnam.

Request Benefit Hike

WASHINGTON—President Nixon, in a surprise announcement yesterday said he would ask Congress to increase social security benefits by 10 per cent effective next April 1.

Nixon, who had earlier said he would propose a 7 per cent increase, made the announcement with little elaboration. He said he would spell out his program in a message to Congress next week.

Pretty Coed Enjoys Mail Job

by BRAD BREKKE

Once a week, that fellow who delivers your mail in Mount Prospect may be a woman.

Her name is Pat Murphy, a pretty 19-year-old coed who is working as a "floater" or substitute mail carrier for the post office. She is one of two girls working as carriers for the post office in Mount Prospect.

Pat has been working there since June and now that her 90-day probationary period is up, she will be outfitted with a uniform.

She likes her new job and says she took it for the money, mostly. "I clear about $400 a month and have a sister who only makes $250 a month doing secretarial work. It's not a glamorous job, but it pays good, especially for a girl," she said.

HER NORMAL DAY begins at 6 a.m. when she arrives at the post office and begins sorting mail for one of five routes she substitutes for. Her favorite route is one she calls "the mounted one, where I make deliveries by truck to the rural areas in Mount Prospect."

How about the dogs, they ever both you as a mailwoman?

"Not very much, although a German shepherd scared me once and I squirted him with a can of Shock. It's a spray that repels dogs but causes no permanent injuries to them. All us letter carriers carry one. And if we don't, it's our fault if we get bitten, not the dog's."

IT'S UNUSUAL for a woman to be carrying mail, isn't it? What did your family say?

"My dad was a little skeptical until I started bringing home a nice pay check. Then he changed his mind. My three sisters are for it . . . although I think they secretly feel it's a little strange."

"But if a girl can stand up to it physically, I don't see why she shouldn't be able to carry mail."

How far do you walk a day?

"I'd say between eight to 10 miles. When I first started I was wearing loafers and had a lot of trouble with my feet. Now that I've got better shoes, ones with support for my arches, there's nothing to it."

HOW DID YOU decide to take the job?

"I saw a sign in the post office window this summer saying that male and female letter carriers were needed, so I applied and two weeks later I got the job. Simple as that."

How do people along the routes react to seeing a woman delivering the mail instead of a man?

"Some are shocked. Some think I'm too young. And a few say they feel sorry for me . . . you know, poor little girl has to haul around a bag of mail to make a living."

"Actually the bag isn't heavy at all. Only weighs about 35 pounds."

Well isn't that kind of heavy for a girl?

"Not for me. I used to use a cart, but then I gave it up because I found I could make better time carrying the bag on my shoulders. There's nothing to it."

HOW MANY HOMES do you make deliveries to in a day?

"The route I had today was about 396 homes. Most are around 400, give or take a few. And most homes get about two pieces of mail a day, but that's just an average."

School Dist. 57 may bus Golfhurst students to Lincoln School this year if 50 students living in the southeast section of the village pledge to ride the bus and support a shared-cost busing program with the district.

Harry Hanson, president of the board of education, told the Golfhurst Civic Association last night that to provide bus transportation for only 19 students from Golfhurst subdivision would be financially impossible even on a shared-cost basis.

Hanson said school officials will conduct a survey within the next month to determine how many students in the Golfhurst area would be interested in bus transportation for the year, shared on a 50-50 cost basis with the district.

"SELECTIVE BUS transportation for just students living in Golfhurst would neither be right nor economically feasible. We would have to include more students as a financial benefit to both parents and the district, but then where do you draw the line on who does or doesn't have an opportunity for bus service," he said.

Golfhurst residents are seeking an agreement with school officials on bus transportation for their children who must travel more than two miles one way to school. Students are now walking, riding their bicycles, or being driven in car pools to Lincoln School.

"The busing issue will now depend upon the results of the survey. If 50 children sign up to take the bus I am sure the board would vote affirmatively on a shared-cost busing plan. But if only the 19 children living in Golfhurst sign up for the bus I am sure the board would veto the plan," Hanson said.

Hanson, Superintendent Eric Sahlberg, and board member Alex Casper spoke of the district's intentions to bus all students next year regardless of the outcome of the survey.

HANSON TOLD GOLFHURST residents that it is the intention of the present board to provide free transportation to all students when Lincoln becomes the only junior high school in the district next year.

However, he was explicit in explaining that these are only the intentions of present board members. "There will be three vacancies on the school board next year which could change any plans for free bus transportation, but with four returning members who favor such a program I doubt if the issue will be defeated despite any changes in board membership," Hanson said.

But despite promises for next year Golfhurst residents are still very concerned about this year's transportation problem. The civic association has promised to help the district with any paper work and telephoning involved in conducting the survey which might help to speed up any decision made by the board.

SAHLBERG TOLD RESIDENTS that the survey should be completed within 30 days and he also warned that although the results may favor providing bus transportation this year the final decision will be made by the board of education.

Young Predicts Big Win

by ED MURNANE

One of the most optimistic announcements to date by a 13th Congressional District candidate came yesterday when Samuel H. Young of Glenview announced:

—He is the first candidate to have all 515 13th District precincts manned by his organization.

—He has a 25-member committee of former supporters of Donald Rumsfeld working for him.

—He will win the Oct. 7 primary election by 2,000 votes.

YOUNG SAID surveys by his staff members indicate he will receive "a minimum of 8,000 votes, representing a projected 2,000 vote victory margin over my nearest opponent."

He predicted that approximately 36,000 voters would turn out for the GOP primary, and declined to say who he thought his "nearest opponent" would be.

"I think there are three or four who will be close," Young said. "But a lot of things can happen in the last three weeks and I'd rather not give any names."

There are nine Republicans seeking the seat which was vacated by former Congressman Donald L. Rumsfeld in May. The winner of the primary will compete with Democrat Edward Warman of Skokie on Nov. 25.

YOUNG'S OPTIMISM is based on what he called "snowballing support throughout the district."

He pointed to the fact that he has three township GOP endorsements, more than any of the other candidates, and that two of the endorsements are by township organizations that do not have favorite son candidates in the race. Only three of the seven townships which have made endorsements don't have candidates.

Philip Crane of Winnetka was endorsed by the Palatine Township GOP, defeating Young after several ballots. Townships which have endorsed Young are his own Northfield Township and western townships Elk Grove and Schaumburg.

TOWNSHIP GOP organizations which are supporting "favorite sons" are Wheeling Township, State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights; New Trier Township, State Rep. Alan Johnston of Kenilworth; Niles Township, John Nimrod, and Northfield Township, and Young.

Only Evanston Township has not made a Republican organization endorsement. Young said yesterday he believes he will get most of the Evanston vote, as well as carrying Northfield, Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships.

Two other developments which Young said are "very significant" are his "very well qualified" rating by the Women's Republican Club of New Trier and his recommended endorsement by the board of directors of the Evanston Women's Republican Organization.

HE DID NOT get the Evanston endorsement, he said, because a two-thirds vote was required and with eight other candidates also competing, "it's extremely difficult for one candidate to get two-thirds."

Young said his township-by-township, precinct-by-precinct organization was completed this week. Last week, he announced that two high-ranking Republican officials in Palatine Township had left the GOP organization to work for Young, rather than Crane.

The two, Charles K. Allen of Rolling Meadows and Clayton W. Brown of Palatine are joined by other western township directors Warren McGowney, Elk Grove; L. A. (Roy) Bressler, Wheeling; and Glenn Hoffman, Schaumburg.

The committee of former Rumsfeld supporters is headed by Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher and includes a number of top Republicans from the western end of the district.

STATE REP. DAVID REGNER of Mount Prospect is on the committee, as are Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township Clerk George Busse, Mount Prospect Trustee George Reiter and Elk Grove GOP Pres. Richard Hall.

How have the male carriers accepted you?

"Fine, as long as I do my work and don't ask for special treatment because I'm a girl."

How about the people along your route, do they treat you okay?

"It's like anywhere. You have the cranks, but most of the people are pretty nice. A few think I'm a little young to be doing the job, but of course I'm not."

What are your plans for the future?

"I'M GOING BACK to school this spring at the Chicago Circle campus and major in history. I graduated from Forest View High School in 1967 and I've had two years at Monmouth College, but I couldn't go back this fall because I ran out of coin."

That's why I'm working now. Then I suppose I'll do something crazy like get married, but I don't know," she said.

And with that Pat Murphy went back to sorting her mail for the next day's run.

Which route are you going on tomorrow?

"My favorite one, the mounted route," she said.

ST. EMILY'S CATHOLIC parish, serving Mount Prospect and the north side of Des Plaines, will build a new church with a seating capacity for 1,000 people at 1400 E. Central Road in Mount Prospect. The bids on the construction, estimated at $650,000, will be opened Oct. 6, according to the Rev. John A. McLoraine.

Lar Daly Puts On Heat

Lar "America First" Daly came out of the shadows last night and launched his campaign for the Republican nomination for Congressman from the 13th District.

Daly, the perennial loser who has run from offices ranging from President and United States Senator to county superintendent of schools, told Elk Grove businessmen and Centex Industrial Park members that his only campaign platform is to end the war in Vietnam by militarily destroying North Vietnam.

He said the United States must not restrict itself to conventional weapons but should use atomic bombs to accomplish the destruction of the enemy.

DALY'S PRESENCE at the forum and the attendance of Democratic Candidate Edward Warman of Skokie made the Centex sponsored event the first in which all 10 Congressional candidates appeared. Only Warman and four of the Republicans were around for Daly's presentation.

The nine Republicans are competing for their party's nomination in an Oct. 7 primary. The winner will face Warman in a general election Nov. 25 to fill the Congressional seat vacated by OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld.

Warman introduced two relatively new issues into the campaign.

He said one of the major needs of the 13th District is a coordinated transportation plan.

"If this district is to continue to grow and prosper we must get out of the giant traffic snarls," Warman said.

He said he opposed the proposed highway construction cutbacks of President Nixon.

Warman said another major need is for increased water control, both in eliminating pollution and insuring that the growing district continues to have an adequate water supply.

The Republican candidates stuck to the issues they have held to throughout the campaign.

JOSEPH MATHEWSON proposed that a federal pollution control department be established with cabinet rank to pull "all anti-pollution agencies together and tackle the problem that has become a major issue in the campaign."

Liberal candidate Yale Roe took a few potshots at conservative candidate Philip Crane who he had debated two weeks ago but didn't stay around to give Crane an opportunity to respond.

Other candidates are State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, State Rep. Alan Johnston, John Nimrod, Gerald Marks, and Samuel Young.

2 Die in Head-On Crash

Leroy R. Cavanaugh, 32, of 1910 W. Lincoln Ave., Mount Prospect, was one of two persons killed Monday in an auto accident southeast of Lake Zurich in Lake County.

Police stated the accident occurred when a car passing in the wrong lane on a four-lane highway ran head-on into another auto on Rand Road.

The other person killed was identified as Mrs. Melisande Reilly, 51, of Wauconda. She was a passenger in a car driven by Mrs. Patricia Harum, 40, also of Wauconda, who is reported in fair condition at Conell Memorial Hospital in Libertyville.

POLICE SAID Cavanaugh, who was driving east on Rand Road near Long Grove Road, tried to pass another car using the westbound lanes and hit the auto carrying the two women.

He was employed as a section supervisor at Charles Bruning Co. in Mount Prospect.

He is survived by his wife, Sally; three sons, Michele, Thomas and Daniel; a daughter, Sandra; his parents, Edward and Florence Cavanaugh; and four brothers, Edward, Richard, Gerald and William.

Approved for Schools

Assistant principals for Dist. 57 schools were approved this week, according to Supt. Eric Sahlberg.

Appointments and additional salaries are Busse, Tom Jorgensen, $200; Central, William Beach, $200; Fairview, Roger Pedersen, $200; Lincoln, Steve Maroulis, $500; Lions Park, Mrs. M. Wilkins, $200; Sunset Park, Eugene Vincent, $200; and Westbrook, Robert Fasick, $200.

The board also approved dedication of the eastern half of William Street. The balance of the street will be paved from Golf Road to Lonquist.

In approving the bills, Mrs. Pat Kimball, board member, noted that the district recently replaced $630 in glass throughout the schools damaged by vandals. This did not include labor costs.

Busing Correction

It was incorrectly reported in Wednesday's Herald that Mount Prospect Dist. 57 officials would at no time assume full cost of busing all junior high students who live more than 1½ miles from Lincoln.

The report should have said the district will not assume full cost of busing all students who live more than 1½ miles from Lincoln this year. A cooperative plan, with parents splitting the cost of busing on a 50/50 basis with the district, is being considered.

And next year, when Lincoln is the only junior high in the district, all students who live more than 1½ miles from Lincoln will automatically be bused by the district.

8-Year-Old Girl Hurt

An 8-year-old Mount Prospect girl was injured Monday when she ran into the street and was struck by a car at the corner of Cottonwood and Redwood lanes near her home.

The girl, Debbie Chmura of 1545 Redwood Lane, was taken by ambulance to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines for treatment of bruises to her right leg and hip.

The driver of the car was Mary Helfenbein, 371 Dover Lane, Des Plaines. Mrs. Helfenbein and a passerby told police the girl ran into the street. No one was cited by police.

Electors May Call Meeting

A request for sewer easement through Wheeling Township property may result in a special township electors' meeting being called during October.

The easement, to run south along the driveway beside the township's garage on Flint Road, would be used for a storm sewer to carry water from several housing developments in the area.

The sewer proposal is part of an overall plan to drain five developments north of Flint Road including a portion of the Cambridge subdivision.

The plan was brought about as a result of a long-standing and often heated dispute over storm drainage from the Cambridge subdivision.

Fred Hillman, vice president of Chesterfield Builders Inc., and Don Gustafson, an engineer working on the plan, appeared before the Wheeling Township board of auditors Tuesday requesting the easement.

The auditors questioned Hillman and Gustafson on certain aspects of the easement, then told them that only the electors can grant such an easement.

Hillman told the board that an individual whose property is west of the township had turned down a request for the easement. Hillman said a private contractor would install the sewer, turning it over to the village of Wheeling upon completion.

Wheeling would then be responsible for the maintenance of the sewer.

Also included in the request for the storm sewer easement was a proposal to construct a sanitary sewer next to the storm sewer. However, neither Gustafson nor Hillman elaborated on the sanitary sewer proposal.

The proposed sewer is part of a plan to drain part of the Cambridge subdivision; the proposed Tahoe subdivision, lying south of Cambridge; the Mallard Lake planned development and a piece of property owned by Zale Builders.

Under the plan water would be carried south from Cambridge to a series of retention basins on the other properties involved. Eventually the water would be routed through the sewer, that is to be built through the township property. The retention basins will be built as permanent lakes.

Tentative agreement on the plan was reached last July among the several parties involved. Litigation resulting from the four-year-old dispute involved Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, the township highway commissioner, as well as developers in the area.

The several pending lawsuits in connection with the controversy were combined into a single lawsuit, by Judge Daniel Covelli.

Through a series of pre-trial meetings

among village officials, the township highway commission, and the developers in the area, a solution to the flooding problem was worked out.

Parties involved in the suit predicted after last summer's tentative agreement that construction on the plan would be complete by the end of the summer. However, such was not the case.

Hillman told the auditors that Wheeling would not grant final approval of the plan until all easements have been secured.

Richard Cowen, the township attorney, said he would discuss the proposed sewer with the Wheeling village engineer. Cowen said, "I want to determine Wheeling's willingness to maintain that easement."

Cowen said he also wanted to be sure that Wheeling would agree to restoring the driveway that runs along the easement in the event work was done on the sewer.

Cowen will report to the auditors at a meeting Oct. 8. He said the auditors "could then proceed to call a special electors' meeting."

Meanwhile the auditors plan to tour the bridge on the north, and Buffalo Grove Road on the east. It also includes a portion of a Miller Builders development west of Buffalo Grove Road.

Thunder Over A New Home

by MURRAY DUBIN

How would you like to own a $50,000 home that leaks water from the bathtub through to the kitchen cabinets?

A home whose cedar siding is already split.

A home where drapes couldn't be put in the bedroom because the windows let in rain.

A home that you bought in March and had to wait three months before your driveway was completed.

Mr. and Mrs. William Zeckzer, 1814 S. Ridge Drive in the Kingsbridge Subdivision, have such a home.

The Zeckzers told the Herald about the problems they and their neighbors are having with the Kingsbridge developers, Realco Builders.

"EVER SINCE March, we've tried to get things corrected in our home," Zeckzer said.

"We realized there were many things that weren't completed when we moved in and we weren't too concerned about our complaints."

"But after three months, we became very disturbed."

On Aug. 25, Zeckzer personally went to Realco with a list of improvements that hadn't been made and tried to see Harold Palmer, a vice president.

Zeckzer finally got an appointment to see Palmer on Aug. 29 and said the vice president promised to correct everything in four working weeks.

Since that meeting, Realco has put a cover on a drain sewer, raised it and fixed a drain in the mud room, Zeckzer said. But Zeckzer is pessimistic about Realco correcting the house's defects.

THE ZECKZERS aren't the only people with complaints about Realco.

Mrs. Richard Mader who lives in the Airy Trace Subdivision told the Herald. "Our roofing is warped and there are pieces missing."

"The leaking in our basement was fixed after 10 months of complaining. My husband wrote the village manager, the Better Business Bureau and the Department of Fraud."

"Everybody in the whole area is complaining."

Mrs. James Kelley, 1707 S. Ridge Drive, isn't happy either.

"We moved in on Jan. 30 and there are still things that haven't been corrected," she said.

"THE CEDAR SIDING is cracking, the basement is leaking and the plaster is cracking. It also rains through the storm windows into the bedroom and there are paint stains on the woodwork."

L. A. Hansen, Arlington Heights village manager said that his office hadn't had any particular problems with Realco, at least "not any more than with any other builder."

Village Pres. Jack Walsh said that he had never received any complaints from Kingsbridge residents but he had in the past received complaints from Airy Trace homeowners and had tried to solve them by getting the village involved.

WALSH ADDED THAT to his knowledge there were no unanswered letters from the residents in Airy Trace.

Marty Munsen, Arlington Heights building commissioner, told the Herald that he has had, at times, problems with Realco but no more than with any other builder or developer.

The Herald has tried to contact Palmer at Realco for three days with no success.

BONAGURO

THE ILLINOIS CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

BACKGROUND

Les Bonaguro, 32 years old, is a serious young man who believes it is the moral responsibility of each of us to be more actively concerned with State Government.

Les resides at 327 S. Forrest Ave., Arlington Heights, with his wife and three children.

Born and raised in Illinois, he attended Loyola University and graduated from Loyola University School of Law in 1961. He is an instructor at Northwestern University, Traffic Institute, where he teaches Law subjects to police officers from all parts of the United States.

EXPERIENCED ATTORNEY

1962-1965 — Assistant States Attorney in the office of Daniel P. Ward. Les prosecuted numerous criminal cases in the Criminal Court of Cook County and argued cases before the Illinois Supreme Court. He gained valuable experience in the application and interpretation of State Laws and Constitutional provisions, and in the functioning of State and Local Government.

1965 - 1966 — Assistant Corporation Counsel for the City of Evanston where he acquired added experience in State and Municipal Law, Housing and Zoning Law, Law Enforcement, and Human Relations. His perseverance resulted in one of the highest conviction rates of drunk driving in the city's history.

Admitted to practice in United States Supreme Court. Member of the American Bar Association and the Northwest Suburban Bar Association (member of Board of Governors.)

O'Hare Anti-Noise Unit Has Roaring Start

The O'Hare Noise Abatement and Air Pollution Council is off to a roaring start this week on an area-wide campaign to seek prompt federal action on major airport problems.

Three of the 17 Northwest suburban communities represented by the council have already passed resolutions seeking support and sympathy from Sen. Charles Percy on the problems of noise abatement and air pollution at O'Hare airport.

Mount Prospect, Elmhurst and Itasca are among the first communities to pass resolutions requesting federal assistance and registering major concern over airport problems, while the majority of towns represented by the council are expected to follow suit later this week.

THE RESOLUTIONS charge "that O'Hare airport continues to be operated and expanded with total disregard for the rights of the residents in neighboring communities. Noise abatement procedures implemented to date by the Federal Aviation Administration are but a token response to the problem.

"As we enter the 1970's with super, jumbo jets on the way, the problems of jet noise and air pollution are reaching crisis proportions. We need constructive action now — not more studies, debate or buck passing."

The resolution passed unanimously by the Itasca Village Board, Tuesday, added: "We believe that there has been a failure of responsible public officials to propose constructive solutions to the problems of airport noise. We also feel that the federal government has a significant role to play in dealing with the problem of airport noise."

THE RESOLUTION outlined that the jurisdiction of the federal government included aircraft operations control and the appropriation of federal funds for land use development as well as health, welfare and safety for everyone.

The Mount Prospect Village Board passed its resolution unanimously Tuesday following the remarks of one resident who thought trustees should give the resolution further consideration and study before issuing final approval.

William Krampert, 323 George St., told trustees that although the noise from jet aircraft was bad, Mount Prospect's proximity to the airport is one of its assets.

KRAMPERT SAID the airport had its advantages and disadvantages just like the Chicago and North Western Railroad which runs right through the middle of town. "Sure, it's noisy but it's transportation for thousands of Northwest suburban commuters every day," he said.

Trustee Don Furst, delegate to the council, agreed with Krampert in part, but added that trains today aren't "belching black oily smoke" like airplanes.

The resolutions were passed following a request from George Franks of Wood Dale who asked council delegates last week to seek resolutions from their village boards requesting immediate federal action and relief from pressing noise and air pollution problems.

FRANKS, council chairman, met with delegates last week to launch a major campaign to send as many petitions and people to protest against major airport problems at a national seminar on noise abatement and air pollution to be held in Washington, D.C. Oct. 7 through 9.

Other communities expected to pass similar resolutions this week include Bensenville, Wood Dale, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Elk Grove, Addison and Des Plaines.

To Reduce Draft Call

WASHINGTON—U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam, which now will include the entire 3rd Marine Division at the Demilitarized Zone, will result in lower draft calls in the months ahead, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird said yesterday.

He told a news conference he would advise the Selective Service Friday of changes in draft calls as a result of President Nixon's decision to pull an additional 35,000 troops from Vietnam.

Request Benefit Hike

WASHINGTON—President Nixon, in a surprise announcement yesterday said he would ask Congress to increase social security benefits by 10 per cent effective next April 1.

Nixon, who had earlier said he would propose a 7 per cent increase, made the announcement with little elaboration. He said he would spell out his program in a message to Congress next week.

MEET YOUR MAILWOMAN — Pat Murphy, a 19-year-old letter carrier at the Mount Prospect post office, sorts her mail each morning before making the rounds to about 400 homes daily, for an average of about eight miles.

Pretty Coed Enjoys Mail Job

by BRAD BREKKE

Once a week, that fellow who delivers your mail in Mount Prospect may be a woman.

Her name is Pat Murphy, a pretty 19-year-old coed who is working as a "floater" or substitute mail carrier for the post office. She is one of two girls working as carriers for the post office in Mount Prospect.

Pat has been working there since June and now that her 90-day probationary period is up, she will be outfitted with a uniform.

She likes her new job and says she took it for the money, mostly. "I clear about $400 a month and have a sister who only makes $250 a month doing secretarial work. It's not a glamorous job, but it pays good, especially for a girl," she said.

HER NORMAL DAY begins at 6 a.m. when she arrives at the post office and begins sorting mail for one of five routes she substitutes for. Her favorite route is one she calls "the mounted one, where I make deliveries by truck to the rural areas in Mount Prospect."

How about the dogs, they ever both you as a mailwoman?

"Not very much, although a German shepherd scared me once and I squirted him with a can of Shock. It's a spray that repels dogs but causes no permanent injuries to them. All us letter carriers carry one. And if we don't, it's our fault if we get bitten, not the dog's."

IT'S UNUSUAL for a woman to be carrying mail, isn't it? What did your family say?

"My dad was a little skeptical until I started bringing home a nice pay check. Then he changed his mind. My three sisters are for it . . . although I think they secretly feel it's a little strange."

"But if a girl can stand up to it physically, I don't see why she shouldn't be able to carry mail."

How far do you walk a day?

"I'd say between eight to 10 miles. When I first started I was wearing loafers and had a lot of trouble with my feet. Now that I've got better shoes, ones with support for my arches, there's nothing to it."

HOW DID YOU decide to take the job?

"I saw a sign in the post office window this summer saying that male and female letter carriers were needed, so I applied and two weeks later I got the job. Simple as that."

How do people along the routes react to seeing a woman delivering the mail instead of a man?

"Some are shocked. Some think I'm too young. And a few say they feel sorry for me . . . you know, poor little girl has to haul around a bag of mail to make a living."

"Actually the bag isn't heavy at all. Only weighs about 35 pounds."

Well isn't that kind of heavy for a girl?

"Not for me. I used to use a cart, but then I gave it up because I found I could make better time carrying the bag on my shoulders. There's nothing to it."

HOW MANY HOMES do you make deliveries to in a day?

"The route I had today was about 395 homes. Most are around 400, give or take a few. And most homes get about two pieces of mail a day, but that's just an average."

ry, and declined to say who he thought his "nearest opponent" would be.

"I think there are three or four who will be close," Young said. "But a lot of things can happen in the last three weeks and I'd rather not give any names."

There are nine Republicans seeking the seat which was vacated by former Congressman Donald L. Rumsfeld in May. The winner of the primary will compete with Democrat Edward Warman of Skokie on Nov. 25.

YOUNG'S OPTIMISM is based on what he called "snowballing support throughout the district."

He pointed to the fact that he has three township GOP endorsements, more than any of the other candidates, and that two of the endorsements are by township organizations that do not have favorite son candidates in the race. Only three of the seven townships which have made endorsements don't have candidates.

Philip Crane of Winnetka was endorsed by the Palatine Township GOP, defeating Young after several ballots. Townships which have endorsed Young are his own Northfield Township and western townships Elk Grove and Schaumburg.

TOWNSHIP GOP organizations which are supporting "favorite sons" are Wheeling Township, State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights; New Trier Township, State Rep. Alan Johnston of Kenilworth; Niles Township, John Nimrod, and Northfield Township, and Young.

Only Evanston Township has not made a Republican organization endorsement. Young said yesterday he believes he will get most of the Evanston vote, as well as carrying Northfield, Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships.

Two other developments which Young said are "very significant" are his "very well qualified" rating by the Women's Republican Club of New Trier and his recommended endorsement by the board of directors of the Evanston Women's Republican Organization.

HE DID NOT get the Evanston endorsement, he said, because a two-thirds vote was required and with eight other candidates also competing, "it's extremely difficult for one candidate to get two-thirds."

Young said his township-by-township, precinct-by-precinct organization was completed this week. Last week, he announced that two high-ranking Republican officials in Palatine Township had left the GOP organization to work for Young, rather than Crane.

The two, Charles K. Allen of Rolling Meadows and Clayton W. Brown of Palatine are joined by other western township directors Warren McGovney, Elk Grove; L. A. (Roy) Bressler, Wheeling; and Glenn Hoffman, Schaumburg.

The committee of former Rumsfeld supporters is headed by Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher and includes a number of top Republicans from the western end of the district.

STATE REP. DAVID REGNER of Mount Prospect is on the committee, as are Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township Clerk George Busse, Mount Prospect Trustee George Reiter and Elk Grove GOP Pres. Richard Hall.

Golfhurst Pupils Could Get Busing

School Dist. 57 may bus Golfhurst students to Lincoln School this year if 50 students living in the southeast section of the village pledge to ride the bus and support a shared-cost busing program with the district.

Harry Hanson, president of the board of education, told the Golfhurst Civic Association last night that to provide bus transportation for only 19 students from Golfhurst subdivision would be financially impossible even on a shared-cost basis.

Hanson said school officials will conduct a survey within the next month to determine how many students in the Golfhurst area would be interested in bus transportation for the year, shared on a 50-50 cost basis with the district.

"SELECTIVE BUS transportation for just students living in Golfhurst would neither be right nor economically feasible. We would have to include more students as a financial benefit to both parents and the district, but then where do you draw the line on who does or doesn't have an opportunity for bus service," he said.

Golfhurst residents are seeking an agreement with school officials on bus transportation for their children who must travel more than two miles one way to school. Students are now walking, riding their bicycles, or being driven in car pools to Lincoln School.

"The busing issue will now depend upon the results of the survey. If 50 children sign up to take the bus I am sure the board would vote affirmatively on a shared-cost busing plan. But if only the 19 children living in Golfhurst sign up for the bus I am sure the board would veto the plan," Hanson said.

Hanson, Superintendent Eric Sehlberg, and board member Alex Casper spoke of the district's intentions to bus all students next year regardless of the outcome of the survey.

HANSON TOLD GOLFHURST residents that it is the intention of the present board to provide free transportation to all students when Lincoln becomes the only junior high school in the district next year.

However, he was explicit in explaining that these are only the intentions of present board members. "There will be three vacancies on the school board next year which could change any plans for free bus transportation, but with four returning members who favor such a program I doubt if the issue will be defeated despite any changes in board membership," Hanson said.

But despite promises for next year Golfhurst residents are still very concerned about this year's transportation problem. The civic association has promised to help the district with any paper work and telephoning involved in conducting the survey which might help to speed up any decision made by the board.

SAHLBERG TOLD RESIDENTS that the survey should be completed within 30 days and he also warned that although the results may favor providing bus transportation this year the final decision will be made by the board of education.

Young Predicts Big Win

by ED MURNANE

One of the most optimistic announcements to date by a 13th Congressional District candidate came yesterday when Samuel H. Young of Glenview announced:

—He is the first candidate to have all 515 13th District precincts manned by his organization.

—He has a 25-member committee of former supporters of Donald Rumsfeld working for him.

—He will win the Oct. 7 primary election by 2,000 votes.

YOUNG SAID surveys by his staff members indicate he will receive "a minimum of 8,000 votes, representing a projected 2,000 vote victory margin over my nearest opponent."

He predicted that approximately 36,000 voters would turn out for the GOP primary, and declined to say who he thought his "nearest opponent" would be.

Giving a Town $450,000

by JAMES VESELY

$450,000. It sits there like a juicy plum to be plucked and tossed into Arlington Heights' bank accounts.

Arlington Park, $450,000. Money to build and support a community.

And all you have to do is open the door and let it in.

AMONG HIGH VILLAGE officials, there is probably very little doubt that the community should annex Arlington Park. Despite the discordant voices of some 60 residents who went to the village hall Tuesday night to question the joining of the village and the track, the deep feeling prevalent in the council chambers was that a man would have to be a fool to let that kind of money get away from the village.

And despite the murmurs of disapproval from some local residents, the village is simply not mooting the type of strong opposition to night racing that stood the community on its ear a few years ago.

So the hard bargaining for public approval began this week in council chambers. The village government is convinced of the worth of the annexation, the track is convinced, now the town has to be convinced.

THE FIRST STEP in that procedure was the discussion this week which placed the entire question of the track's activities up for public scrutiny.

Although Village Pres. Jack Walsh and Atty. Jack Siegel repeatedly tried to keep the meeting from straying from the immediate question of the annexation agreement, some citizens still managed to get their licks in and voiced their apprehensions over the track.

Erwin Kempton, 113 Wilke Road, said "No one can help me with my taxes, I just couldn't be taxed any more... but what about safety? What about the stabbings and the trouble that comes out of the track?"

Another man rose later in the meeting to claim that the track violated the hours imposed by the state racing board and ran horses after midnight.

THIS REMARK BROUGHT the only response of the evening from Mrs. Marje Everett, operator of the track. Mrs. Everett rose, looked the man right in the eye and told him the track has not violated the midnight curfew.

Probably the biggest disclosure of the meeting was the comment made by Gulf and Western real estate executive John Greek, who said the major impetus of expansion of the property will go to high-rise and condominium-type dwellings.

When the meeting got down to the arguments against the annexation, it also got down to a dialogue between lawyers.

Attorney Harold Klingner, a vastly experienced village resident, took the 19-point pre-annexation agreement apart by its seams. And he did it leaving everyone still smiling.

KLINGNER QUESTIONED the board on the agreement to supply water and sewage facilities to the track, probed trustees' willingness to erect police and fire station on the track grounds and pointed out nearly a dozen potential loopholes which would favor the track.

It was a performance that made the audience applaud and Walsh congratulate the man. Siegel, one of the most astute legal minds in the state, made note of several of Klingner's points.

Member of the village board were pleased with the tone of the first meeting. It was done in an orderly fashion, most of the time, and they learned something from Klingner.

If this meeting is the shape of things to come, the weeks of meetings to come may be smoother than anyone would have guessed.

among village officials, the township highway commission, and the developers in the area, a solution to the flooding problem was worked out.

Parties involved in the suit predicted after last summer's tentative agreement that construction on the plan would be complete by the end of the summer. However, such was not the case.

Hillman told the auditors that Wheeling would not grant final approval of the plan until all easements have been secured.

Richard Cowen, the township attorney, said he would discuss the proposed sewer with the Wheeling village engineer. Cowen said, "I want to determine Wheeling's willingness to maintain that easement."

Cowen said he also wanted to be sure that Wheeling would agree to restoring the driveway that runs along the easement in the event work was done on the sewer.

Cowen will report to the auditors at a meeting Oct. 8. He said the auditors "could then proceed to call a special elections meeting."

Meanwhile the auditors plan to tour the bridge on the north, and Buffalo Grove Road on the east. It also includes a portion of a Miller Builders development west of Buffalo Grove Road.

The area to be handled by the drainage plan is bounded by Hintz Road on the south, Jackson Drive on the east, Cam-the maintenance of the sewer.

Also included in the request for the storm sewer easement was a proposal to construct a sanitary sewer next to the storm sewer. However, neither Gustafson nor Hillman elaborated on the sanitary sewer proposal.

The proposed sewer is part of a plan to drain part of the Cambridge subdivision; the proposed Tahoe subdivision, lying south of Cambridge; the Mallard Lake planned development and a piece of property owned by Zale Builders.

Under the plan water would be carried south from Cambridge to a series of retention basins on the other properties involved. Eventually the water would be routed through the sewer, that is to be built through the township property. The retention basins will be built as permanent lakes.

Tentative agreement on the plan was reached last July among the several parties involved. Litigation resulting from the four-year-old dispute involved Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, the township highway commissioner, as well as developers in the area.

The several pending lawsuits in connection with the controversy were combined into a single lawsuit, by Judge Daniel Covelli.

Through a series of pre-trial meetings

Electors May Call Meeting

A request for sewer easement through Wheeling Township property may result in a special township electors' meeting being called during October.

The easement, to run south along the driveway beside the township's garage on Hintz Road, would be used for a storm sewer to carry water from several housing developments in the area.

The sewer proposal is part of an overall plan to drain five developments north of Hintz Road including a portion of the Cambridge subdivision.

The plan was brought about as a result of a long-standing and often heated dispute over storm drainage from the Cambridge subdivision.

Fred Hillman, vice president of Chesterfield Builders Inc., and Don Gustafson, an engineer working on the plan, appeared before the Wheeling Township board of auditors Tuesday requesting the easement.

The auditors questioned Hillman and Gustafson on certain aspects of the easement, then told them that only the electors can grant such an easement.

Hillman told the board that an individual whose property is west of the township had turned down a request for the easement. Hillman said a private contractor would install the sewer, turning it over to the village of Wheeling upon completion.

Wheeling would then be responsible for

Thunder Over A New Home

by MURRAY DUBIN

How would you like to own a $50,000 home that leaks water from the bathtub through to the kitchen cabinets?

A home whose cedar siding is already split.

A home where drapes couldn't be put in the bedroom because the windows let in rain.

A home that you bought in March and had to wait three months before your driveway was completed.

Mr. and Mrs. William Zeckzer, 814 S. Ridge Drive in the Kingsbridge Subdivision, have such a home.

The Zeckzers told the Herald about the problems they and their neighbors are having with the Kingsbridge developers, Realco Builders.

"EVER SINCE March, we've tried to get things corrected in our home," Zeckzer said.

"We realized there were many things that weren't completed when we moved in and we weren't too concerned about our complaints."

"But after three months, we became very disturbed."

On Aug. 25, Zeckzer personally went to Realco with a list of improvements that hadn't been made and tried to see Harold Palmer, a vice president.

Zeckzer finally got an appointment to see Palmer on Aug. 29 and said the vice president promised to correct everything in four working weeks.

Since that meeting, Realco has put a cover on a drain sewer, raised it and fixed a drain in the mud room, Zeckzer said. But Zeckzer is pessimistic about Realco correcting the house's defects.

THE ZECKZERS aren't the only people with complaints about Realco.

Mrs. Richard Mader who lives in the Airy Trace Subdivision told the Herald, "Our roofing is warped and there are pieces missing."

"The leaking in our basement was fixed after 10 months of complaining. My husband wrote the village manager, the Better Business Bureau and the Department of Fraud."

"Everybody in the whole area is complaining."

Mrs. James Kelley, 1707 S. Ridge Drive, isn't happy either.

"We moved in on Jan. 30 and there are still things that haven't been corrected," she said.

"THE CEDAR SIDING is cracking, the basement is leaking and the plaster is cracking. It also rains through the storm windows into the bedroom and there are paint stains on the woodwork."

L. A. Hansen, Arlington Heights village manager said that his office hadn't had any particular problems with Realco, at least "not any more than with any other builder."

Village Pres. Jack Walsh said that he had never received any complaints from Kingsbridge residents but he had in the past received complaints from Airy Trace homeowners and had tried to solve them by getting the village involved.

WALSH ADDED THAT to his knowledge there were no unanswered letters from the residents in Airy Trace.

Marty Munson, Arlington Heights building commissioner, told the Herald that he has had, at times, problems with Realco but no more than with any other builder or developer.

The Herald has tried to contact Palmer at Realco for three days with no success.

Lar Daly Puts On Heat

Lar "America First" Daly came out of the shadows last night and launched his campaign for the Republican nomination for Congressman from the 13th District.

Daly, the perennial loser who has run from offices ranging from President and United States Senator to county superintendent of schools, told Elk Grove businessmen and Centex Industrial Park members that his only campaign platform is to end the war in Vietnam by militarily destroying North Vietnam.

He said the United States must not restrict itself to conventional weapons but should use atomic bombs to accomplish the destruction of the enemy.

DALY'S PRESENCE at the forum and the attendance of Democratic Candidate Edward Warman of Skokie made the Centex sponsored event the first in which all 10 Congressional candidates appeared. Only Warman and four of the Republicans were around for Daly's presentation.

The nine Republicans are competing for their party's nomination in an Oct. 7 primary. The winner will face Warman in a general election Nov. 25 to fill the Congressional seat vacated by OEO Director Donald Rumsfeld.

Warman introduced two relatively new issues into the campaign.

He said one of the major needs of the 13th District is a coordinated transportation plan.

"If this district is to continue to grow and prosper we must get out of the giant traffic snarls," Warman said.

He said he opposed the proposed highway construction cutbacks of President Nixon.

Warman said another major need is for increased water control, both in eliminating pollution and insuring that the growing district continues to have an adequate water supply.

The Republican candidates stuck to the issues they have held to throughout the campaign.

JOSEPH MATHEWSON proposed that a federal pollution control department be established with cabinet rank to pull "all anti-pollution agencies together and tackle the problem that has become a major issue in the campaign."

Liberal candidate Yale Roe took a few potshots at conservative candidate Philip Crane who he had debated two weeks ago but didn't stay around to give Crane an opportunity to respond.

Other candidates are State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, State Rep. Alan Johnston, John Nimrod, Gerald Marks, and Samuel Young.

2 Die in Head-On Crash

Leroy R. Cavanaugh, 32, of 1910 W. Lincoln Ave., Mount Prospect, was one of two persons killed Monday in an auto accident southeast of Lake Zurich in Lake County.

Police stated the accident occurred

when a car passing in the wrong lane on a four-lane highway ran head-on into another auto on Rand Road.

The other person killed was identified as Mrs. Melisande Reilly, 51, of Wauconda. She was a passenger in a car driven by Mrs. Patricia Harum, 40, also of Wauconda, who is reported in fair condition at Condell Memorial Hospital in Libertyville.

POLICE SAID Cavanaugh, who was driving east on Rand Road near Long Grove Road, tried to pass another car using the westbound lanes and hit the auto carrying the two women.

He was employed as a section supervisor at Charles Bruning Co. in Mount Prospect.

He is survived by his wife, Sally; three sons, Michale, Thomas and Daniel; a daughter, Sandra; his parents, Edward and Florence Cavanaugh; and four brothers, Edward, Richard, Gerald and William.

Approved for Schools

Assistant principals for Dist. 57 schools were approved this week, according to Supt. Eric Sahlborg.

Appointments and additional salaries are Busse, Tom Jorgensen, $200; Central, William Beach, $200; Fairview, Roger Pedersen, $200; Lincoln, Steve Maroulis, $500; Lions Park, Mrs. M. Wilkins, $200; Sunset Park, Eugene Vincent, $200; and Westbrook, Robert Pasick, $200.

The board also approved dedication of the eastern half of William Street. The balance of the street will be paved from Golf Road to Lonnquist.

In approving the bills, Mrs. Pat Kimball, board member, noted that the district recently replaced $630 in glass throughout the schools damaged by vandals. This did not include labor costs.

Busing Correction

It was incorrectly reported in Wednesday's Herald that Mount Prospect Dist. 57 officials would at no time assume full cost of busing all junior high students who live more than 1½ miles from Lincoln.

The report should have said the district will not assume full cost of busing all students who live more than 1½ miles from Lincoln this year. A cooperative plan, with parents splitting the cost of busing on a 50/50 basis with the district, is being considered.

And next year, when Lincoln is the only junior high in the district, all students who live more than 1½ miles from Lincoln will automatically be bused by the district.

8-Year-Old Girl Hurt

An 8-year-old Mount Prospect girl was injured Monday when she ran into the street and was struck by a car at the corner of Cottonwood and Redwood lanes near her home.

The girl, Debbie Chmura of 1545 Redwood Lane, was taken by ambulance to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines for treatment of bruises to her right leg and hip.

The driver of the car was Mary Helfenbein, 371 Dover Lane, Des Plaines. Mrs. Helfenbein and a passerby told police the girl ran into the street. No one was cited by police.

O'Hare Anti-Noise Unit Has Roaring Start

The O'Hare Noise Abatement and Air Pollution Council is off to a roaring start this week on an area-wide campaign to seek prompt federal action on major airport problems.

Three of the 17 Northwest suburban communities represented by the council have already passed resolutions seeking support and sympathy from Sen. Charles Percy on the problems of noise abatement and air pollution at O'Hare airport.

Mount Prospect, Elmhurst and Itasca are among the first communities to pass resolutions requesting federal assistance and registering major concern over airport problems, while the majority of towns represented by the council are expected to follow suit later this week.

THE RESOLUTIONS charge "that O'Hare airport continues to be operated and expanded with total disregard for the rights of the residents in neighboring communities. Noise abatement procedures implemented to date by the Federal Aviation Administration are but a token response to the problem.

"As we enter the 1970's with super, turbo jets on the way, the problems of jet noise and air pollution are reaching crisis proportions. We need constructive action now — not more studies, debate or buck passing."

The resolution passed unanimously by the Itasca Village Board, Tuesday, added: "We believe that there has been a failure of responsible public officials to propose constructive solutions to the problems of airport noise. We also feel that the federal government has a significant role to play in dealing with the problem of airport noise."

THE RESOLUTION outlined that the jurisdiction of the federal government included aircraft operations control and the appropriation of federal funds for land use development as well as health, welfare and safety for everyone.

The Mount Prospect Village Board passed its resolution unanimously Tuesday following the remarks of one resident who thought trustees should give the resolution further consideration and study before issuing final approval.

William Krampert, 323 George St., told trustees that although the noise from jet aircraft was bad, Mount Prospect's proximity to the airport is one of its assets.

KRAMPERT SAID the airport had its advantages and disadvantages just like the Chicago and North Western Railroad which runs right through the middle of town. "Sure, it's noisy but it's transportation for thousands of Northwest suburban commuters every day," he said.

Trustee Don Furst, delegate to the council, agreed with Krampert in part, but added that trains today aren't "belching black oily smoke" like airplanes.

The resolutions were passed following a request from George Franks of Wood Dale who asked council delegates last week to seek resolutions from their village boards requesting immediate federal action and relief from pressing noise and air pollution problems.

FRANKS, council chairman, met with delegates last week to launch a major campaign to send as many petitions and people to protest against major airport problems at a national seminar on noise abatement and air pollution to be held in Washington, D.C. Oct. 7 through 9.

Other communities expected to pass similar resolutions this week include Bensenville, Wood Dale, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Elk Grove, Addison and Des Plaines.

To Reduce Draft Call

WASHINGTON—U.S. troop withdrawals from Vietnam, which now will include the entire 3rd Marine Division at the Demilitarized Zone, will result in lower draft calls in the months ahead, Defense Secretary Melvin Laird said yesterday.

He told a news conference he would advise the Selective Service Friday of changes in draft calls as a result of President Nixon's decision to pull an additional 35,000 troops from Vietnam.

Request Benefit Hike

WASHINGTON—President Nixon, in a surprise announcement yesterday said he would ask Congress to increase social security benefits by 10 per cent effective next April 1.

Nixon, who had earlier said he would propose a 7 per cent increase, made the announcement with little elaboration. He said he would spell out his program in a message to Congress next week.

THEN AND NOW? The Herald ran this 1965 picture showing Airy Trace homeowners picketing the offices of the Realty Company of America (Realcoa). At that time, residents were protesting what they felt was poor service by Realcoa, developers of the subdivision. Current homeowners in Airy Trace and nearby Kingsbridge are disturbed by the lack of response their complaints are receiving from Realcoa.

Rezoning Gets Green Light

For an hour last night, the Arlington Heights Plan Commission gave a fair imitation of Laugh-In. Unfortunately there was no one in the audience to watch.

The one liners, quips and outrageous puns by the nine members were only enjoyed by secretary Mrs. May Fye and the press. The usual objectors and interested residents who attend plan commission meetings were absent last night.

At 8:15, Atty. Edward Yalowitz appeared before the commission representing Wilfred Stanhaus, the owner of the property and the building at 201-203 Wing St., the present post office location.

The post office is expected to move into new headquarters at the southeast corner of Euclid and Kennicott shortly. Yalowitz asked to rezone the present property to B-5 for a business use. The property is currently zoned for schools, parks and other public uses.

"I'M ASKING THAT you give us the right to be flexible and grant us the best possible use for the property," Yalowitz said.

Yalowitz added that if the B-5 zoning is granted, the existing building could still be utilized. He told the commission that he currently is negotiating with people in Arlington Heights as to the future use of the property and indicated that an office building may be built there.

Jim Ryan, a commissioner, said he thought the petitioner's request was reasonable since the land to the east and north was zoned B-5.

Russell Colvin asked if the property had been properly posted, noting that there were no neighbors in attendance. No one was sure if it had been posted and the motion to approve the petition had an amendment saying the petitioner must file the adjoining property owners of the plan commission's decision and the fact that the village board will hear the matter on Oct. 6.

The motion passed unanimously.

IT WAS NOW 8:30 and the commission had to vote to change the ordinance that doesn't permit telephone exchanges in B-5 zoning.

Since two telephone exchanges already exist under B15 zoning, Leo Mueller said, "We should open our hearts and ordinances to the telephone company."

The motion passed with Jim Ryan saying, "Let's not get our wires crossed."

Young Predicts Big Win

by ED MURNANE

One of the most optimistic announcements to date by a 13th Congressional District candidate came yesterday when Samuel H. Young of Glenview announced:—He is the first candidate to have all 515 13th District precincts manned by his organization.

—He has a 25-member committee of former supporters of Donald Rumsfeld working for him.

—He will win the Oct. 7 primary election by 2,000 votes.

YOUNG SAID surveys by his staff members indicate he will receive "a minimum of 8,000 votes, representing a projected 2,000 vote victory margin over my nearest opponent."

He predicted that approximately 36,000 voters would turn out for the GOP primary, and declined to say who he thought his "nearest opponent" would be.

"I think there are three or four who will be close," Young said. "But a lot of things can happen in the last three weeks and I'd rather not give any names."

There are nine Republicans seeking the seat which was vacated by former Congressman Donald L. Rumsfeld in May. The winner of the primary will compete with Democrat Edward Warman of Skokie on Nov. 25.

YOUNG'S OPTIMISM is based on what he called "snowballing support throughout the district."

He pointed to the fact that he has three township GOP endorsements, more than any of the other candidates, and that two of the endorsements are by township organizations that do not have favorite son candidates in the race. Only three of the seven townships which have made endorsements don't have candidates.

Philip Crane of Winnetka was endorsed by the Palatine Township GOP, defeating Young after several ballots. Townships which have endorsed Young are his own Northfield Township and western townships Elk Grove and Schaumburg.

TOWNSHIP GOP organizations which are supporting "favorite sons" are Wheeling Township, State Rep. Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights; New Trier Township, State Rep. Alan Johnston of Kenilworth; Niles Township, John Nimrod, and Northfield Township, and Young.

Only Evanston Township has not made a Republican organization endorsement. Young said yesterday he believes he will get most of the Evanston vote, as well as carrying Northfield, Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships.

Two other developments which Young said are "very significant" are his "very well qualified" rating by the Women's Republican Club of New Trier and his recommended endorsement by the board of directors of the Evanston Women's Republican Organization.

HE DID NOT get the Evanston endorsement, he said, because a two-thirds vote was required and with eight other candidates also competing, "it's extremely difficult for one candidate to get two-thirds."

Young said his township-by-township, precinct-by-precinct organization was completed this week. Last week, he announced that two high-ranking Republican officials in Palatine Township had left the GOP organization to work for Young, rather than Crane.

The two, Charles K. Allen of Rolling Meadows and Clayton W. Brown of Palatine are joined by other western township directors Warren McGovney, Elk Grove; L. A. (Roy) Bressler, Wheeling; and Glenn Hoffman, Schaumburg.

The committee of former Rumsfeld supporters is headed by Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher and includes a number of top Republicans from the western end of the district.

STATE REP. DAVID REGNER of Mount Prospect is on the committee, as are Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl Hansen, Elk Grove Township Clerk George Busse, Mount Prospect Trustee George Reiter and Elk Grove GOP Pres. Richard Hall.

A Pretty Coed Likes Mail Job

by BRAD BREKKE

Once a week, that fellow who delivers your mail in Mount Prospect may be a woman.

Her name is Pat Murphy, a pretty 19-year-old coed who is working as a "floater" or substitute mail carrier for the post office. She is one of two girls working as carriers for the post office in Mount Prospect.

Pat has been working there since June and now that her 90-day probationary period is up, she will be outfitted with a uniform.

She likes her new job and says she took it for the money, mostly. "I clear about $400 a month and have a sister who only makes $250 a month doing secretarial work. It's not a glamorous job, but it pays good, especially for a girl," she said.

How have the male carriers accepted you?

"Fine, as long as I do my work and don't ask for special treatment because I'm a girl."

How about the people along your route, do they treat you okay?

"It's like anywhere. You have the cranks, but most of the people are pretty nice. A few think I'm a little young to be doing the job, but of course I'm not."

What are your plans for the future?

"I'M GOING BACK to school this spring at the Chicago Circle campus and major in history. I graduated from Forest View High School in 1967 and I've had two years at Monmouth College, but I couldn't go back this fall because I ran out of coin. That's why I'm working now. Then I suppose I'll do something crazy like get married, but I don't know," she said.

And with that Pat Murphy went back to sorting her mail for the next day's run.

Which route are you going on tomorrow?

"My favorite one, the mounted route," she said.

HER NORMAL DAY begins at 6 a.m. when she arrives at the post office and begins sorting mail for one of five routes she substitutes for. Her favorite route is one she calls "the mounted one, where I make deliveries by truck to the rural areas in Mount Prospect."

How about the dogs, they ever both you as a mailwoman?

"Not very much, although a Gorman shepherd scared me once and I squirted him with a can of Shock. It's a spray that repels dogs but causes no permanent injuries to them. All us letter carriers carry one. And if we don't, it's our fault if we get bitten, not the dog's."

IT'S UNUSUAL for a woman to be carrying mail, isn't it? What did your family say?

"My dad was a little skeptical until I started bringing home a nice pay check. Then he changed his mind. My three sisters are for it . . . although I think they secretly feel it's a little strange."

"But if a girl can stand up to it physically, I don't see why she shouldn't be able to carry mail."

How far do you walk a day?

"I'd say between eight to 10 miles. When I first started I was wearing loafers and had a lot of trouble with my feet. Now that I've got better shoes, ones with support for my arches, there's nothing to it."

HOW DID YOU decide to take the job?

"I saw a sign in the post office window this summer saying that male and female letter carriers were needed, so I applied and two weeks later I got the job. Simple as that."

How do people along the routes react to seeing a woman delivering the mail instead of a man?

"Some are shocked. Some think I'm too young. And a few say they feel sorry for me . . . you know, poor little girl has to haul around a bag of mail to make a living."

"Actually the bag isn't heavy at all. Only weighs about 35 pounds."

Well isn't that kind of heavy for a girl?

"Not for me. I used to use a cart, but then I gave it up because I found I could make better time carrying the bag on my shoulders. There's nothing to it."

HOW MANY HOMES do you make deliveries to in a day?

"The route I had today was about 396 homes. Most are around 400, give or take a few. And most homes get about two pieces of mail a day, but that's just an average."

How about the people along your route, do they treat you okay?

"It's like anywhere. You have the cranks, but most of the people are pretty nice. A few think I'm a little young to be doing the job, but of course I'm not."

Meyer Backs Schlickman

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer has endorsed Eugene Schlickman of Arlington Heights for the vacant post of 13th District congressman.

In a press conference statement, Meyer said he will head up a citizens committee in his community to work for Schlickman for Congress.

Schlickman, a three-term member in the Illinois House of Representatives, is the only Republican candidate for Congress from the four western townships in the eight-township district. Eight other Republican contenders are in the Oct. 7 primary race.

ED SHILLINGTON, Des Plaines eighth ward alderman, also endorsed Schlickman this week, his vote of confidence stated during the regular city council meeting. Shillington is a resident of Elk Grove Township, part of the 13th District.

The mayor said Schlickman is the only candidate who has the qualifications of working in both local and state government. He said he made his decision to support a congressional candidate after reviewing problems of the district, issues, candidates and qualifications.

SCHLICKMAN said that both he and Meyer in the past have always stood up for municipalities' best interests.

"I'm appreciative of your support and hope we can continue to strengthen local government," Schlickman said.

Mothers Stand Behind Football Sons

by MARIANNE BRETSNYDER

She watched him throw his first pass, and banded his first injury. The mother of a high school football player knows part of her son's sport life better than anyone else.

"We go to every game," said Mrs. Howard Mock of Rolling Meadows whose son Howard plays on the Forest View team. She thinks it is a wonderful sport, and her son enjoys it.

"IT KEEPS HIM busy; a child should be interested in something, and they need the encouragement of their parents," she said.

Mrs. Mock said her son plays slot back and defensive halfback. He has also been on the track team, and he was a gymnast.

On the team's chances this year, she said, "We lost the first game, but we hope to win most of them."

WHILE SONS BATTLE on the football field, mothers watch from the bleachers, cheering for their sons' teams and hoping they don't get injured.

Mrs. Mock said Howard has received several letters from football coaches at colleges, and a letter from the Air Force Academy.

HE HAS TO score scholastically too, she added, boys don't get into college on the strength of athletics anymore. She said her son has a good academic record, and if he should get a senator's recommendation, he could go to the Air Force Academy.

Mrs. Robert Carr said her son, Bob, started playing football in sixth grade. He is a guard and linebacker at Palatine High School.

"I always thought he would play, he's been active since he was very young," she said. Her son has always been "first string," she said.

"We never miss a game," Mrs. Carr said, "and the love of the sport comes from his dad."

BOB ALSO PLAYS basketball and baseball, and was on the track team. Sports is a way of life and she said her son is conscious of keeping himself fit. She thinks he'll continue to play in college.

"I think athletics are the greatest thing for a boy," said Mrs. Robert Creek. Her son Jeff plays for Fremd High School. She thinks all boys should play in some kind of sport, even if they're just water boy, she said.

The lessons they learn there, they learn in life and in business she said. It teaches them to work with people, she said.

"He's played since he had a ball in his hands," she said. His sports interest extends to track, tumbling, swimming and skiing.

She worries about him, and said he played the last game with a broken nose. "But he knows what the risks are," she added.

"WE ARE ALL there at the game, including the six year old," Mrs. Creek said. He plays "defensive center and offensive line backer, number 51," she said.

"We hope they will win and take the conference title, if they don't win, they'll have to try a little harder," she said.

Mrs. Harry Menick's son, Mike, is Fremd's offensive end and defensive safety Mike Menick.

"I think it's very good for them. They learn a lot of things, like teamwork and coordination, and how to get along with people," she said.

"They will have to get along with all kinds of people, and learning to get along with the team helps," she said.

Here's Why Mac's Lost

There are more than just decisions to the affairs of government. Before each board or commission in Arlington Heights finally makes up its mind and casts its collective vote, each member must weigh the measure of matters both trivial and turbulent.

Often the residents of this community get only the final decision of the village officials. Yet there is always more to the story than the final "aye" or "nay." There is sometimes a tug-of-war in which any tip over the brink of an argument will determine the fortunes of a businessman and the character of the community.

On Sept. 10, the plan commission denied McDonald's request to build a drive-in restaurant on the west side of Arlington Heights Road north of Palatine Road. This land is not inside the village but is almost certain to be annexed as the village grows.

THE HERALD REPORTED that Jim McGrath's motion to deny the request was passed 6-3 and that petitioner's attorney William Moore was unhappy about the decision.

But we didn't tell why.

We didn't tell why because of space and time limitations. Perhaps now we can.

McGrath told the Herald that the plan commission had turned down a carwash in the same area because of the increasing traffic problem. He said he didn't see any change in the traffic intensity.

"PERSONALLY I'D LIKE to see a McDonald's there but we said no to the carwash and we have to be a little consistent," McGrath said.

"There is simply too much traffic at that corner and along Arlington Heights Road," he added.

Mrs. Alice Harms said she voted no because "we have to be terribly afraid because this is one of our major thoroughfares and we don't want it to be like Northwest Highway through Palatine."

Mrs. Harms admitted that she was surprised that the petition was voted against.

William Hanum, plan commission chairman, echoed other commission members, saying Moore gave an excellent presentation. Hanum said that the McDonald's was a reasonable use for the area and admitted that he too was somewhat surprised at the commission's decision.

HANNUM VOTED AGAINST McGrath's motion but wanted it to be made clear that he wasn't being critical of the rest of the board.

Leo Mueller, who also voted against the McGrath's motion to deny the rezoning request, said, "I didn't see any real objection to their proposed installation at that location."

The objectors to the motion see no reason why a McDonald's shouldn't be located on Arlington Heights Road and its proponents think a McDonald's will increase an already troublesome traffic situation.

THE MATTER will come before the village board shortly. The same village board that recently reversed a negative recommendation by the plan commission on a Moore petition.

Even if the village board agrees with the plan commission's decision to deny the request, McDonald's has informed the village of its intentions to erect a restaurant on an alternate location at Rand Road, between Arlington Heights and Palatine roads.

This drive-in facility will be built on land that McDonald's already owns.

BONAGURO

BACKGROUND

Les Bonaguro, 32 years old, is a serious young man who believes it is the moral responsibility of each of us to be more actively concerned with State Government.

Les resides at 327 S. Forrest Ave., Arlington Heights, with his wife and three children.

Born and raised in Illinois, he attended Loyola University and graduated from Loyola University School of Law in 1961. He is an instructor at Northwestern University, Traffic Institute, where he teaches Law subjects to police officers from all parts of the United States.

EXPERIENCED ATTORNEY

1962-1965 — Assistant States Attorney in the office of Daniel P. Ward. Les prosecuted numerous criminal cases in the Criminal Court of Cook County and argued cases before the Illinois Supreme Court. He gained valuable experience in the application and interpretation of State Laws and Constitutional provisions, and in the functioning of State and Local Government.

1965 - 1966 — Assistant Corporation Counsel for the City of Evanston where he acquired added experience in State and Municipal Law, Housing and Zoning Law, Law Enforcement, and Human Relations. His perseverance resulted in one of the highest conviction rates of drunk driving in the city's history.

Admitted to practice in United States Supreme Court. Member of the American Bar Association and the Northwest Suburban Bar Association (member of Board of Governors.)
